EMMERSON SAYS ILLINOIS VERGES ON BANKRUPTCY

STRESSES THE NEED OF TAX REFORM

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 5. — A gloomy picture of a state on the verge of bankruptcy because of uncollected taxes and mounting expenditures was sketched today by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson in his opening message to the special session of the Fifty-fifth General Assembly. It now is up to the legislators, he said, to save Illinois from the disgrace of repudiating its financial obligations.

"Local and state governments in Illinois are face to face with the most serious financial crisis in their history," Gov. Emmerson said. "* * * it has reached the point where something must be done if we are to avoid bankruptcy and wholesale repudiation of bonded obligations."

One cause for the State's condition, he declared, lay with the voters who turned down, in the November, 1930, election a proposed constitutional amendment which, he said, would have resulted in a more equitable method of tax collection and led to revenue reform preventing the State's present financial crisis.

Other causes, he added, were: The order of the State Tax Commission for the reassessment of all real estate in Cook County in 1928 resulting in a prolonged delay in tax collections; the inability of taxpayers because of the economic depression to pay their assessments; the refusal of other taxpayers, under the guise of inability, to pay their assessments; expenditures by local governments of sums which they expected to, but did not, collect in taxes.

Chicago and Cook County.

"Due primarily to delay in the collection of taxes and shrinkage in the amount of money realized from local assessments, the Governments of Chicago and Cook County are unable to meet current bills, to fulfill their financial obligations, or to obtain additional funds, and failure of Cook County to pay its share of taxes has seriously handicapped the State Government," the Governor declared. "At the same time, many cities and counties throughout Illinois are feeling the effects of decreased income and inability of taxpayers to pay amounts assessed against their properties.

"I am informed that approximately 20 per cent of all taxes levied in Cook County for the years 1927, 1928, and 1929 are unpaid," he added, "this amounts to a total of more than $141,000,000, but local governments have been spending on the assumption these taxes would be paid and in consequence large deficits have been accumulated.

"An analysis of the figures shows that while personal and railroad taxes have continued to pay their bills, real estate has delinquent in increasing amounts, rising from $2,000,000 in 1927 to $60,000,000 in 1928, and $64,000,000 in 1929. It is quite evident that there will be a very large delinquency in taxes for 1930, which will be collected."

Because of this condition, he declared, banks are unwilling to lend any more tax anticipation warrants and the indigent taxpayers are unable to raise money.

Calls for New Ideas.

The Governor then related the history of his revenue commission, appointed last summer, and whose findings and recommendations will be among the things discussed by the legislators at this session. He asked the Assembly to consider the commission's offerings, and those at variance with them. He called special attention to a recommendation of the commission that an amendment to the revenue section of the Constitution be voted as "the first step towards adequate tax reform."

While the Executive Committee of the commission has taken the in-

By the Associated Press.

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 5.—Nan Britton, author of "The President's Daughter," lost her $50,000 libel suit against C. A. Klunk, Marion, O., hotel operator. The jury in Federal Court here this afternoon found for Klunk.

The jury returned a verdict in an hour and 10 minutes after taking three ballots. "No cause for action" was found.

Miss Britton's attorneys said they would appeal and take the case "to the Supreme Court if necessary."

The jury had been instructed today by Federal Judge John M. Killits to consider whether the author of "The Answer to the President's Daughter" was justified in making the statements he did about Miss Britton. The jury received the case at 3:10 p. m.

The Judge said the issue in the trial had been narrowed down to the justifiability of the statements. If the "answer" is found to be justified, the Judge said, a verdict should be given for the defendant, and if not the damages should be assessed. Klunk was sued on the ground that he distributed The Answer to the President's Daughter" at his hotel.

Biblical quotations marked both sides of the final arguments. William A. Marsteller, counsel for Miss Britton, said that, as the Bible was written to point out right from wrong, so Miss Britton's book, "The President's Daughter," was written, he asserted, to show the need for a law to give an illegitimate child the same claim on its father as its mother.

Attorneys for Klunk countered with the contention that the charges made against Miss Britton in "the Answer to the President's Daughter" were true.

Grant Mouser of Marion, a friend of President Harding, told the jurors he had known Miss Britton as a child and her family, and that "she had a wild imagination in her adolescence."

Of her book, Mouser asserted: "This salacious, lascivious and poisonous book could not be perpetrated in any other country but the United States. It is the picture of a woman demented, obsessed, bound to have money and to get it at any price."

WOMAN IN DETROIT OFFICE SHOOTS MAN FOUR TIMES

Then She Starts to Flee and Falls in Faint—Many See Affair.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 5.—While scores of persons watched, a woman in the ground floor office of E. A. Pierce company, brokers, in the Ford Building, took a pistol from her handbag and shot a man four times today, started to flee and fell in a faint.

The man and woman were taken to Receiving Hospital. The man gave his name as Lynes E. Trombley, 29. The woman said her name was Mrs. Dorothy Hoffman. She said she had known Trombley for 15 years, but refused to say why she had shot him.

Trombley also refused to discuss the shooting. He was wounded twice in the back, once in the leg and once in the wrist.

W. K. BIXBY ESTATE IS DIVIDED AMONG HIS SIX CHILDREN

Four Sons Receive Shares Outright, Trust is Established for Two Daughters —Will Cites Many Gifts.

ENDOWED 15 GROUPS DURING LIFETIME

Books Not Already Disposed of Are Made Part of Estate of Wife Who Preceded Him in Death.

The will of William K. Bixby, capitalist and former president of the Washington University Corporation, filed yesterday afternoon, leaves the bulk of his estate in six equal parts to his four sons and two daughters.

The sons, William H., Harold M., Donald C. and Ralph F. Bixby, receive their shares outright, and the shares of the daughters, Mrs. A. H. Jordan and Mrs. I. A. Stevens, are placed in trust, they to receive the income during their lifetimes, and their children to inherit the principal of their shares.

The amount of the estate is not indicated in the will. The two older sons, William H. and Harold M. Bixby, are named as joint trustees with the St. Louis Union Trust Co. of their sisters' shares and joint executors, with the trust company, of the estate. The only specific bequest, to be deducted before the division among the heirs is made, is $10,000 to Bellefontaine Cemetery Association for care and preservation of the Bixby lot and mausoleum. The will was made Oct. 20, 1927.

An earlier will, in which Mr. Bixby made bequests to 15 organizations, is mentioned. "Before revoking the same," the will states, "I made living trusts for their respective benefit; and I have made outright several gifts of substantial amounts to Washington University. Because of the provisions made by me in these trusts, and because of other outright gifts to institutions of a similar nature, I do not feel called upon to make any bequests for any benevolent, religious or educational purposes."

Groups in "Living Trusts."

The organizations listed as having had "living trusts" made for their benefit are:

Missouri Historical Society.
Girls' Industrial Home.
St. Louis Provident Association.
Administrative Board of Control of City Art Museum.
St. Louis Children's Hospital.
First Congregational Church of St. Louis.
St. Louis Society for Relief and Prevention of Tuberculosis (now Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis).
Young Women's Christian Association of St. Louis.
Memorial Home of St. Louis.
Home of the Friendless.
Protestant Orphans' Home.
Keats-Shelley Memorial in Rome.
Emma L. Bixby Hospital of Adrian, Mich.
American Antiquarian Society of Worcester, Mass.
Artists' Guild of St. Louis.

The amounts given to these organizations and institutions by Mr. Bixby in his lifetime are not set forth in the will. He is known to have given Washington University $500,000, including the $250,000 Art School building; to the Missouri Historical Society, $50,000, besides valuable manuscripts; to the Art Museum, $80,000 in securities, besides a number of paintings; to the Artists' Guild, $20,000; and to the Y. W. C. A., $14,500.

As to his collection of books and manuscripts, which was one of the most extensive and valuable in the United States, and the household furnishings at the home, 26 Portland place, and elsewhere, the will states:

"Many years ago I conveyed to my wife, Lillian Tuttle Bixby, by bill of sale, all my household effects of every kind, including manuscripts, books, pictures, bric-a-brac, automobiles, boats, etc., contained in my homestead and also at her residence at Bolton Landing, N. Y., which I hereby confirm."

In Mrs. Bixby's Estate.

Large gifts were made from the Bixby collection of books and manuscripts, in recent years, to Washington University and the Missouri Historical Society. The remainder of the collection, as shown by Mr. Bixby's will, is in the estate of Mrs. Bixby, who died last August. No will of Mrs. Bixby has been filed, and a representative of the St. Louis Union Trust Co. today declined to state whether she left a will.

A bequest to Mrs. Bixby of one

MAY AND MARCH WHEAT PASS 70; OTHER GRAINS UP

Top Price Since Last May Reached — Reports of Drouth in Russia Aid Bull Market.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—The grain market climbed steadily higher today, setting new records for the season and rapidly making back the losses of past months. Opening firm and withstanding one burst of profit-taking after another, wheat showed unusual strength. May crossed the 70-cent mark at the opening and March followed suit later, leaving only December at 69-cent quotations. Until yesterday none of the wheat contracts had sold at 70 cents or better since last May.

Wheat prices eased in the last few minutes of trading to close at net gains for the day of from ⅞ to 1⅜ of a cent. December closed at 65½@65¾c; March at 69¼@69½c; May at 70½@70⅝, and July at 71¼@71⅜. Corn was also about a cent below its high figures at the close, but still accounted for net gains of from 1⅝ to 2¼ cents.

Other world markets showed strength. Gains in the trading centers of the United States corresponded with those made at Chicago. Liverpool wheat gained about 3 pence but was still only about 2 cents higher than Chicago.

Speculative interests appeared to be so great that there was little need of bullish news.

Heaviest Trading Here in 13 Years.

At the close of today's grain market, C. B. Rader, secretary-treasurer of the St. Louis Merchants' Exchange, announced the day's trading was the heaviest in the last 13 years, exceeding yesterday's active day in the pit. The exchange does not make public the volume of trading. Wheat prices were more than 20 cents higher than a month ago and the highest for 1931.

December wheat closed at 64 cents a bushel, an increase of 1¼ cents over yesterday's close. It had reached a high of 65¼ during the day. May wheat rose to 69 and closed at 67⅜, an increase of one cent.

December corn got up to 46¼ and closed at 45⅝, an increase of 2⅜. May corn closed at 50, an increase of 1½.

DOLE TICKETS USED AS MONEY

Passed at Beer Saloons and Race Tracks in Australia.

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 5.—The Government's unemployment relief is so easily obtained and so easily manipulated now that dole tickets are being used as currency in beer saloons and on race tracks.

Some of the unemployed get tickets under six or more different names. One man arrested recently had been getting $100 worth of tickets each week. He was listed as the "father" of several non-existent large families.

DEMOCRAT WINS IN KENTUCKY BY 46,000 MAJORITY

Ruby Laffoon Governor-Elect on Face of Almost Complete Returns — Entire Ticket Carried.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 5.—Circuit Judge Ruby Laffoon, Democrat, was elected Governor over Mayor William B. Harrison, Louisville Republican, on the face of returns from nearly the entire State today. He carried all his State ticket with him and the Democrats retained control of the House and Senate.

The returns from 1931 of the State's 4178 precincts in Tuesday's election show the 62-year-old Madisonville jurist has a majority of more than 46,000. The totals were: Laffoon, 215,750, and Harrison, 168,999. Harrison had 18,806 to 11,924 in the Fifth Congressional District, including Louisville, his home, but it was apparent he could not pile up sufficient majority there to overcome the Democratic totals.

Four years ago Kentucky elected Flem D. Sampson, Republican, as Governor, but all other State officers elected were Democrats.

Proposals to call a convention to revise or amend the State Constitution and to permit school districts in cities of the first five classes to increase their indebtedness limit appeared to have been soundly beaten.

"Well, you fellows solved the crime problem by sending me to the penitentiary for violating income tax laws."

NAVY LEAGUE MEN SUPPORT GARDINER AGAINST HOOVER

OFFERS RECORDS FOR INVESTIGATION

One Member Dissents Because of "Unseemly and Unjustified Language Concerning President."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Full support to the statement of William Howard Gardiner attacking the administration's naval policy was given today by the Executive Committee of the Navy League with only one dissenting vote.

A formal statement issued by the Executive Committee of the organization at a moment when the committee named by President Hoover to investigate the truth of the charges was just sitting down around a table for its first session, affirmed "its faith in the statements issued by the League's officials" and welcomed "any impartial and comprehensive investigation which will throw much needed light on the present conduct of American naval policy."

"To this end," it continued, "the Navy League gladly offers its records without reservation. Furthermore it resolves to pursue the purposes and policies for which the Navy League was founded."

Henry Breckenridge, the only dissenting member, to the vote by which the statement was approved, said in a separate statement it was his "deep conviction" that Gardiner, in his statement had used "unseemly and unjustified language concerning the President of the United States."

He added that this language "will not serve the best interest of the Navy or of the Navy League" and should not be approved by the league.

Simultaneously, Gardiner issued a statement of his own:

"I wrote the pamphlet published by the Navy League on Oct. 28 in the best of good faith. I wrote it in the hope that it would bring home to my fellow countrymen and to our selected representatives in the executive and legislative branches of our Government, what I sincerely believe to be the very serious condition that confronts our country."

The majority report by the Executive Committee was signed by Walter Bruce Howe of Washington, chairman of the board of directors; Gardiner, as president of the league; Henry Cabot Lodge of Beverly, Mass.; Nelson Macy, New York City; T. Douglas Robinson, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy; James W. Wadsworth Jr., former Senator from New York, and M. M. Hubbard, Chicago.

John Hays Hammond today was chosen chairman of the President's committee investigating the truth of charges made by Gardiner. After a four-hour session in the privacy of the exclusive Metropolitan Club, Hammond emerged, announced his election as chairman and said the committee would meet again tonight and tomorrow before formulating its final report.

In reply to questions, he said the President had given his group an absolutely free hand to turn in any report it might wish. Much of the evidence needed, he said, was gone over at today's session. The report is to be submitted to President Hoover before it is made public.

FLYER KILLED IN ATTEMPTING LANDING ON PLANE CARRIER

By the Associated Press.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 5.—Lieutenant-Commander Oscar W. Erickson, 25 years old, commander of the VS-2B squadron of the airplane carrie Saratoga, was killed today when his plane fell into the ocean 10 miles off San Diego harbor, when he attempted to land on the Saratoga. George W. Cummings, aviation pilot first class, who was with Erickson, was rescued from the sea.

Erickson recently was placed in command of the scouting squadron aboard the Saratoga, having been in command of an observation squadron previously. He is survived by his widow.

Erickson was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1916, having entered from Oklahoma. Until last January he was stationed in Philadelphia.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 5. — Mahatma Gandhi, adhering to his intentions, appeared before George V, Emperor of India, today at Buckingham Palace clad only in a loin cloth and with his head bare.

Ascending the crimson-carpeted staircase to the royal picture gallery he bowed before King George and Queen Mary with his hands palm to palm, in the manner of a Hindu priest pronouncing a benediction. It was pronounced the most extraordinary scene ever witnessed within the Palace walls.

While the King smiled benignly on his visitor it was noticed that others surveyed his bare legs and shaven head with a critical eye. The King exchanged greetings with other guests, numbering about 600 and including many robed Maharajas, and summoned the Mahatma for a private talk in the royal study.

They talked in private for some time and afterward the Mahatma had a short conversation with Queen Mary. Then he left before anyone else, and his departure caused a stir among those who held it to be a breach of court etiquette.

"Both their Majestics were charming," said Gandhi afterward. "I also liked the Prince of Wales."

The Prince had come from Liverpool by airplane to attend today's function.

ARMY'S BUDGET FOR 1933 REDUCED BY $44,000,000

Secretary Hurley Says Efficiency of War Department Has Not Been Impaired.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The War Department budget for 1933 was said today by Secretary Hurley to have been reduced about $44,000,000 below the appropriations for the current fiscal year.

Hurley said the reduction had been accomplished without impairing the efficiency of the army and had been made possible by "vigorous economies and deferment of programs not vital at this time." He did not say whether any army forts would be abandoned.

Hurley said the budget had been arranged with the utmost harmony between the War Department and President Hoover's budget officers, and that it had been approved finally today by the chief of staff and other high officials of the department.

The step does not contemplate lower wages or salaries. The cut will apply to the civil as well as military functions. The rivers and harbors program is understood to call for a smaller amount largely because of reduced costs of materials and minor savings.

Army appropriations for this fiscal year were $481,565,735.

HARVARD UNDERGRADUATES MAY RECEIVE WOMEN IN ROOMS

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 5.—A Harvard University ruling as old as the institution itself has been set aside and undergraduates living in Eliot House will be permitted to receive women in their rooms between 2 p. m. and 7 p. m.

The rules permitting the reception of woman visitors unchaperoned were made by Prof. Roger B. Merriman of the history department, master of the house and the house council. A new social regime at Harvard was seen in the Eliot House move. The trend toward greater leniency in social restrictions was deemed inevitable and desirable.

U. S. CITIZENS GO TO CANADA

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 5.—The flow of immigration between Canada and the United States has been reversed. Instead of Canadians crossing the border to seek their fortunes, citizens of United States are coming to Canada, statistics show.

In July, August and September, 4181 Americans came to Canada to settle. Immigration regulations require that all of these new citizens must have enough money to tide them over a year.

NEW FIGHTING IN MANCHURIA; JAPAN SENDS MORE TROOPS

15 of Mikado's Soldiers Killed and Many Wounded in Clash With Chinese —Loss of Latter Heavy, Geneva Is Told.

HOPES FOR PEACE RECEIVE SETBACK

There Seems No Chance of Direct Settlement by Nov. 16—Dr. Sze, Nanking Representative, Requests That Briand Intervene.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Nov. 5.—Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese member of the League of Nations Council, called on Aristide Briand as chairman of the Council tonight to intervene in the Manchurian conflict. He asked that Briand demand that the Japanese Government "stop the incendiary activities of its troops which threaten the gravest complications and for which Japan must bear sole responsibility."

Dr. Sze reported to the League secretary that Japanese troops had crossed the Nonni River and opened fire on Chinese troops, under Gen. Mah Chan-shan, killing a hundred Chinese soldiers. More than that, he said, Japanese bombing planes killed 20 more.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Nov. 5.—The Japanese War Office issued a communique tonight announcing "positive and effective measures" had been decided on to cope with the threatening position facing Japanese occupation troops at the Nonni River bridge in Manchuria, 15 of whom were killed and many wounded yesterday in a fight with Chinese forces.

The communique said reinforcements were being sent to the scene. Tokio newspapers announced a mixed brigade of 4000 men would be sent from Japan to the occupied area to replace tired Japanese soldiers who have been holding the positions in the occupied Chinese territory since the outbreak of trouble Sept. 18.

Yesterday's fighting seemingly has precluded all hope that China and Japan might patch up their troubles by Nov. 16, the date set by the League of Nations for withdrawal of Japanese soldiers from the occupied areas.

Emperor Told of Situation.

War Minister Minami, received in audience by Emperor Hirohito, informed the ruler of the serious situation resulting from the clash, in which Chinese troops under Gen. Mah Chan-shan allegedly attacked 500 Japanese reconnaissance troops.

Minami also was said to be seeking sanction to postpone until next March the retirement from the army of conscripts whose terms expire in December.

The War Office issued a statement saying the attack by troops under Gen. Mah, loyal Chinese Nationalist, came after Mah and his staff, in conference with the Japanese consul at Tsitsihar and several Japanese army officers, had agreed to permit Japanese repair men of the South Manchurian Railway to repair the Nonni River bridge.

This bridge, a part of the Chinese operated Taonan-Anganchi Railway, had been dynamited by Mah's forces to prevent an advance by a rival Chinese independent General, Chang Hsi-peng, who was seeking control of the Tsitsihar district, 16 miles to the north.

Importance of Railroad.

The Taonan-Anganchi railway, built by Chinese with Japanese capital, is of special importance to the Japanese because it serves as a feeder to the Japanese-operated south Manchurian line.

Despite the War Office declaration that Gen. Mah had consented to the repair operations the statement said the Chinese opened fire late yesterday during a fog when the Japanese troops, stationed there to guard the repair crew, started across the span.

W. Cameron Forbes, American Ambassador who has been on leave in the United States, arrived at Yokohama and immediately arranged to confer with Baron Kidjuro Shidehara, the Foreign Minister, concerning Manchuria.

CANADIAN OFFICER TELLS OF 7 YEARS OF RED PLOTTINGS

Sergt. Leopold, Who Posed as Communist and Became Secretary of Organization, Testifies.

9 MEN ON TRIAL FOR CONSPIRACY

Their Supposed Comrade Faces Them in Court in Toronto—Says Moscow Directed Activities.

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—Serg. John Leopold, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who laid aside his uniform, dressed as a workingman and joined a band of Canadian Communists to get evidence against them, testified today concerning their international activities.

The Sergeant so convinced the Communists of his sympathy with their movement that they made him secretary of one of the party's branches where for seven years he gathered evidence against nine leaders of the Canadian Communist party now on trial for conspiracy.

On the witness stand again today, Leopold said the Canadian Communists had divided their organization into an "A" party which was to be kept "respectable and within the law" and a "Z" party which was to be an underground group for illegal activities.

He linked the Canadian Communists not only to Russia but also to the United States.

In 1922, he testified, a convention of the "Z" party was raided in Chicago and 17 men arrested. Directly thereafter, a warning to destroy all "Z" party correspondence was issued. Soon after the raid, he testified, word was received that William Z. Foster of Chicago, who had connections with the Canadian group, was arrested.

Instructions From Moscow.

Sergt. Leopold said instructions from Moscow were received by various branches of the Communist party in Canada via Germany. He submitted documents showing Canadian Communists were invited to send students to attend a two-year course at Lenin University, Moscow, and several Canadians were sent.

He declared the Communist Internationale in Moscow had supplied $3000 to start the Canadian movement, but when the membership grew to nearly 5000 "Moscow felt the movement should be self-supporting."

One of the documents said a combination of legal and illegal work was necessary and called refusal to carry on illegal work "treason to the revolutionary cause."

"The proletariat must seize control by an armed uprising," another said. A third called for contributions from Canadian members and promised receipts from Moscow.

The main purpose of the party, he testified, was "to stir up discontent and strife; to foment and develop grievances; real or imaginary; and where they do not exist, to create them."

The party, as a world-wide group, he said, "plans by force and violence to overthrow not only our own Government but all other governments."

Cipher Code Used.

He said a cipher code was used by various units of the Internationale in their communications. It was arranged by taking a page from a publication and indicating what letters were meant by numbers, "5-7" referring to the fifth letter of the seventh line.

He said in 1929 he left the Communist ranks, went into hiding and began sorting the mass of documents he had collected. Many of the communications, he said, he had been forced to destroy upon orders from his superiors in the Communist ranks, but before obeying he had made copies of them.

For the last two years he had been preparing for the trial.

The defendants are charged with being members of an unlawful association and with seditious conspiracy. They face long prison terms if convicted.

All the defendants were released on $15,000 bail each, after agreeing not to take part in any demonstration against the trial. Two printers were convicted of contempt of court and fined $25 each for printing handbills calling for such a demonstration.

Dent, a Republican worker. Only one took effect, striking below the shoulder and ranging downard to penetrate a lung. At the hospital it was said Denhardt was expected to recover. Dent went to a police station and surrendered.

Denhardt, who is a World War veteran, formerly served as Adjutant-General of the Kentucky National Guard, and is an attorney and former newspaper publisher. He is 55 years old.

Dent, who was one of four men named in warrants charging shooting in a suburban precinct Tuesday, said Denhardt had approached him on the street today and made a motion toward his pocket. Election cards in Dent's pocket saved him from a bullet wound Tuesday. He said he feared he would be shot and fired as quickly as he could when he saw Denhardt. Dent had obtained a peace warrant yesterday for Denhardt, but it had not been served. The trouble yesterday was said to have been due to political rivalry between Dent and Henry Hines, a Democrat, former State inspector and examiner and former Police Judge here. Hines was charged yesterday with malicious shooting and carrying a concealed deadly weapon.

EMMERSON URGES TAX REFORM TO AVERT STATE BANKRUPTCY

itiative in the absence of any other effort along this line, the door is open to anyone who believes he has a better plan," Gov. Emmerson told the Assemblymen. "Purposely, the call for the extraordinary session has been made broad enough to permit the introduction not only of the bills proposed by the committee, but also any other revenue measure."

"In your deliberations," he added, "you should be guided by the general principle that there must be no increase in the burden of taxation, but that there should be a better distribution of that burden. It is my firm belief that governments must curtail their expenditures and that reecipts from new methods of taxation be used to reduce property taxes."

Gov. Emmerson asserted that Cook County's financial plight "has served to emphasize" that its problems are not the same as those of the rest of Illinois and urged that the legislators give the problem of "home rule" for the county and Chicago their earnest consideration.

The Assembly advanced 10 noncontroversial bills to second reading. Both houses recessed until next Thursday, when perfunctory sessions will be held to advance the 10 bills another step. A further recess was agreed upon until Nov. 17 to give Douglas Sutherland, Secretary of the Governor's Conference Committee, time to have all of the 27 bills outlined by the committee ready.

Members of the Governor's Conference Committee were perturbed over statements of opposition to the income tax recommended. It was explained that the income tax as outlined would not affect the small home owner or the farmer by reason of an off-set feature.

GIRL SETS AIR RECORD, ENGLAND TO CAPE TOWN

With Co-Pilot She Makes Flight in 5 1-2 Days—Cuts 24 Hours From Mark.

By the Associated Press.

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, Nov. 5.—Peggy Salaman, 19-year-old British aviatrix, landed here today after a flight from England in which she cut a day from the previous record set by the late Glen Kidston, noted sportsman, last April.

Miss Salaman and her co-pilot, Gorden Store, landed the girl's small plane at 7:40 a. m. and calculated their unofficial time at five and a half days. Kidston's time was six and a half days. The previous record had been nine days. Kidston was killed in a plane crash in May.

The girl left Kimberley on the last leg of her flight four hours and 20 minutes before she landed here. The distance is 500 miles. A large crowd had gathered at the airdrome when she arrived and she received a rousing welcome.

Miss Salaman became interested in flying a year ago when she tired of social activities. The plane she flew was a gift from her mother, who did not know it would be used on such a flight. Miss Salaman kept her plans secret until just before she took off last Wednesday from the Lympne Airdrome.

Her costume for the flight consisted of a white wool sweater and a pair of white trousers. She also had an evening gown which she said she could not resist the temptation to include, at the last minute, so she could "dress up" when she reached here.

DEMOCRAT GETS RECORD PLURALITY IN NEW JERSEY

By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 5.—Complete tabulation of the vote shows A. Harry Moore, Democrat, has a plurality of 239,379 votes in Tuesday's election for the governorship. Moore carried 17 of the State's 21 counties, to pile up a total of 740,605 votes, as against 501,226 for his Republican opponent, David Blair Jr.

The Democratic candidate's vote sets a new record for New Jersey pluralities, exceeding the late Dwight W. Morrow's figure of 200,490 when he was elected Senator, and the previous record for the governorship, that of Gov. Larson, Republican, whose plurality was 152,277 in 1928.

Moore carried into office with him 34 members of the State Assembly, thereby taking control of the lower legislative body away from the Republicans. The Assembly membership is 60.

The total vote polled by the major party candidates was 1,241,831, or about two-thirds of the voters registered in 1930.

RAILWAY UNIONS WANT MAXIMUM WORK HOURS CUT

Leaders to Ask Congress to Limit Time on Job to 12 Instead of 16 as a Safety Measure.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5. — The Railway Labor Executives' Association has decided to ask Congress to lower the number of hours of continuous work permitted on railroads from 16 to 12.

The association, representing 21 labor unions, with 1,250,000 members, reaffirmed yesterday that it is not opposed to railway consolidation if the interests of the workers are protected.

D. B. Robertson, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' Association, has been notified that the organization's proposal for a conference with railroad heads had been referred to a committee of three.

Amendment of the hours of service law enacted in 1908 would be requested as a safety measure, Robertson said. He said it would relieve unemployment to some extent. Under the proposal, dispatchers would be limited to six hours' continuous work instead of eight.

Since the enactment of the service law, Robertson said, the speed of trains has increased considerably, they have become much larger and greater care is required of the employes. All these factors, he said, made it undesirable for men to be on the job too long.

Favorable Report Assured on Economic Council Bill.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—A favorable report on the La Follette bill to set up a national economic council as a governmental agency was assured today from the manufacturers' subcommittee, which has been holding hearings on it daily for two weeks. It will be one of the first bills reported when Congress reconvenes in December.

The measure has been indorsed by a long line of witnesses before the committee, including many prominent industrialists, labor leaders and economists. Virtually no opposition has been expressed, though a few of those who testified expressed some doubt of its effectiveness. Most were enthusiastic over its possibilities.

La Follette, who in addition to heading the committee was author of the bill, said he would push for action on the measure in the Senate.

He explained that his bill contemplated a council without power to enforce its findings, but purely advisory in nature.

New Clash in Manchuria; Japan Sends More Troops

Manchuria, publishes what it describes as a secret declaration by Baron Tanaka when he was Premier of Japan in 1927 that Japan must crush the United States to capture China.

This document, says Pravda, bears out its charge that Japan's present action in Manchuria is a long planned part of its effort to extend the Japanese hegemony in the Pacific.

"Japan's aggressive tendencies will not end with China," says the newspaper. "It has designs on the Philippines, the Malayan Archipelago, Guam, Tahiti, Samoa and Australia."

Then the editorial quotes the alleged Tanaka statement which it says was recently published in China. For its own protection, this document says, "Japan must remove its difficulties in Eastern Asia by establishing a policy of blood and iron. If we intend to win control over China we must first crush the United States. To capture China we must also capture Manchuria and Mongolia."

The conflict in Manchuria, says Pravda, may presage a fight for a new division of the world, for it is inseparably linked with conflict among imperialist nations for control of the Pacific. The Japanese occupation is described as "the worst kind of aggression, typical of imperialistic policy, and an interlude for a new imperialistic war."

The only reason war has not already begun, says the newspaper, is because Soviet Russia is exercising a strong policy of peace.

Japan to Rebuild Bridges So It "Can Move Soya Beans."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Tokio has informed Washington that Japanese troops are going to rebuild Manchurian bridges so trains can move soya beans—not soldiers.

This explanation of the northward advance of Japanese soldiers in Manchuria was conveyed to Undersecretary Castle of the State Department by Ambassador Debuchi of Japan.

The Japanese emissary said in support of his contention that in a few days the Nonni River, over which the bridges are built, would be frozen over, thus making it unnecessary to have the bridges if the transportation of troops were intended.

The Japanese interest in the soya bean crop was explained by the fact that the Japanese-controlled South Manchurian railway depends for much of its revenue on movement of this Oriental food raised in Northern Manchuria. Japanese merchants and shipowners also have a financial interest as well as the Chinese farmers of Northern Manchuria.

The bridges on the Nonni River are on a branch line which is Chinese-owned, but Japanese hold heavy mortgages on it. The bridges were destroyed in military operations between contending Chinese factions. They are less than 25 miles south of Tsitsihar, an important strategic point in Northwest Manchuria, and are only a few miles from the Chinese Eastern Railway in which Russia has an interest.

JAPANESE DEMANDS MET, SAYS BRIAND

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Nov. 5.—The five demands made on China by Japan as essential conditions for the evacuation of Manchuria have been met and therefore Japanese troops should get out, Aristide Briand, chairman of the League of Nations Council, said in a note published yesterday.

On behalf of the Council, Briand called on the Japanese Government to carry out its promise, made to the Council in September, by moving its soldiers back into the railway zone as rapidly as security conditions permit.

In the note, which was sent to Kenkichi Yohizawa, Japan's delegate to the League of Nations, he pointed out that the Council voted, 13 to 1, 10 days ago, that Japan should evacuate. This action, he said, "still retains its full moral force."

Moreover, Briand said, the resolution of Sept. 30 calling for rapid evacuation—a resolution which received Japan's support—"retains its full executory force."

The First Four Demands.

In accepting the Council's recommendations, Briand declared, the Chinese Government has met the first four of Japan's fundamental demands, since the Council and Japan were in agreement on these points.

The four demands concern mutual repudiation of aggressive policy and conduct; respect for China's territorial integrity; suppression of all organized movements interfering with freedom of trade and stirring international hatred; and effective protection of the Japanese population in Manchuria.

A fifth point demanded "respect for the treaty rights of Japan in Manchuria." In this connection Briand asserted that Dr. Alfred Sze, China's spokesman, had acknowledged that "China is bound by the convenant of the League to scrupulous respect of all treaty obligations."

"It therefore appears to me," Briand continued, "that the Chinese Government has given to the council, on which Japan has a permanent representative, pledges which cover the various fundamental principles raised by the Japanese Government.

"Feeling of Confidence."

"In these circumstances I feel confident that the Japanese Government, being desirous of fulfilling the undertaking which it solemnly contracted under the terms of the resolution of Sept. 30, and which moreover it repeatedly confirmed by declarations during the last sessions of the council, will continue as rapidly as possible the withdrawal of its troops into the railway zone, and that it will thus be able to carry out that intention to the full in the shortest possible time."

In another note delivered to the league, Dr. Sze reinforced his charges that the Japanese army was tightening its grip on Manchuria.

The Japanese, he said, are attempting deliberately to substitute for the authority of the Chinese Government the rule of various groups and individuals set up by the Japanese themselves.

"The Japanese military are confiscating salt revenues and trying to divert them into the hands of puppet authorities set up by themselves," he declared.

Situation Called Grave.

"The serious harm to foreign interests need not be emphasized. It is further clear that this policy is a flat defiance of the council's recommendations and flagrant violation of the Covenant, the Pact of Paris and the Washington Nine-Power Treaty. The situation is of the utmost gravity."

In an accompanying memorandum Dr. Sze said the Japanese military authorities in Manchuria had tied up salt revenues since Sept. 18, that $672,000 in revenues had been taken by armed Japanese from the Provincial Government Bank at Newchang Oct. 26 and that "persons claiming to represent certain groups which have suddenly sprung up since the Japanese military occupation," have been demanding Government deposits at Changchun totaling $2,600,000.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 5.—Yesterday's fighting at the Nonni River bridge in Manchuria where 15 Japanese soldiers were killed began, according to the version circulated here, when the Chinese General Mah Chan-shan, refused to obey a Japanese order to withdraw his troops to a point 10 kilometers from the bridge.

Fifty Japanese soldiers crossed to the north bank of the river without meeting resistance and there took three Chinese pickets prisoner. There followed a conference between the Japanese Consul and the Chinese authorities at Tsitsihar at which it was agreed that everything would be done to avoid a clash.

The Japanese commander, however, the Chinese version maintains, demanded verbally that Gen. Mah's troops evacuate their position by noon. When the ultimatum expired 200 Japanese troops crossed the river and opened fire but were driven back.

Then, according to this report, the Japanese commander brought up bombing planes to assist the counter attack and these inflicted heavy casualties.

Chinese reports say two Japanese regiments have been sent to reinforce the Japanese commander and that important developments are likely.

He denied he had other trouble at the school and that his foster father was compelled to pay a $1000 bill of damages as a result of a drinking bout in which Francis and other students were said to have participated. Francis denied anything of the sort occurred.

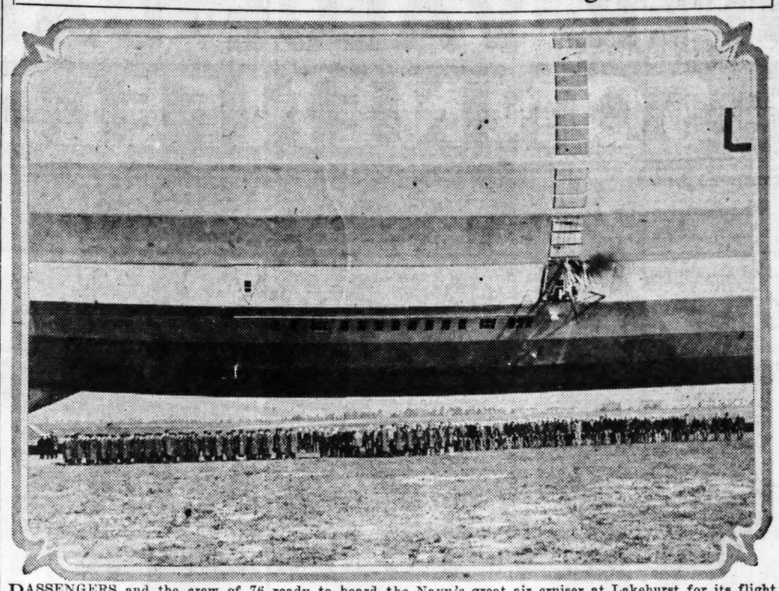

It developed he had named his own child Robert Eugene Francis, but the boy is known as Eugene. The witness declared the child was not named for Dr. Caulfield, and explained that Eugene's mother selected the name. "I did not know my own father's first name until after my son was born," he said.

The will contest suit and the petition attacking the adoption were filed by Mrs. Francis' father, August Brussman of Leesburg, Mo., three sisters and a brother who contend that they, with a sister, who did not join them, are the legal heirs. Since the filing of the suits Brussman died.

SENTENCING YOUNG MEN JUDGE FARIS' HARDEST TASK

Makes Comment as He Sends Two Drug Peddlers to Prison for 2½ Years.

Commenting that the task of sentencing young men was one of the hardest of his office, Federal Judge Faris today sentenced Joseph Roufa, 27 years old, and Vincent Marchesi, 20, to penitentiary terms of two and a half years each for violations of the Harrison narcotic act.

The two were convicted by juries of selling narcotics to Joseph Bova and J. W. Brown, paid informers, in August, 1930. Principal witnesses other than the informers were two Federal narcotic agents, who said they witnessed the sales. "Simply because of the youth of the defendants, I will not impose the maximum sentence," Judge Faris said.

WOMAN MOTORIST FAILS TO GO TO COURT AND IS FINED $1500

Charged With Careless Driving and Intoxication After Accident.

A woman docketed as Miss Varda Ustick, 3945 Magnolia avenue, was fined $1500 by default in police court yesterday on charges of driving when intoxicated and careless driving.

Judge Blaine assessed the maximum fines in two charges of careless driving and one of driving while intoxicated after the defendant failed to appear in court. Policemen testified they detected the odor of alcohol following a collision between her automobile and another machine at Grand boulevard and Chouteau avenue on Oct. 12, last. Robert Bayne, 3108 Minnesota avenue, and Miss Julia Shepard, 1514A South Grand boulevard, occupants of the second machine, were injured.

ALANSON HOUGHTON URGES REMISSION OF WAR DEBTS

Former Ambassador Declares Cancellation in Whole or Part Would Aid Economic Recovery.

By the Associated Press.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Remission of war debts, in whole or in part was advocated today by Alanson B. Houghton, former Ambassador to England and to Germany, in an address at the convocation exercises at Elmira College.

Such a move would stimulate the economic recovery of the world, he predicted. Otherwise, it was his belief the world would see a perpetuation of financial and industrial disorganization.

"Germany has been saddled with the burden of the war," said Houghton, "and the burden is proving too heavy. If the moratorium is not followed by permanent relief measures the collapse of Germany is almost certain. Our war debts amount to $1.80 a head a year. In normal conditions we should insist on payment. But such a sum is not worth consideration if by its remission, in whole or in part, we can hasten the economic recovery of the world."

BRUENING TO RESIST INFLATION

Defends German Policy Before Centrist Party.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—Chancellor Bruening, defending the Government's policy before the Centrist Party Executive Committee said today he would do his utmost to resist inflation and would not permit the depreciation of the mark under any circumstances.

"When other countries see what the Reich's economic position really is," he said, "and not as it would look through the fog of inflation, confidence in us will be restored. The world must be given the certainty that Germany will not engage in any political experiments."

FINDS CHARITY BURNS OLD SHOES FOR FUEL

Shoes gathered by the Goodwill Industries are burned for fuel, R. W. Adair, manager of the "Industries," said today after Melvin C. Leffman, a city smoke inspector, investigated complaints that the practice was causing excessive smoke and an odor in the vicinity of 1910 North Thirteenth street, headquarters of the organization. The Goodwill Industries is a private charitable organization for the rehabilitation and sale of discarded clothing and furniture. It is indorsed by the Community Council and the Chamber of Commerce.

Leffman found 40 sacks of shoes stacked around the furnace, in which shoes were being burned. A janitor said he received orders to burn the shoes from Adair. Wood is also used for fuel, the janitor said.

Adair explained that the shoes burned are "mismates," or footwear beyond repair. When his attention was called to the apparent good condition of some shoes in the sacks, Adair suggested that the "persons employed to sort the lot had not done a good job." The shoes in question were received from the Citizens' Committee on Unemployment Relief, Adair said.

Fred T. Rench, treasurer of the Goodwill Industries, said: "I do not believe that there is just cause for criticism in the burning of these shoes. Well-meaning persons frequently put an odd shoe, or footgear too badly worn to be repaired, in their donation of old clothes. It has been our practice to burn these shoes, but if to do so violates the smoke ordinance, the practice surely will be stopped."

Leffman left orders that the practice be discontinued, stating that the smoke and odor constituted a violation of city ordinance.

MAN WHO TURNED OFF GAS FOR ENTIRE TOWN SENTENCED

Gets Two Years for Common Law Offense of Criminal Nuisance at Hagerstown, Md.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Nov. 5.—There being no statute or city ordinance covering the offense, Benjamin F. Gift was sentenced yesterday to the House of Correction for two years on the old common law charge of "common criminal nuisance."

Gift, an employe of the City Gas & Light Co. for 22 years, admitted turning off the master valve controlling the entire supply Monday night in a fit of pique at being discharged. Attorneys said he had been drinking heavily and was intoxicated at the time. Hagerstown homes and industrial plants were without gas for nearly 12 hours.

Sentence was pronounced by Magistrate Richard Sweeney.

NEW YORK CLEARING HOUSE PUTS BAR ON 'OTHER LOANS'

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Members of the New York Clearing House, representing the principal Wall street banks, today formally took action to remedy the "other loan" situation, which has been widely regarded as a prominent factor in the stock market excesses of 1929.

Members of the Clearing House voted that they would no longer place call loans in the stock market for "others," which means, primarily, for individuals and corporations. This will tend to restrict the sources of funds for the stock market largely to the banks.

When nonbank funds were flowing in a torrent into the call loan market in 1929, banks complained that they were powerless to check the flow, which was constantly making credit more expensive for commercial purposes, both at home and abroad.

The vote of the Clearing House banks no longer to handle other loans does not entirely prevent the practice, however, since banks which are not Clearing House members, and private banking houses, may place loans for the account of corporations and individuals. Since the bulk of this business was done by the large banks, however, their decision is expected to restrict this practice.

ATTEMPTING HOTEL HOLDUP, ROBBERS FIGHT WITH POLICE

By the Associated Press.

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Nov. 5.—Three robbers early today shot the locks from money drawers in the office of the Elms Hotel here, then engaged in a fight with police, who arrived while the holdup was in progress. Hotel officials said the robbers were driven away by the police before obtaining any money.

Guests were aroused by the fight, in which more than 40 shots were fired. One of the officers used an automatic shotgun.

At the approach of the robbers, who lined up four persons in the lobby, Paul Leabo, assistant clerk, slipped to a telephone and summoned police.

When the officers arrived, the robbers ran from the lobby and entered their car, exchanging shots with the officers. The fleeing robbers outdistanced the police, who pursued them along Highway 69.

By the Associated Press.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., Nov. 5.—Harold Nymann, an airplane pilot, yesterday saw a Burlington passenger train speeding toward a burning trestle. He nosed his ship over the locomotive, banked sharply and flew along with the train, gesticulating to the engineer. The engineer brought his train to a halt a quarter of a mile from the bridge.

Passengers were brought into the city on special cars.

$100,000 FRAUD LAID TO ILLINOIS WOMAN WHO DIED

Mrs. Graubner, of Canton, Said to Have Got Money to Obtain Non-Existent Estate in Brazil.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Residents of Chicago, Peoria, Canton and other Illinois cities are thought to have paid $100,000 to Mrs. Louise Graubner who died recently in Canton, to help her collect an estate now declared to be fictitious.

Postal authorities of Peoria have been checking letters found among the woman's effects in an attempt to find an accomplice.

Attorney J. A. Hayes, who was retained by four clients to investigate the purported "South American estate," said he had learned it was non-existent. Three of the persons who invested $29,600 in the project, would be unable to recover anything, he said.

They are Mrs. Laurie Beam of Peoria, who said she was Mrs. Graubner's companion for several months and gave her $14,000; her son Howard of Canton, who said he paid her $10,000 cash and indorsed a $4000 note; Dr. Edward F. Addenbrooke of Chicago who lost $4600 through unpaid medical bills, and John H. Roberts of Chicago, a Loyola University medical student who said he turned over $1000 and persuaded one of his professors and a physician to aid Mrs. Graubner financially when she was ill in Woodlawn Hospital here a year ago.

Mrs. Graubner, who was about 55 years old, was a native of Sheldon's Grove, Schuyler County, long a resident of Canton, and lately of Chicago. She died Oct. 22 in St. Francis Hospital, Peoria.

Her story, according to the four victims, was that she was a friend of a Brazilian who left her $275,000 in a will, and she needed money for attorneys' fees in order to collect her share.

Mrs. Graubner produced letters and documents in order to convince his clients of her integrity, according to Hayes. Among them was one purporting to be signed by Judge Marcus Kavanaugh of Chicago who was described as administrator of the estate. Judge Kavanaugh pronounced the document a forgery. Hayes said documents which bore the letterhead of the Harris Bank & Trust Co. of Chicago also were found to be forged.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bonner of Canton recently filed suit in Circuit Court at Lewiston on a $1000 note given them by Mrs. Graubner, the only legal action that has developed thus far. Bonner said he lost $10,000 and also signed notes for other persons who were reached by Mrs. Graubner.

Mrs. Beam had become housekeeper of the Bell Hotel in Peoria as a result of her losses, Hayes said. She and her son persuaded some of their friends to share the "good fortune" of Mrs. Graubner.

Hayes said he questioned Mrs. Graubner Oct. 3, while she was in the Peoria Hospital because he was told she had used his name in promoting her plan. He said she gave him conflicting answers and finally ordered him out of the room.

U. S. Detective Tells How He Solved Apache Murder

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 5.—"Gradually through pieces of gossip and conversations I overheard I gained the whole story. After I had what I thought was the whole story I arrested Seymour. He was stolid, he denied everything. I worked on him for 24 hours. Finally I told him just how I thought he killed her. 'Well, you know it all—I might as well tell you,' he said."

Thus does J. A. Street, Department of Justice agent, stationed at El Paso, describe the climax of his investigation of the murder last July on the White River Apache reservation in Arizona, of Miss Henrietta Schmerler, Columbia University graduate who was on the reservation observing the manners and customs of the Apaches in anthropological research.

Street arrested and obtained a confession from Colney Seymour, 21 years old, Indian cowboy. In his confession Seymour said: "On the night of Aug. 31, Miss Schmerler was riding with me on my horse to an Indian dance. We came to a muddy draw in the road and both got off the horse to walk across. I assaulted her and when she fought I beat her with a rock and cut her throat with a knife to keep her from telling the white men what I had done."

Street is the Government's ace investigator of Indian cases. As a boy in New Mexico he learned several Indian dialects and he is so familiar with Indian ways that he often passes for an Indian. He has had years of experience. He helped solve the Osage Indian murders in Oklahoma in 1925. He was Sheriff of Quay County, New Mexico, for 10 years prior to joining the Department of Justice.

Working on the Schmerler murder, Street lived two months with the White River Apaches as one of them. Getting data from the Apaches was difficult, Street said.

"Most of them knew I was an officer," he explained. "They were scattered all over the reservation rounding up cattle. I posed as a cattle buyer and drifted around their camp fires listening to gossip. There were many of them who knew who killed the girl and how it was done but they wouldn't talk.

"Finally, I got an idea of who was the guilty man and how the murder had been done. I put my story up to him and he finally confessed."

third of the entire estate, made in Mr. Bixby's will, is rendered void by her prior death.

With respect to the trusts created for the two daughters, the will goes into great detail as to the powers of the trustees, their powers and duties being specified under 18 heads. They have power to sell, invest, take part in corporate liquidations, consolidations and reorganizations, exercise options of conversion, organize new corporations, determine whether stock dividends are to be treated as principal or income, determine what part of the estate's gross income shall be considered net income, and to divide or distribute assets in kind or convert them into cash, at their discretion. Inheritance taxes are to be paid as part of the cost of administration.

"My present preference in the matter of investments," the will states, "is for well seasoned and secured stocks. This preference is explained only for the information of the trustees." The will, as stated, was written four years ago, when stock values were unimpaired.

ROBBERS GET $261 IN HOLDUP

Two employes of the Granite City Ice & Fuel Co., Sixteenth street and Madison avenue, were robbed of $261 at 5 p. m. yesterday by two men, armed with revolvers, who fled in an automobile bearing Missouri license plates, in which two companions waited.

The robbers locked Ivan Harrison, cashier, and Miss Helen Winters, stenographer, in a rear room after taking the money. Harrison made his way out a rear door and pursued the robbers for a short distance in his machine, but failed to over take them.

3 WOMAN CONVICTS CAUGHT AFTER ESCAPE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 5.—Three women convicts who escaped last night from the women's department of the Missouri penitentiary here, by climbing over an eight-foot wire fence, were caught by prison guards at 1 o'clock this morning, five hours after the escape. They were hiding in a field about a mile from the prison.

The women are Mrs. Edna Murray, "kissing bandit" of Kansas City, serving 25 years for robbery, who escaped in May, 1927, and was returned to the prison last September; Mrs. Della Hazel, under two-year sentence from Laclede County for theft of an automobile, and Mary G. Hamel of Pettis County, under a 35-year sentence for participation in a bank robbery. Mrs. Murray was sent to the penitentiary in November, 1925, and her two companions were sent to the prison early this year.

The husbands of Mrs. Murray and Mrs. Hazel are in the penitentiary, Jack Murray sreving a 25-year sentence for robbery, and Floyd Hazel serving a two-year sentence for automobile theft.

Mrs. Murray's title of "kissing bandit" arose from a practice of offering to kiss robbery victims, after she and her husband had taken their money.

SEVERE GALE SWEEPS ENGLAND

At Least 3 Deaths; French, Scandinavian Coasts Also Hit.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—A gale which struck Great Britain and surrounding seas subsided late yesterday after causing at least three deaths, damaging property and delaying shipping.

Two or three small boats were smashed on the rocks along the coast and heavy rain led to serious flooding of parts of Wales and Lancashire. The French and Scandinavian coasts also were struck by the storm and shipping was forced to seek shelter. The wind reached a velocity of 75 miles an hour in some places in England.

GIVE GENEROUSLY OR FACE A DOLE, WARNS C. M. HAY

Speaking for $3,000,000 Campaign He Says the Well-to-Do Should Contribute Liberally.

Charles M. Hay, former Democratic nominee for United States Senator, speaking last night in behalf of the $3,000,000 campaign of the Community Fund and Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment which begins next Monday, told members of the Optimist Club that unless relief needs are met by generous voluntary contributions the people will quickly demand adoption of some system that will make contributions compulsory.

"Men everywhere protest against the dole, or any other form of Government aid," he said. "If you would avoid coming to this, voluntary relief must be general. It is not fair to load the burden on the generous few. It is not fair to men and women of modest means to burden them unduly while those who can give in large figures fail to do so."

The Community Fund will seek $2,250,000 for the needs of 51 social agencies, and the Citizens' Committee, an emergency organization created by Mayor Miller last winter, $750,000 for the five established agencies that co-operate with it, and the three it maintains directly—the clothing and employment bureaus, and the joint application bureau.

"Whatever plan is adopted," Hay said, "must succeed. It is neither decent, human, nor safe to let human beings remain in distress in a land of plenty. If men will not give for charity's sake, then thay had better give for caution's sake."

An unusual and perhaps unprecedented element in the situation, Hay said, is the fact that those in distress are mainly honest men and women who want above everything else a chance to make their own living, but cannot find jobs.

"All of us know," he continued, "that in the midst of distress there is so much wheat that in some places it is strewn on the roads for sand, so much milk and butter that the killing of every tenth cow has been advocated, so much cotton that some would leave every third row unharvested. And in the midst of this, there are men, women and children with empty stomachs and well-nigh bare backs."

The requirements of relief work beyond furnishing food, clothing and shelter, were outlined by Robert W. Kelso, director of the Community Fund, to members of the Co-operative Club.

"You don't begin to begin with the mere giving of food," he said. "First you give food, clothing and shelter. Then you find out what has to be done, and how to do it. We have 51 agencies for these purposes, and there isn't a supernumerary in the bunch; they are all on the team."

Several large dairies, during the campaign, will place around bottles of milk delivered to homes paper collars, on which appears the head of an infant, framed in a red heart, and the slogan, "For their sake."

Red hearts, bearing the campaign slogan, "Open your heart," will be displayed throughout the drive in office buildings, hotels, stores, street cars, automobile windshields, on the coat lapels of those who have contributed, and from overhead wires in the downtown district.

A flaming heart, outlined in tube lights, will be seen in the air every night, attached to an airplane of the Thirty-Fifth Division Air Service, Missouri National Guard.

Clothing Bureau to Occupy New Quarters.

New quarters for the clothing bureau of the Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment will be opened Monday at 2218 Locust street, in a building formerly occupied by the Schnure Motor Co. The clothing bureau now is at 1312 Pine street.

The new building was chosen to provide more space and a better arrangement of clothing. The first floor will be used as a waiting room and stock room, and the second floor for a shoe shop, a sorting room and pressing and sewing rooms. The telephone number of the bureau, CEntral 3355, will remain the same. Mrs. Irvin Bettman is director of the bureau.

TRUCK DRIVER BOUND TO TREE; 180 GALLONS OF MILK DUMPED

Freeing Himself, Collector for Pevely Co. Reports to Sheriff; Man Held for Inquiry.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CARLINVILLE, Ill., Nov. 5. — Earl Howerton of Plainville was bound to a tree yesterday in a field near Arbuckle Corners by five men who dumped 180 gallons of milk, collected for Pevely Dairy Co., from his truck after it was halted by a steel cable stretched across a bridge.

In half an hour Howerton freed himself and reported to Sheriff Fries of Carlinville. Earl Hunt was arrested and identified by Howerton as having stopped him a quarter-mile from the bridge and asked for help in starting an automobile, which, Howerton said, appeared to have nothing wrong with it.

Hunt was held for investigation, but authorities were unable to learn from him or Howerton the identity of the men who bound the driver.

Citations under a Federal injunction against violence, against all offenders who could be identified, were ordered by Federal Judge FitzHenry Tuesday at Springfield.

JUDGE DEMANDS CHURCH CARE FOR CHILDREN OF BOOTLEGGERS

MUSKOGEE, Ok., Nov. 5.—Federal Judge Robert Williams refused today to sentence Mr. and Mrs. John Whitfield, bootleggers, until "good christian people" arrange to care for the pair's children.

"These churches think they have done their duty when they complain against bootleggers and have sent them to jail," the Judge remarked. "But they should know that taking care of children is more important."

MAJ.-GEN. ELLIOTT DIES, ONCE HEAD OF MARINES

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Major-General George F. Elliott, retired, who commanded the United States Marines from 1903 until 1910, died yesterday. Elliott moved to New Hampshire when a boy. He received an appointment to the military academy in 1863, but scholastic troubles with French later put him on the probation list. He took an oral examination in the language with the understanding that his stay depended upon the result.

In the middle of the examination, President Grant and a number of other army officers, including Major-General George H. Thomas, entered the room excited and embarrassed. Elliott forgot what little French he knew. He was dropped from the rolls.

In 1870, to his surprise, he was notified that he was eligible for a commission in the marines, then numbering only a few hundred men. He passed this examination. Later he was told that he owed his place to Thomas.

"I don't know Gen. Thomas," said Elliott.

"He saw an examination once in which you failed," was the reply, "and said he liked 'the way that young fellow had failed.'"

Elliott distinguished himself during the Spanish-American War and in the Philippines. He is survived by his widow and a daughter, Mrs. Harold Reisinger, wife of a Colonel in the marines.

FILIPINO CONFERS WITH HURLEY

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Commissioner Pedro Guevara of the Philippines called on Secretary of War Hurley today and discussed the question of Philippine independence.

"We discussed the Philippine question very extensively, from the political and economic angles," Guevara said. "We have not come to any conclusion, with the exception that Secretary Hurley assured me he will give every friendly consideration to the Philippine situation." Guevara said he urged that the administration announce a definite program relative to the future status of the islands.

STRUCK DOWN BY AUTO, RUN OVER AND KILLED

Charles A. Timke, Driver Says, Stepped Into Path From Behind Parked Car.

Charles A. Timke, 63 years old, 4118 North Kingshighway, was killed last night when struck by an automobile at Natural Bridge and Shreve avenues.

Charles Kohl, 3536 Victor street, told police he was driving east in Natural Bridge when Timke stepped from behind a parked machine into the path of his automobile. Kohl's automobile passed over Timke's body, and he was dead when an ambulance arrived.

This death brought the number of motor vehicle fatalities in the city since Jan. 1 to 141, as compared with 131 on the corresponding date last year.

ANOTHER CHICAGO 'PUBLIC ENEMY' FACES DEPORTATION

No. 4, Known as Capone's Chief Bomb Tosser, Recently Lost Naturalization.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—James Belcastro designated by the Chicago Crime Commission as "Public Enemy No. 4," is under investigation in the Government's deportation campaign. Arrested yesterday by detectives in his West Side butcher shop, the gangster was turned over to Federal operatives who later released him under $2500 bond to appear for further questioning.

Belcastro, reputed to be Al Capone's chief bomb tosser, was once indicted for allegedly heading a "bomb trust." He also was indicted for murder in the slaying of Octavus Granady, Negro politician, during the 1929 election and several times tried for minor offenses.

Murray W. Garsson, Special Assistant Secretary of Labor, said Belcastro was naturalized in 1922 after stating falsely that he never had been arrested. For the falsehood, he said, the gangster's naturalization was revoked recently.

Lawrence Mangano, Capone's reputed West Side overseer, also is held for investigation with a view to deportation. Another Capone henchman, Tony (Mops) Volpe, has been ordered deported, but is fighting the case.

Garsson said about 700 persons in Chicago were under investigation in the Government's deportation campaign.

MAN TAKEN FROM MOTOR BOAT AFTER NINE DAYS ADRIFT DIES

Brother-in-Law Who Was With Him on Open Atlantic Is in Serious Condition.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The nine-day adventure of Irving Tuchyner adrift with a companion in a frail motor boat on the Atlantic, ended in his death yesterday in Staten Island hospital, to which he was taken Tuesday night.

Tuchyner, did not recover consciousness after being picked up by a coast guard cutter. His brother-in-law, David Warshauer, still in a critical condition, gave the details of the plight in which the pair had been since Oct. 25, when the engine of their outboard motor craft failed and they drifted helplessly in a gale which blew them 125 miles out to sea. They had oars, but no oarlocks and rowing was out of the question. They suffered from sleeplessness, cold, thirst and starvation. Several liners passed far down on the horizon their distress signals were unseen. They caught rain drops in an empty gasoline can to drink.

A boatswain's mate on the coast guard cutter sighted the little boat bobbing on the waves. After some difficulty the revenue craft ran alongside. The men were found under a tarpaulin.

While they had little hope of rescue, Warshauer, who is the father of one son, and Tuchyner, who left two small boys, agreed that if only one were saved he would care for both families.

Pacific Liner Kills Whale.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Nov. 5.—The new Dollar liner President Hoover steamed into Havana harbor yesterday bringing a tale of having killed a whale in the Pacific Ocean. The crew said the liner's prow caught the creature amidships. No damage was done the ship, but the engines had to be reversed to shake off the whale. The vessel continued to New York.

"REAL COFFEE THAT LETS YOU SLEEP"

DAVIS ESTATE GETS RIGHT TO FILE FORECLOSURE SUIT

Permission was granted by Circuit Judge Hartmann today to the Davis Estate, Inc., to file a foreclosure suit to recover 192 acres of land on Ladue road and Lafon avenue, in Clayton and University City. The suit would be filed at Clayton against Sheriff Strodtman and John B. Edwards, receivers for the West Clayton Realty Co., one of the allied companies of the E. Davis Realty and Mortgage Co., which is in receivership.

The Davis Estate is a holding company formed by the family of the late John T. Davis and is not connected with the E. Davis company. The estate, the Court was told, sold this land to Walter Shields, as agent, for $564,000 in 1925. Payment was to be made in installments for five years. Shields, it was stated, assigned the equity to the West Clayton company. The Davis Estate claims that only $48,225 has been paid on the purchase price, and that $732,628 in principal and interest is due and that the purchasers have failed to pay certain general and special taxes.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY JAHNCKE OF NAVY TO BE HERE SUNDAY

In Connection With Naming Chicago-New Orleans Air Line the "La Salle Route."

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest Jahncke, Miss Adele Jahncke, daughter of the Secretary, and John Charles Thomas, baritone, will stop at Lambert-St. Louis Field Sunday morning on the way from Chicago to New Orleans in connection with the naming of American Airways' Chicago-St. Louis-New Orleans service the "La Salle Route."

The "La Salle Route" is named in honor of Sieur de La Salle, explorer and founder of the territory of Louisiana.

The dedication ceremony will be held at Chicago with Miss Jahncke christening a plane. A brief ceremony arranged by the Chamber of Commerce Air Board will be held at Lambert Field at 10:15 o'clock. SAYS BEST QUAIL PROSPECTS ARE IN NORTHERN COUNTIES

State Game Commissioner Also Recommends Hunting Grounds on Western Border.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 5.—Agricultural counties north of the Missouri River and counties on the western border of the State show best prospects for quail shooting this season, John H. Ross, State Game and Fish Commissioner, said. The season in Missouri opens Nov. 10.

"When the season opens hunters should expect to find a satisfactory number of birds in most sections, although there was a shortage last year because of the drouth," Ross said.

"There are many quail in the Ozark border counties, but hunting them requires a different method than hunting in the open country."

Ross said more than 70 counties have reported a large quail crop this season. Five reported practically no quail.

The season on quail is closed in five Missouri counties by local option. They are, Atchison, Harrison, Daviess, Cass and Johnson.

The daily bag limit is 10. No more than 15 may be had in possession at one time.

HIGHLAND, ILL., HUNTERS GET TWO MOOSE ON CANADIAN TRIP

HIGHLAND, Ill., Nov. 5.—C. J. Hug, J. G. Bardill and F. J. Leutwiler have returned from Canada with the heads of two bull moose they shot on a three-week hunting trip in the Ontario region.

They hunted for a week without success. Then, on advice of an Indian trapper they met, they went about 16 miles to a small creek, where Bardill missed his first shot at a moose. The next morning Hug fired from a canoe and dropped a moose. Bardill dropped one of three moose he came upon as he and his guide were rounding a sharp bend in a creek. Leutwiler wounded a moose, but it managed to get away.

The moose heads are being mounted for exhibition at the State and Trust Bank. Hug will show motion pictures of the trip at a Chamber of Commerce meeting.

Reports Loss of $500 Watch.

Mrs. William Fuetterer, 4814 Margaretta avenue, reported that while shopping downtown yesterday she lost a platinum wrist watch valued at $500. The watch is set with 20 small diamonds.

$174,729 PLEDGED FOR ARCHBISHOP'S FUND FOR RELIEF

53 Per Cent of All Except Nine Parishes Solicited by Workers in Catholic Charity Campaign.

The amount includes $24,800 in special gifts and $149,929 reported up to last night by 116 parishes which have solicited about 53 per cent of prospective contributors. No reports have been received from nine parishes.

The fund, to be spent through 42 Catholic charities, is being sought this week by 12,000 volunteers in a house-to-house canvass of St. Louis and the county. No goal was set, the Archbishop holding that there can be no bounds to charity and that the need must be met at whatever cost.

In a statement last night he said the urgent need for relief was the immediate cause of the appeal. "We want this made plain," he said. "The funds collected will be spent through the St. Vincent de Paul Society and kindred agencies engaged in relief work. The total amount received and the order of its allocation will be given full publicity."

The Rev. John J. Butler, director general of the campaign, warned against giving contributions to unauthorized persons. Reports have been received, he said, of telephone requests for donations, although no solicitation is being made by telephone. The volunteer solicitors have identification cards signed by the pastors of their parishes, or by Father Butler.

Dispensary Work Described.

The work of the dispensary at 1509 Chouteau avenue, maintained by the Sisters of St. Mary, was described in a radio talk yesterday by the Rev. Leo Steck. The dispensary is one of the charities which will participate in the fund. Medical or surgical care was given last year, he said, to 45,068 patients without charge; 18,322 prescriptions were filled and medicine which cost $8611 was given free to the poor; 64,909 homeless men were fed, and 16,400 baskets of food distributed. "Of those treated absolutely free at the dispensary," he said, "46 per cent were members of some Protestant church."

Former Congressman William L. Igoe, president of St. Vincent de Paul Society, described its operations. It has, he said, 4000 members and 92 conferences in St. Louis and the county, and in the year which ended Sept. 30 aided 4163 families, consisting of 14,570 individuals, expending $206,000.

"The conferences meet each week to discuss problems of families under their care," he said. "At each meeting each member makes a donation to the conference. When persons in need are reported to the society, immediate relief is given if that is necessary, and then two members visit that family at least each week until it is able to take care of itself. We not only provide food, clothing and shelter, but endeavor to secure employment, supply medical attention, and in every way assist the family to become self-sustaining. It is a fundamental rule of the society that in its relief work it will not make any distinction because of race, color or creed."

Sums Raised by Parishes.

Contributions of $1000 or more have been reported by 29 parishes in the city and 10 in the county. They are:

Cathedral of St. Louis, $23,771; Holy Family, $2141; Immaculate Conception, $3543; Blessed Sacrament, $4840; Holy Name, $1116; Holy Trinity, $1665; Our Lady of Perpetual Help, $2658; Our Lady of Sorrow, $2096; Resurrection, $1200; St. Anthony of Padua, $2586; St. Augustine, $2106; St. Barbara, $1211; St. Cecelia, $1519; St. Cronan, $1207; St. Edward, $1645; St. Engelbert, $2942; St. Francis de Sales, $1614; St. James, $1175; St. Margaret, $4856; St. Mark, $1842; St. Mary Magdalene, $3552; St. Matthew, $1564; St. Philip Neri, $1352; St. Pius, $5013; St. Roch, $5350; St. Rose, $4500; St. Theresa, $2191; St. Thomas of Aquin, $1472, and St. Wencelaus, $1115.

Those in the county: SS. John and James, $1408; St. Peter, $1764; Annunziata, $1079; Immaculate Conception, $1706; St. Paul, $1145; St. Luke, $1800; All Saints, $1607; Christ, the King, $1880; Our Lady of Lourdes, $12,090, and Holy Redeemer, $4051.

Castoria, you know, is made especially for children's delicate needs. It is a pure vegetable preparation; contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics of any kind.

It is mild and gentle enough to relieve a young infant's colic pains, yet is an effective regulator for children of school age.

When your baby is upset and unable to sleep, or has a little cold or fever, it is a wise precaution to give him the gentle but sure regulative help of Castoria. With regulation come relaxed comfort and restful sleep.

Keep a bottle always on hand. Children like the taste of real Castoria—which always has the name, Chas. H. Fletcher, on the package.

Chas. H. Fletcher.

HERMAN TIPTON NAMED AS HABITUAL CRIMINAL

Cuckoo Gang Leader Faces Two Years in Prison Under Charge.

Herman Tipton, Cuckoo gang leader, was charged with carrying concealed weapons and with being a habitual criminal in a warrant issued today by Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller.

If convicted under this warrant Tipton will be sentenced to two years in the penitentiary, the maximum punishment, which is mandatory in the conviction of a habitual criminal.

Tipton and two companions were arrested by detectives last night at Compton and Park avenues after a search of their automobile disclosed a loaded revolver and automatic pistol.

The gang leader's companions were booked as Joseph Mestres, 1019 South Thirteenth street, and John Killian, 4028 Flad avenue. The pistol was found under the driver's seat and the revolver on the floor nearby. The concealed weapon warrant was issued against Tipton because the weapons were near him.

The Circuit Attorney took under advisement application for a warrant against Mestres, who was sitting with Tipton. Killian was sitting in the back seat, and it was stated no warrant would be issued against him.

Tipton has been picked up by police 118 times, and in 1921 pleaded guilty of robbery, being sentenced to two years in the penitentiary, his only conviction. His last arrest previous was in connection with the bombing of a handbook establishment in the Title Guaranty Building, with which he is associated.

Herman Tipton is a brother of Roy Tipton, now serving two years in Missouri penitentiary for robbery following his parole from a 15-year sentence in Federal prison for mail robbery in connection with the Egan gang.

Mestres has been arrested only for traffic violations, and Killian eight times for questioning.

LONG ATTACK OF RARE DISEASE FATAL TO CHICAGO MERCHANT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5. — Charles Netcher, 38 years old, president of the Boston Store, died last night following an 18 months' fight to rid himself of an attack of malta or undulant fever, a disease once fairly common in the Mediterranean region, but compartively rare in the United States.

When told he was suffering from the disease, probably due to drinking milk from an infected cow, he sought untiringly for a cure. He spent some weeks in Europe and finally remained several weeks in the Johns Hopkins University clinic in Baltimore. When told at Johns Hopkins that there was no hope for recovery, he returned here.

Netcher was the son of the late Charles Netcher, who founded the department store, and Mrs. Mollie Netcher Newbury, chairman of the board of the store. He was a brother-in-law of Constance Talmadge, moving picture actress, who married Townsend Netcher.

O K'S SERVICE BY PUBLICATION OF ORDER AGAINST SHERWOOD

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The Hofstadter Legislative Committee has obtained permission from the Supreme Court for service by publication of an order which directs Russell T. Sherwood, described as the business agent of Mayor Walker, to defend himself here against contempt charges growing out of his failure to testify in the city inquiry.

Service by publication takes seven weeks and meanwhile officials hope Sherwood will be served personally. He is now thought to be on his way toward the Pacific Coast, having left San Antonio, Tex., Sunday.

PASTORALE TO THE WAR DEAD

Italy Suggests That Composition Be Played Christmas Eve.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Italy wants American musicians to join in an international contest to compose a Christmas pastorale commemorating the World War dead.

The winning composition will be broadcast around the world by radio on Christmas eve, together with the tolling of the famous "Bell of the Fallen Heroes." The great bell which hangs in an old castle at Rovereto, Italy, overlooking former battlefields, is tolled each evening in honor of the men of all nations who died in the World War, and is rung in special tribute on the American Memorial day.

Among the inscriptions on it is one by Gen. John J. Pershing which reads:

"Toll ye eternally our message of love and gratitude to the comrades who gave their all that the principles of liberty and justice might not perish."

HACKENSACK, N. J., Nov. 5.—Bernt Balchen, trans-Atlantic flyer and pilot for Admiral Byrd on the flight to Little America, today became a citizen of the United States. His wife, Sorlie, also received citizenship.

CHILDREN TO TAKE PART IN ARMISTICE DAY PARADE

Purpose Is to Further "Dream of Warless World," and Honor Soldier Dead.

Five high school bands and children of 20 churches and religious organizations will participate in an Armistice day parade next Wednesday, Nov. 11, planned, as explained by Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman of Temple Israel, to honor those who died in the World War and to further "their dream of a warless world."

The tomb of the Unknown Soldier will be represented on one of the 20 floats. Second will present a tribute to the Gold Star mothers, and others will illustrate the formation of international friendships, the cost of war in property and lives, and other aspects of the theme.

The parade will begin at 10 a. m. at Washington boulevard and Kingshighway, and march east on Washington to Fourth street, south to Olive street and west to the Public Library for a brief memorial program. The bands will play the national anthem. President Hoover's Armistice day proclamation will be read, and a prayer will be offered by Bishop Scarlett.

The other three were carried out dead Tuesday night, a few hours after the explosion. The bodies of Charles Frye, 31 years old, fire boss, and James Hobbs, 38, timberman, were found after a 24-hour search.

TELEGRAPHIC TYPEWRITERS TAKE 41 STRIKERS' JOBS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. — All American Cables, Inc., today announced it had installed telegraphic typewriters for its cable service between the United States and Latin American countries to take the place of 41 telegraph operators who are on strike. The company's officials said it was the first time they had used such apparatus for undersea cable communication although it has been in common usage for domestic telegraph service.

Experiments with the machines for cable service have been under way for some time, it was explained, but the walkout of operators several days ago in protest against a 10 per cent wage cut speeded installation.

When the company announced its reduction in wages, 42 operators went on strike. The employes were told that unless they returned to work by 6 o'clock last evening the machines would take their jobs. Only one man returned.

The telegraphic typewriter, instead of sending messages in code which requires an experienced operator, prints its communications in actual words and sentences and is operated very much like a typewriter. A telegraphic receiving machine simultaneously taps out the message on paper at the other end.

TO SELL WINE CONCENTRATES IN STORES, NOT IN HOMES

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Home distribution of its wine concentrates will be discontinued by Fruit Industries, Ltd, Donald Conn, managing director, said today that in the future concentrates would be sold only in stores. Previously agents had sold the products directly to homes and had given aid in bottling the grape juice which fermented to wine.

This action was taken, Conn said, partly as a result of the recent Kansas City Court decision in the Ukiah Grape Products Co. case and partly to avert further criticism of the Farm Board which has lent Fruit Industries $3,500,000.

Vine-Glo Concentrates, which will be discontinued and for which three other brands will be substituted, in the future may be bought in stores in gallon lots then must be prepared by the consumer himself.

Conn has recently been in conference with Farm Board officials and with Prohibition Director Woodcock.

Vine-Glo Concentrates, he said, constituted only 5 per cent of the organization's business. It also makes medical and sacramental wines besides jellies, fruit sauces and other grape by-products. Mrs. Mable Walker Willebrandt, former Assistant Attorney-General in charge of prohibition, is its general counsel. Conn consulted her today.

ADMITS MISUSE OF $24,000

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 5. — Charles A. Shera, 48 years old, of Oxford, O., vice president of the Oxford National Bank, signed a confession today in the presence of United States District Attorney Haveth E. Mau that he had misapplied $24,000 of the bank's funds during the last five years.

Shera was arraigned before Commissioner A. A. Siemon and pleaded guilty of violating the national banking act. He was ordered committed to jail at Dayton in default of $25,000 bond. National Bank Examiners H. M. Walker and Walter Price said they discovered the shortage last Saturday and reported the misapplied fund was covered fully by bonds and that the bank would not lose.

WHAT TO DO FOR

Sore Throat:

Any little soreness in the throat grows rapidly worse if neglected. Crush three tablets of Bayer Aspirin in some water, and gargle at once. This gives you instant relief, and reduces danger from infection. One good gargle and you can feel safe. If all soreness is not gone promptly, repeat. There's usually a cold with the sore throat, so take two tablets to throw off your cold, headache, stiffness or other cold symptoms. Bayer Aspirin relieves pain in neuralgia, neuritis, too. Use it freely; genuine aspirin does not hurt the heart.

NEGRO REALTY DEALER SEEKING SENATORSHIP FROM MISSOURI

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 4. — Pearl Abernathy, Negro real estate dealer of 4323 Enright avenue, St. Louis, today filed his declaration with Secretary of State Becker as candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator.

Abernathy is the father of Charles Y. Abernathy, kidnaper of 13-year-old Adolphus Busch Orthwein, who was seized at the entrance of the Huntleigh Village home of his father, Percy Orthwein, last New Year's eve, and was restored to his family on the following day largely through the efforts of the elder Abernathy. The kidnaper is now serving a term in the penitentiary here.

HUELVA, Spain, Nov. 5.—The entire police force of 500 men was suspended today under charges of having dealt too leniently with persons accused of bombing the telephone office.

ONLY ONE REPUBLICAN CHOSEN ALDERMAN IN NEW YORK

J. C. Baldwin III Will Have Small Voice in Affairs Against 64 Democrats.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Alderman Joseph Clark Baldwin III, representing Manhattan's "silk stocking" district, stands, as a result of Tuesday's election, the only Republican in New York City's entire legislative machinery next year. This year he has had three supporters. He was re-elected, but they were defeated.

He is the leader of the minority, and he himself will be the whole minority. That will make him a member of 13 committees. Baldwin has asked for permission to have his secretary represent him at some of the committee meetings.

A lone Republican among 64 Democrats, Baldwin is apparently destined to a rather inactive life. Baldwin can get no motion before the House unless he gets it seconded. He cannot demand a vote. He cannot dissent. Except in rare instances, he will be out of order if he opens his mouth at all.

J. W. GERARD ASSAILS DRY LAW

Ex-Envoy to Germany Says Change Would Inspire Confidence.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Amendment of the prohibition law and the Sherman anti-trust act were advocated by James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany, before the Economics Club last night.

"Prohibition has been a ghastly failure," the Democratic leader said. "To amend it would be more to inspire confidence than anything I know. A billion dollars a year is spent by American tourists in other countries to avoid this restraint." Gerard scored the anti-trust act as "an impossible barrier to American competition in the international market."

Floods in Cuba; Two Drowned.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Nov. 5.—Two women were drowned in floods which inundated a score of Cuban cities and towns and caused extensive damage to crops, railway lines and highways. The drownings occurred in Cienfuegos and Cifuentes.

An independent inquiry into the actual present value of the transportation facilities of the Public Service Co. and the People's Motorbus Co., irrespective of capitalization, book cost or rate-base valuation, was begun at a hearing held yesterday by the Special Transportation Committee of the Board of Aldermen of which Edward W. Wiehe is chairman.

The first evidence on the subject was developed by Cleveland A. Newton, special counsel of the committee, through questioning F. C. Belser, a public accountant associated with the firm of Price, Waterhouse & Co.

The committee is proceeding on the theory that to reach a settlement of the vexing transportation problem it is necessary to determine what the existing street railway and bus systems are worth as actual operating transportation agencies. This probably will involve consideration of the earning power of the companies, and future usefulness of the facilities in view of the rapid changes in transportation methods.

Comparative Figures Given.

Belser, whose firm was employed by the committee to make an analysis of the capital structure and financial operations of the transportation companies, gave figures for the book value, rate-making value, investment cost and actual cost to present owners, brought up to Dec. 31, 1930, but made it clear that these figures did not necessarily have any relation to actual present value for transportation purposes.

"I will not undertake to say that what the present owners paid for the street railway system is what it is worth," Belser said. "I don't know whether they paid too much or too little."

In computing the cost of the street railway system to present owners, Belser used the bid of $49,-101,000 accepted by the Federal Court at the receiver's sale in 1927, to which he added certain other obligations assumed afterward, subtracting more than $6,000,000 of cash and Government bonds taken over from the receiver.

Arbitrary Valuation.

Belser computed book value of the Public Service Co. at $73,993,-025 and of the People's Motorbus Co. at $1,345,638. As to the Public Service Co., he said this was purely an arbitrary figure.

"When the new company took over the property on Dec. 1, 1927, it opened its books at a total asset value of $75,000,000," said Belser. "Apparently it used that figure because that was what the company hoped to obtain from the Public Service Commission as a rate base. It does not necessarily have any relation to actual value."

The rate-making valuation of the Public Service Co., as fixed by the State Public Service Commission and brought up to date by Belser, was given as $65,244,154. To this was added $1,885,400 for the People's Motorbus Co., making a total of $67,129,554 for the combined system.

The investment cost of the two properties, that is, original cost, using Public Service Commission figures for the street railway system, was given as $60,008,392.

As having a bearing on the present value of the street railway system, but not necessarily conclusive, Newton had Belser compute the market value of the outstanding bonds and notes of the Public Service Co.

For bonds and notes of $25,759,-875 outstanding in the hands of the public, Belser found a market value of $12,094,542 as of last Oct. 19. This included $19,004,000 face value of 4 per cent first mortgage bonds at a market price of $47 on the $100; $3,758,000 5 per cent bonds at $30; $2,448,875 6 per cent gold notes at $30, and $549,000 real estate mortgage notes at par, there being no quotation available on these.

RUSSIA IN TRANSITION—No. 23

How Religiously Inclined Persons Are Restricted Under Soviet Rule; Many Churches Turned Into Clubs

Some Edifices Torn Down—Teaching of Religion in Schools Forbidden—Those Over 18 Can Attend Theological Courses.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., September.

DESPITE vehement communistic and governmental denials the Church is persecuted in Soviet Russia. Communism and organized religion are so fundamentally antagonistic that it could not be otherwise. For the time being, Communism has the upper hand over religion and is showing the same active intolerance to all religious denominations that the old creeds displayed toward each other when differences were much less fundamental.

Party leaders are greatly annoyed when an outsider insists that communism itself is a religion. While this is perhaps not a precise description, communistic organization and history parallel so closely church organizations and histories that the outsider can offer much substantiating evidence for the observation. Christianity and communism present striking similarities.

An Inherited Hatred.

The chairman of the Society for Cultural Relations with Foreign Countries told the writer last year that the Government would welcome a first-hand investigation of the alleged church persecution by a delegation of American clergy. He predicted that such an investigation would disclose only passive opposition to religious activities. Since that challenge was issued, Sherwood Eddy, former secretary for Asia of the Young Men's Christian Association, has reported on his first-hand observations in Russia. Eddy, on the whole, was a sympathetic observer, but he reported that the church was being persecuted and that the opportunities for religious worship were rapidly decreasing.

Americans with little knowledge of "State Churches" find it difficult to understand the Communist's hatred of the clergy. The Russian State Church, the Greek Orthodox, was a survival of medieval times. Peter the Great abolished the Patriarch in 1721, and from that time on the Czar was the head of both church and state.

Commenting on the development of this usurpation, Eddy said: "The church became not only the chief support of the autocratic state, but its subservient tool, and, with the police, the most reactionary weapon of Czarist despotism. The confessional was often an agency of espionage and the priest a policeman of the Czar."

Eddy further pointed out that the church that excommunicated Leo Tolstoi and then produced a sensual Rasputin to dominate the Czar and Czarina, deserved the contempt of thinking people.

Church Against Revolution.

Because of its hold on the superstitious peasants the old Greek Church was the most treacherous enemy of the revolution. As late as January, 1918, the head of the church issued the following anathema on the revolutionists: "That which you do is not only a cruel deed; it is verily a Satanic deed, for which you are condemned to hell fire. . . . We conjure all you faithful children of the Orthodox Church not to enter into any kind of association with these monsters of the human race."

Hell fire, however, held no terrors for the materialistic Communists and they continued their opposition to the Orthodox Church. They redoubled their efforts during the Civil War when they found that the leaders of the clergy openly sympathized with the enemies of the new republic.

Communistic opposition to hierarchic churches like the Greek Orthodox is easily understandable on other grounds than pure Marxian materialism. These churches were national and international organizations. They were potential and probably actual organizations for covert counter revolutionary activities. The Communist party would not and will not allow in Soviet Russia an organization, hostile or otherwise, that it cannot control.

The first Soviet Constitution guaranteed freedom of religious and anti-religious belief and propaganda. In 1923 this was changed to insure the right of anti-religious propaganda and of religious belief. The church was deprived of its propaganda power. The church press was stifled; the "godless" publications were encouraged. The reason for the change in the Constitution was the tremendous growth of sects like the Baptists, Lutherans, Methodists and the older unorthodox Russian groups. The young people were using up their spiritual enthusiasm in church work which the Communists thought should be spent in governmental and political work.

Limitations on Sects.

Under present laws a religiously inclined person can belong to only one group of believers and each group must use only one place of worship. Religious bodies cannot engage in educational, philanthropic, social or cultural activities.

RAMSAY M'DONALD REMAINS AS HEAD OF BRITISH CABINET

Stanley Baldwin Made President of Council, Neville Chamberlain Chancellor of the Exchequer.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald remains head of the British Government in the new Cabinet, with Stanley Baldwin Lord President of the Council and Neville Chamberlain as Chancellor of the Exchequer, succeeding Philip Snowden. The Cabinet list was announced at No. 10 Downing street this evening.

Sir John Simon, one of the country's greatest lawyers and leader of one wing of the Liberal party, which broke away from David Lloyd George, is Foreign Secretary.

Snowden, who retired as Chancellor of the Exchequer largely because of his failing health, remains in the Cabinet as Lord Privy Seal. He succeeds Lord Samuel, who held that post in the emergency national Cabinet and who becomes Lord Chancellor in the new Cabinet.

Sir Samuel Hoare, Conservative, is Secretary of State for India and Sir Herbert Samuel, leader of another section of the disrupted Liberal party, is Home Secretary.

J. H. Thomas, elected on the National Labor ticket, becomes Secretary for Dominions, and Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, Conservative, is Secretary for Colonies.

The new Secretary for Air is the Marquis of Londonderry, Conservative. Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal, is Secretary for Scotland.

Walter Runciman was named president of the Board of Trade, an appointment which was regarded as MacDonald's attempt to balance the Conservative tariff pressure with a Liberal whose mind is open on that issue.

Other appointments included Sir H. Hilton Young, Conservative, Minister of Health.

Sir Donald MacLean, Liberal, Minister of Education.

Sir John Gilmour, Conservative, Minister of Agriculture.

Lord Hailsham, Conservative, Secretary for War.

The most surprising appointment in the list was that of Sir John Simon to the Foreign Office.

Neville Chamberlain is one of the strong tariff group.

In making these appointments, MacDonald let it be known, tried to maintain the National character of the Government and at the same time make as few changes in personnel as possible.

The Cabinet, somewhat larger than the emergency group which succeeded the Labor Government, consists of 20 members of whom 11 are Conservatives, five are Liberals of one wing or another, and four are members of the National Labor party.

DE GROOT REMBRANDTS SOLD

By the Associated Press.

LEIPSIC, Germany, Nov. 5.—Rembrandts from the collection of the late Dr. Cornelius de Groot brought prices ranging from $1400 to $2350 at an auction here yesterday. The auction, one of the most important scheduled in Europe for the winter season, will continue through tomorrow. Collectors from various parts of the world attended the sale yesterday, but there were no American buyers.

The De Groot collection represents items remaining in his estate after several bequests to Dutch museums and art centers, and includes 27 paintings by Rembrandt. At a previous auction one of the Rembrandts to be sold brought about $30,000.

BRITISH GROUP PROPOSES EMPIRE BANK, CURRENCY

Industrial Federation Favors Monetary System Adjusted to Maintain Stability of Prices.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—An All-British Empire financial policy, including an Empire Central Bank, an empire currency, new consideration of silver values, and empire tariffs, is favored in a resolution by a joint committee of the Federation of British Industries and the Empire Economic Union.

The committee adopted the resolution at the conclusion of a study of the currency and financial policy.

The national government, it declared yesterday, should summon an international conference on silver immediately or "make haste" to be represented on such a conference called by any other country. It recommended the restoration of silver "to its former place in the monetary system of the world."

No permanent system of bimetallism was mentioned, but the report declared that measures should be taken to increase the purchasing power of the consumers of India, China and the Far East by authorizing central banks to keep "an equitable proportion" of their metallic reserve in silver.

Great Britain's return to the gold standard in 1925 was condemned and the resolution urged that no steps be taken to return to the international money standard now until it has been ascertained that Great Britain and the empire will benefit by such a move.

Discussing fiscal policies, the report said there is little prospect of an immediate or far-reaching change in the policies of France and the United States, but there is room for "a very substantial reversal of the present drain of gold," possibly through revision of the fiscal policies of Great Britain and other parts of the empire.

"Our free trade policy," it said, "proved a misfortune for the world as well as for ourselves by handing over gold which would have been steadily diffused through consistent overseas investment to others less capable of using it for world purposes."

In conclusion the report declared the monetary system might well be based on an imperial sterling currency so adjusted as to maintain a reasonable price stability for the British commonwealth. Such a system, it said, should be powerful enough to govern, through external trade, the value of the medium of exchange and, indirectly, the value of the currencies of the rest of the world.

REPAYING U. S. DROUTH LOANS

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 5.—Farmers who received drouth relief loans through the Memphis Regional Federal Seed and Feed Loan Bureau have repaid to date $4,180,351.79 of the $21,000,000 lent, compilations made yesterday showed. The loans became payable Oct. 30.

Arkansas farmers, who borrowed nearly half of the amount, led in repayments with a total of $2,256,753.06. Mississippi repayments amounted to $683,399.66; Louisiana, $507,916.31; Tennessee, $396,706.96, and Alabama, $335,-575.80. In addition storage receipts for 12,262 bales of cotton have been filed with the bureau as collateral for loans.

Still Fighting World War In Deserts of Africa

German Lieutenant in Uhlan Guard Has Received No Order to Stop Tribal Attacks on French Legion.

By the Associated Press.

RIO DE ORO, Spanish Africa, Nov. 5.—Lieut. Erich von Satzen of the Uhlan Guard of the Imperial German Army is still doing his part in the World War which ended 13 years ago.

No order to cease hostilities ever has reached him and the former officer of German cavalry has gone native, married the daughter of a tribal chieftain and, as El Hadi Aleman, is a desert fighter with the title of Caid in the "blue" tribe.

"Tell the people back home," the Lieutenant recently told the second white man he has seen in 15 years, "that in the South you found Erich von Satzen of the Second Uhlan Regiment, sent here by the Imperial Government in 1916 and forgotten by the new Government of Germany. Tell them he is still obeying his orders, still doing his duty, still fighting against the French."

In October, 1916, a secret order sent Von Satzen from his Uhlan Regiment to report to the commander of the German Submarine UC-20 at Heligoland. He went aboard the boat in the night and found there Herr Probster, former German Consul at Fez, and Capt. Achmed Hairy Bey of the Turkish Army.

There were a few commands in hushed voices and the submarine put to sea to run the French and English blockades, to reach Africa and land Von Satzen and his two comrades on a mission to arouse the desert tribes against the French as the English Colonel, Lawrence, was arousing the Arabs against the Turks.

They landed at Assaka, on the west coast of Africa, in November and negotiated a plan with El Hiba, leader of the savage "blue" tribe, to fight the French Foreign Legion. Probster studied the situation and then set out to return to Germany to have machine guns and ammunition shipped by submarines to supply the expedition. French destroyers were patrolling the coast and he was unable to return to the UC-20. He started north along the coast and nothing more was heard from him.

Half guest, half hostage, Von Satzen trained the desert riders and led them as they swept down on the lonely garrisons of the Legion. Achmed Hairy Bey, the Turk, was killed or lost, but Von Satzen stayed, obeying his orders and waiting for the return of Probster.

In 1920 he heard a report of the signing of the armistice from a German ex-officer, who had been captured by Von Satzen's men in an attack on the Legion.

Standing in the desert the officer told Von Satzen that the war was over, but the latter disagreed. He had been ordered, he said, to wait for the return of Probster and to fight the French. Probster has not returned, so the war goes on.

LORD CARRICK OF ENGLAND DIES WHEN MOWING GRASS

Stricken With Apoplexy on Farm Where He Lived Alone at Redland, Fla.

By the Associated Press.

REDLAND, Fla., Nov. 5.—The body of Baron Charles Ernest Alfred French Somerset Butler, 58 years old, seventh Earl of Carrick and former Comptroller of the Lord Lientenant's household of Ireland, was found on the lawn of his home here Tuesday.

Two physicians who examined the body said death occurred Monday about 24 hours before the body was found by J. B. T. McElroy, a friend, beside a lawn mower. Dr. M. D. Hartman and Dr. J. R. Smith said death was caused by apoplexy apparently induced by over-exertion while the Baron was mowing the lawn. No inquest will be held.

Known in the Redland district as Carrick since he moved here from Miami two years ago to start a vegetable farm, the English nobleman had conducted experiments with cucumbers and mushrooms. He came to Miami from England in 1925. He lived alone at his farm here, but is survived by his widow in London, a son and two daughters in London and two sons in India.

Lord Carrick was born in Gibraltar Nov. 15, 1873, and succeeded his father to the title in 1909. He was made an officer of the order of the British Empire in 1918. He was extensively interested in British oil companies.

SENATE GROUP TO INVESTIGATE U. S. FARM BOARD

Chairman McNary Asks Members to Meet Agriculture Committee Nov. 24 —To Ask About Loans.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The Federal Farm Board is to be investigated by the Senate Agriculture Committee.

All complaints will be taken, Chairman McNary of the committee informed the board at conferences with it this week.

McNary has called the committee to meet Nov. 24. The Farm Board members were asked to appear together with the representatives of organized agriculture.

Organized agriculture is prepared to fight for continuance of the board in the fact of some threats from Congress for its abolition. The farm leaders, however, will advocate supplementary legislation to the farm marketing act. This proposed legislation will take the form probably of appeals for authority for the board to use either the equalization fee or the export debenture.

All details as to loans made by the board will be called for. Also there are indications that the board will be asked to explain its policies in relation to the millers during the price stabilization period of 1930. This point involves purported authority given the millers to restock their wares with wheat selling at a lower price than the American market, in order that the millers might retain their foreign market.

Senator Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa, who has expressed some harsh views toward the board, has obtained permission to sit with the committee.

How to Measure Efficiency.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE importance of proper returns being made to each of the factors jointly engaged in a productive enterprise has recently been emphasized by Secretary of Labor Doak.

As pointed out in my contribution to your issue of Oct. 26, proper returns are to be defined in terms of efficiency; that is, each factor is entitled to compensation in proportion to its efficiency in producing the output. Such a distribution leads to the production of a maximum output, and, therefore, to the largest return to each factor consistent, but not necessarily equal, with a like return to all factors. This condition leads to a maximum output and a corresponding amount of satisfaction.

The next step in the development of our theme is that of devising a way of measuring efficiency. This is a somewhat technical procedure and cannot adequately be described in a few words. However, the essence of the process is that of giving each factor, in its turn, a small increment and noting the corresponding increase in the output. The ratio of this increase in output to the increment given the selected factor is the measure of its relative efficiency.

Having experimentally tried this out on one factor, the original conditions are then restored and the process repeated on the other factors in turn. In the end we would have ratios measuring the efficiency of each of the several factors. A comparison of these ratios would enable us to determine the relative part that each factor should receive of the output. In other words, we could determine, for instance, if the labor factor was "n" times as efficient as the land factor and "q" times as efficient as the administration factor. Having determined the relative efficiency, the output is divided accordingly.

A Sugar-Coated Pill.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE acme of asininity is exemplified in the capitalistic mind of the man who has condemned Socialism because, as he feared, he might have to divide with his fellowman, and now proposes that employes who have devoted long, faithful, loyal years of service should divide (through reduced hours) their wages or salaries with those former employes whom he and other employers have laid off. That the bitter pill might be palatable, he sugar-coats it with the phrase, "unemployment relief."

What Happened in an Austrian Town.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHILE reading recently an appeal for old clothes for the needy, it brought back to me memories of the time when, as a boy of 14, I lived with my parents in an Austrian town of about 10,000. There must have been a depression at the time, as there were many poor folk in town. One day the principal of our school called a number of us boys from the classroom and gave each of us several names and addresses. We were instructed to visit these people and make a report on each family—how many children there were, in what condition were their suits, coats, dresses and shoes, what the father or provider was doing, and so on. The principal told us that Baron Rothschild had allotted to our town a certain amount of money with which to buy clothes for the needy.

After we turned in our reports, the children of the reported people were questioned by the teachers and then sent to a central station, where measurements were taken. Within two weeks every poor tailor, shoemaker and shirtmaker was busy making suits, shoes, shirts, underwear and caps. Shortly afterward, there was a great celebration at our school. There were recitations and singing, and then the names of children were called and they were given new clothing. I still can see the happy faces of the kids as they walked out with their new winter equipment. It seemed as if suddenly everyone in town became prosperous. The tailors, etc., made a little money and were able to spend it for necessities and that, in turn, helped someone else.

Have we no Baron Rothschilds in this country? EMIL ROTTERSMAN.

Shorter Presidential Campaigns.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MY attention was called to your editorial two or three days ago advocating shorter presidential campaigns and calling attention to the 20-day campaign for members of Parliament in England.

We have an organization in this city which for more than a year has been urging that the national nominating conventions in 1932 be held in September instead of June. We shall probably send a communication to the national committees at their next meeting urging this action.

We think you are one of the pioneers among newspapers in advocating this reform. M. G. HEINTZ.

A LORD GOES TO PRISON.

A short item from London in yesterday's papers said that Lord Kylsant, formerly chairman of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Co. and one of the dominating figures of the British shipping world, had entered prison to serve a 12-month sentence. He had been charged with falsifying the company's financial statements, was tried and found guilty last June, appealed, his appeal was denied and now he is in a cell.

That is the way they do it in England. If a citizen violates the law, he is given a fair trial and, if convicted, he pays the price. If it is murder, he hangs. If robbery, he goes to jail. It does not make any difference whether he is a lord or a lackey. They do not talk much in England about equality before the law, but they practice it with fidelity and dispatch.

How would it have been if Lord Kylsant, as a citizen of the United States, had done his stuff here? We have a local instance of a recent occurrence in which the offense was similar enough to warrant comparison. An important commercial house had falsified its financial statement. In the trial of an officer of that company, the court's instructions were that the defendant could not be found guilty unless intent to deceive were shown. As a matter of common sense, it would seem that a falsified financial statement is prima facie evidence of an intent to deceive, but our criminal law, unfortunately, does not appear to be burdened much with common sense. And even if it were, our court practice has contrived so many ways and means of delay as frequently to make a mockery of the procedure and oftener than not to defeat justice.

A classical example of what, it seems to us, might be characterized the debauchery of justice, is that of the "faithless public servant," who conspired to defraud the Government of immensely valuable oil lands, accepted bribes, tried to conceal his infamy with a stupid lie and, finally, after some eight years of litigation, was sent to prison for a year and a day. How different the record would have been if Albert B. Fall had been a Minister of His Majesty's Government instead of an American Secretary of the Interior! And if the Continental Trading Co.—an enterprise organized, as our Supreme Court said, "for no legitimate purpose"—had been chartered and operated in England the Stewarts, Sinclairs, Blackmers and O'Neils would have had a different experience.

The near-paralysis of our criminal laws is inflicting upon the people of the United States a tremendous financial cost, and the moral cost comes close to the breakdown of a vital governmental function. If criminality had anything like the free hand in England that it has in the United States, John Bull, battling as he is with enormous industrial and monetary difficulties, would probably be sunk. And no nation, not even ours, can indefinitely survive anarchy, which is what our lawlessness is, in effect, approaching.

FLEETING FAME.

A young Frenchman, Roger Tronquet, has crossed the English Channel on a surfboard, and now, says a news dispatch, that strait has been crossed by just a dozen methods of travel. "Up to the time of Tronquet's feat," the item continues, "the channel had been crossed by balloon, hydrocycle, motorcycle, airplane, submarine, punt, canoe, glider, 11-foot dinghy, water skiis and the channel steamer." This confirms what may have seemed merely a sardonic simile: that there is no fame so fleeting as that of a channel swimmer.

LOCAL AND FEDERAL RELIEF.

William Hodson, executive director of New York City's Welfare Council, probably will receive no reply to his open letter to President Hoover, other than a perfunctory acknowledgment from a White House secretary. The letter, as printed in Survey Graphic, is worthy of more serious treatment, however, than filing in one of Washington's cavernous pigeonholes. Mr. Hodson suggests a way of ending definitely the local self-help vs. Federal relief debate which has harassed efforts to provide for the destitute. Local effort has been America's historic policy, the writer says, but in the present crisis there may be a few or many communities unable to care for their needy, and these should not be forced to suffer for tradition's sake. He proposes that we find out about this before the debate goes further. Telegrams of inquiry to Mayors and Governors will not do—a widespread independent survey is required. It would be a big job, but not an impossible one.

The extent of local needs and capacities determined, Mr. Hodson would set up a partnership between local and Federal agencies wherever required. Administering funds on a share-and-share basis, as is the practice in highway projects, would inspire high standards and would not undermine local autonomy, he points out. "Pork barrel" legislation could be avoided by grants, not on a basis of population, but on a basis of need.

"In the long run, private philanthropy can only supplement taxation," Mr. Hodson says. "It cannot be substituted for public funds as a source of revenue for relief." Although, as Gov. Pinchot recently pointed out, there are individual fortunes in this country large enough to relieve all our needy without depletion, relief in past has not come from such sources. Public funds have furnished 70 per cent of all relief expenditures. If these funds fall short in some localities, then Federal assistance is the last bulwark against a winter of misery and starvation. Mr. Hoover's present policy is for the Government to stimulate and co-ordinate charity drives. To summon him to conception of a greater role, "to provide the leadership which millions of suffering human beings await with a hope that holds despair in abeyance," is the purpose of Mr. Hodson's letter.

NO MEDAL FOR THE BLIZZARD HERO.

The country was thrilled last March by the heroism of 13-year-old Bryan Untiedt, when a school bus containing 20 children was stalled in a Colorado blizzard and six occupants, including the driver, were frozen to death. Now, however, the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission has decided that the boy's behavior in those 36 hours of peril does not merit a medal. Bryan organized games to keep the children moving and cuffed those who showed signs of fatal drowsiness. This was said to have saved many of their lives, though it may not fit exactly the commission's definition of heroism. But the boy's action in giving all his clothing, except his underwear, to the other children while the blizzard screamed outside and snow beat in at the broken windows, seems clearly within the commission's first regulation. This dedicates the $5,000,000 fund to reward "acts in which conclusive evidence may be obtained that the person performing the act voluntarily risked his own life in saving, or attempting to save, the life of a fellow being." There can be no question that the boy displayed both courage and unusual resourcefulness, and at the risk of his life. No medal is required as evidence of his heroism. What is required is a detailed explanation of the commission's decision.

UNCLE ANDY'S BIG CHANCE.

The smoke of the British election has rolled away, and the Conservatives, pledged to an imposition of tariffs, emerge the victors of the field. All that remains to allow Americans to turn once more to the Tammany scandals and the football situation is a word of reassurance from Secretary Mellon. It seems that some Americans, including stalwarts of the Grand Old Party, are worried about a British tariff. They suggest that it might react adversely on our trade, or even create irritation in this country.

Poor, benighted souls, 50 years behind the times, and ignorant of the principles of the "new era" economics! Back in the '80s and '90s of the last century, that sort of thinking about tariffs was in fashion in the United States. A raising of the tariff on British goods was presented to the public as a patriotic duty to complete the work of our ancestors at Lexington and Yorktown. To twist the lion's tail, put a couple of knots in it, and then stamp on it with both feet, was a fitting peroration to any protectionist speech.

But those days of blatant nationalism passed. At the close of the World War, Americans began to think internationally. Even our isolationists sensed in a vague way that America was now part of a world economic system. New arguments were in style. Our high tariff was no longer a selfish policy, but America's gift to a struggling world. At least, that is what the administration told the bankers, college professors and Democrats, who, in their ignorance, thought that the tariff injured both America and the rest of the world.

It fell to Secretary Mellon to expound this. In a memorandum issued in 1927, he explained that our tariff was one of the causes of world prosperity. It seemed that high tariffs, by keeping out foreign goods, made America prosperous, and the more prosperous America was, the more it could buy from abroad. The argument was a bit difficult to follow, and some people never were convinced. But it came from one of the leading directors of the now bankrupt American Prosperity Corporation (Calvin Coolidge, chairman of the board), and it gave a feeling of self-righteousness to the tariff beneficiaries, who wanted rates jacked up a little higher.

Surely, the Secretary has not forgotten his message of four years ago. The idea that the raising of tariffs by England or any other nation could injure American trade is too disturbing to confidence to remain unchallenged for another day. Here is his chance to explain again to his timorous fellow countrymen that when a country raises tariffs it is simply doing its bit to help world prosperity. American exporters will be glad to hear the news.

THE GAUCHO COCKTAIL.

The eminent scientist, Fortunato Felle of Buenos Aires, has shouted "Eureka!", and seemingly has earned the right to shout it. For 24 years he has expended his skill and energy in the task of perfecting a cocktail which, as he tells about it, certainly piques one's curiosity. When first seen, it is as light as Chateau Yquem, he says, but subsequently deepens to the agate of Dublin stout. Dismissing the eye and consulting the palate, we encounter the suavity of Napoleon brandy and the burning wrath of "moonshine." He babbles on to say that it makes the gay gayer and the dumb to burst forth in song, but any cocktail worthy the name does that. It is its color scheme that will arrest the attention of the studious—that, and the persistent, almost noble experimentation of 24 years.

Our sub-equatorial Edison, bear in mind, embarked on his mission in the parlous and unpromising year of 1907. That was the year when, as the maples turned from emerald to ruby, Col. Roosevelt's panic came bounding down the road; when Gov. Folk persuaded the lid clubs to observe Sunday as a night of rest; when Attorney-General Hadley had Standard Oil mopping its brow and Peggy Joyce's first husband was yet a comparatively innocent tad. And through all the crowded calendar subsequently unreeled, our Argentina gallant pressed resolutely onward toward his holy grail. There will be those to exclaim petulantly that here is a life wantonly or, at least, foolishly misspent. Conservative as we are to the marrow, we reserve judgment until we shall have sampled this iridescent aperitif.

WILL IT BE A PYRRHIC VICTORY?

Capturing control of the House of Representatives, as the Democrats seem to have done, may turn out to be a Pyrrhic victory. It involves responsibility for a constructive legislative program and, if the Democrats have such a program, we have not seen it. For the past three years, the party has been content to sit back and watch the Republicans fail, and it is evidently upon a record of Republican failure rather than Democratic success that the Democrats hope to ride into office at the presidential election of 1932. The only opposition worthy of the name to Republican policies has come from the progressive groups in both houses.

On the broad economic issues of the day, the Democratic party is as hopelessly divided as it is on the prohibition question. If the Democrats organize the House, this lack of unity in the party will be brought sharply into the foreground, and may have a profound effect upon its political fortunes. It will be seen that there are pro-tariff and anti-tariff Democrats; dry ones and wet ones; Democrats who look kindly and others gloweringly upon monopoly in business; Democrats who oppose and those who favor adequate curbs on industry; Democrats who stand for Government operation of Muscle Shoals and those who are against it.

In short, with the Democrats on exhibition as a majority party, the country will realize that they do not constitute a true party at all, but merely share a common designation. The country will also realize that the real political cleavage, regardless of party label, is between conservatism and liberalism. Traditionally, it is the Democratic party which should make liberalism its cause, and it now has a great opportunity to erase the follies of the past and do so.

THE OLD GUARD NEVER LEARNS.

Woman's Duty: To Civilize Society

Feminism's goal, to win for women the right to enter all of men's activities, was achieved long ago; seeking to imitate males, they have overlooked their civilizing power, which men do not possess; as they control about half of nation's wealth, women could divert our society from stress on workmanship to manners and arts.

Albert Jay Nock in the Atlantic Monthly. (Reprinted by Permission).

A FIRM of investment bankers made an investigation into the division of our national wealth between the sexes. The general conclusion was that at the time the survey was made, say four years ago, nearly half our national wealth was controlled by women, and that the proportion was tending to increase steadily and rather rapidly.

The investigation found that $95,000,000,000 worth of life insurance policies were in force in this country, and that 80 per cent of their beneficiaries were women. This alone would considerably help along the rising proportion of female control unless there were somewhere some offset which the survey did not show. By wills probated in New York City, over a given period, 50 estates out of 70 were left by men to women, and 44 out of 69 were left by women to women. It found that women were taxed on $3,250,000,000 of income annually; men on $4,750,000,000. Women were found to be majority or almost majority shareholders in some of our largest corporations.

American women have a good deal more purchasing power than this survey shows, because many of those who legally own nothing are on fairly liberal allowances from male members of their families, and many more are wage earners who spend their wages as they please. There seems little ground for doubt that, taking virtual control with legal control, our women now have more purchasing power than our men have.

* * *

My main design in writing this article is to address a word of exhortation to our feminists. Modern feminism has contented itself with asserting the thesis of women's ability and right to do everything that men can do. Feminism has been content with demanding the right to vote, to practice politics and hold public office, as men do, and to enter commerce, finance, the learned professions and the trades, on equal terms with men, and to share men's social privileges and immunities on equal terms. Its contention is that women are able to do as well with all these activities as men can do, and that the opportunity to engage in them is theirs by natural right.

This thesis is wholly sound. There is no doubt whatever that women can do everything that men can do: they have always done it. Hence feminism can no longer get up an argument on the thesis. I suggest that the more progressive and thoughtful feminists should consider the thesis that women can do something which men cannot do.

Women can civilize a society, and men cannot. There is, at least, no record that men have ever succeeded in civilizing a society, or even that they have made a strong collective endeavor in this direction. They can create the apparatus of a civilization. They are first-rate at founding industries, building railways, starting banks, getting out newspapers and all that sort of thing.

But there is no record of their handiness at employing this apparatus for a distinctly civilizing purpose. The standard cartoons and jokes all tend to show that when the missus goes away for the summer, the gent lapses contentedly into squalor and glories in his shame; and these may be taken as an allegory reflecting matters of larger consequence.

Our American society has always come in for an uncommon amount of observation and criticism. Every complaint of it on the part of both native and foreign critics, as far as I am aware, is reducible to the simple thesis that it is not a civilized society. There is a complete consensus that our society leaves the claims of too many fundamental instincts unsatisfied; in fact, that we are trying to force the whole current of our being through the narrow channel set by one instinct only, the instinct of workmanship; and hence our society exhibits an extremely imperfect type of intellect and knowledge, an extremely imperfect type of religion and morals, of beauty and poetry, of social life and manners.

Thus one is led rather seriously to wonder whether, in encouraging our women to do only the things that men can do, our feminists have not been encouraging them to take quite the wrong way with themselves. One may easily see how our society, if it had to, might get on without women lawyers, physicians, stockbrokers, aviators, preachers, telephone operators, hijackers, buyers, cooks, dressmakers, bus conductors, architects. We cannot get on, however, without woman as a civilizing force.

In encouraging women to do only what men can do, feminists have encouraged them to put still greater stress on the instinct of workmanship, the one instinct which all critics say is already overstressed to the breaking point; and this virtually decreases the stress on those which are already intolerably understressed. Feminism is in a position not only to direct interest, but, for the first time in the world's history, to direct as much purchasing power as men have, or perhaps somewhat more. In a commercial sense, women's interest controls all our organized expressions of spiritual activity. Take the advertising matter in any newspaper or magazine, and consider the proportion of it that is aimed directly at women's purchasing power, and you can see at once how far publishing policy must reflect specifically feminine views of life. It is a commonplace of the theater that the verdict of women will instantly make or break any production. Test the question of women's commercial control of organized expression anywhere in the realm of ethics, manners, art, anywhere in the realm of general culture, and your findings will be the same.

Hence it would seem that there is here a great social force out of which our society is at present getting but little good. I believe it is a much greater force than our feminism has any idea of; and this is my justification for suggesting so directly to feminism that it should recognise and measure this force, and then do everything possible to give it a better direction. Our society can be civilized by giving an intelligent direction to the interest and the purchasing power of women. At present these are exercised very irresponsibly and casually in the direction of civilization, largely because women have been overpreoccupied with the idea of doing what men can do. Hence it seems competent to suggest that feminism should henceforth concern itself with recommending a higher and much more rational ideal of social usefulness.

Wheat Prices and Recovery

By Editorial Research Reports.

IT is impossible to find a completely causal relationship between wheat prices and business conditions. For one thing, agricultural prosperity depends on the size of crops as well as on prices, so that a wheat farmer might be better off when the price of wheat was low, if the crop were large, than when the price was high, if the crop were low. Again, a rise in price during one year would help little if it still did not meet production costs, whereas a fall in price might not be serious if the price were still above the cost of production. The Department of Agriculture estimates that the average price per bushel received by wheat farmers on Dec. 1, 1929 was $1.04, which would be considered high today, yet the department's estimate of the average cost of production of a bushel of wheat in 1929 was $1.24.

The price of wheat in any one year is affected not only by that year's production, but also by the carry-over from previous years. The price in the United States depends upon foreign conditions, inasmuch as the market for wheat is a world market, so that there have been occasions when wheat prices in the United States were high, although the United States production was also high, and other occasions when the United States price was low at the same time that the domestic production was low.

However, in the past there have been certain correlations, even if they have not been pure cause and effect, between a rise in wheat prices and a quickening of business activity. The long depression of the '70s came to an end in 1879, a year in which both wheat prices and wheat production rose, so that the value of the crop increased 70 per cent. The depression of 1884 ended in 1886, when the value of the wheat crop, although still comparatively low, was somewhat higher than in 1885. The panic of 1893 ended in a brief period of prosperity in 1895, and the value of the wheat crop rose in 1894 and 1895. The "rich man's panic" of 1903 ended early in 1905, and wheat farmers were prosperous in both 1904 and 1905. The panic of 1907 ended in 1908, a year in which wheat prices and wheat production both went up. The post-war depression ended in 1922, when the value of wheat production was 15 per cent higher than in the year before.

On the other hand, the value of the wheat crop rose in both 1896 and 1897, the years of the silver campaign depression. The value of the wheat crop was high in 1914, the year of the war depression. And a depression began and ended in 1924, when wheat prices and production were both up. Some agricultural economists believe that the advent of the panic of 1893 was staved off by the prosperity of the wheat farmer in 1891.

There were reports on Nov. 2, later denied, that Russia had agreed not to export wheat for several years. A study of the export figures of Czarist Russia and the United States over a period of years shows that the one usually had large exports of wheat when the other was exporting little wheat, indicating that the two countries were active competitors in the European wheat market.

Preparatory, probably, to the Senator's taking the stump for his party's chief in the 1932 campaign. Do You Believe That Monopoly Improves Quality?

FOR FORTY-TWO YEARS Pevely Dairy Company has striven to give to the people of St. Louis the best possible quality of milk . . . . We have worked through the years to keep step with all the scientific developments which have shown the way to the production of good, pure, safe milk.

At our stations in the country, the most modern equipment is used for proper care of milk. We use the most up-to-date equipment for the transportation of the milk from the country to the city. Our model plant in the city is equipped with every modern device for the sanitary care and economical handling of the milk we distribute to St. Louis homes.

Behind all this we maintain a farm inspection and promotion service for the protection and constant improvement of the quality of the milk produced on the farm. Years ago we paid an extra price for milk from tuberculin-tested cows to promote the testing of all cows. Today all the milk we buy comes from tuberculin-tested cows.

We have lately refused to deal with an organization which claims to exist for the purpose of improving the quality of milk delivered to St. Louis. We refused because the real purpose of that organization is to draw a ring around St. Louis, prevent the farmers on the outside of that ring from bringing their milk to their natural market, and thus create a monopoly for the organization to the end of imposing arbitrary prices upon the people of the city.

We do not believe that quality will be improved through the establishment of a monopoly. We shall continue to use every effort to give the people of St. Louis the best milk that can be produced. We shall continue to stand against the attempt to impose upon you monopoly conditions or monopoly price.

Questioned About Analysis.

Several questions as to this analysis were asked by City Counselor Muench and Associate City Counselor Forrest G. Ferris Jr., and at the conclusion of the hearing Ferris said the City Law Department would like to have an opportunity at a later hearing to present the results of a study of Belser's report by the city's consulting engineers. He was told the opportunity would be given.

The question of what became of a depreciation reserve account of $8,469,730 on the books of the old United Railways at the time the property was transferred to the Public Service Co. was raised by Ferris. The city has a case pending before the Public Service Commission to require the Public Service Co. to account for this fund. Under the law a public utility may charge a given amount annually as an operating expense and collect it out of rates, to provide for depreciation of the company's property. The United Railways Co. had collected $8,469,730 more than was necessary to pay for depreciation charged against this account.

In connection with the financial operations of the Public Service Co., Belser showed what disposition had been made of $7,963,300 acquired by the company, above its operating expenses, taxes and interest charges, in three years and one month of operation.

This was expended as follows: Dividends on preferred stock, $1,358,800; additions to road equipment and miscellaneous property, $2,766,000; claims paid in excess of provision, $1,001,800; current indebtedness reduced, $2,080,000; expended to accomplish reduction of $2,618,700 in funded and secured debt, $756,700.

Where the Money Came From.

The money came from the following sources:

Net profits after paying interest for three years and one month, as shown by annual reports, $2,476,100.

These profits are after providing for depreciation to the amount of $4,457,000.

Total profits if no provision whatever had been made for depreciation (sum of the two preceding figures), $6,933,100.

Preferred stock issued in exchange of St. Louis Public Service Co. five-year, 6 per cent convertible gold notes, $56,900.

Total, $7,963,300.

Earnings of the Public Service Co. and the People's Motorbus Co. for 1930 were compared. Net income (profit) of the Public Service Co. was given as $527,073 and for the bus company, $109,659.

In response to a question by Newton, Belser said the profit of the bus company was better in proportion to investment than was that of the street car company. Newton asked if this was generally true for other recent years. Belser said he did not have the figures, but he thought it was.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Nov. 5.—William Schroeder, farmer of Wheeling, Ill., wants $10,000 from Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin, the former dancer, as a result of a visit she made last May to his pigsty. Schroeder filed his suit yesterday. He charged slander and malicious prosecution.

Russia in Transition

Special meetings for children, youths and women for prayer purposes are forbidden as are literary and needlework meetings. The teaching of religion in any public school or private educational institution is forbidden, but persons over 18 years old can attend theological courses organized by special permission.

The Government is having so much success with its war against religion and its propaganda for atheism that old conceptions of the "holy" Russian peasant, dear to the pre-war intelligentsia, may have to be revised. Some modern writers are insisting that the peasant was always essentially a pagan. The old state religion was one of form and fear. The peasant, these writers say, went to church on Sunday and holy days for the "theater of religion," the ornate robes, the unintelligible services, the mystery of the unfamiliar.

The five-day week and the collective farms have done more to drive religion from the minds of the Russians than the most ardent propaganda. Sunday has been eliminated from the vocabulary of a great majority of Russians, who apparently are concerned more about the recurrence of their "rest" day after four days of work than they are about religion. With the nonstop week, Sunday is just another work day. Industries having the six-day week are not concerned about Sunday, and if the seven-day week is re-established one can be sure that the rest day will not be on Sunday.

Alienating Farmers.

Priests and kulaks cannot join collective farms. In the old days the priest blessed the fields, the seed and the cattle. Sowing and harvesting were regulated by holy days. The priests prayed for rain or asked heavenly deliverance from pests. The priests got the credit for good harvets, the peasants blamed their own sins for failures. The priests lived on the fat of the land and built churches that stood out in striking contrast to the surrounding poverty and misery.

The editor of the "Godless" publications told the writer that his organization was fighting God with tractors and insect sprays, meaning that the peasants were being taught that scientific farming would bring greater returns than the magical hocus-pocus of a village Rasputin.

The collectives in many places have turned the village church into a community club house. The radio has supplanted the priest and Lenin's picture the ikon.

Leveling Church Building.

Everywhere throughout the Union churches are being torn down with the nominal assent of the worshipers. In Moscow the famous Shrine of the Iberian Virgin, which had a full quota of followers, was closed "because it delayed traffic." This summer the Iberian Gate which had housed the precious ikon was torn down to give freer access to the Red Square. The beautiful Church of the Redeemer, built to celebrate the withdrawal of Napoleon, is now being demolished to furnish a site for a grandiose Palace of Soviets to celebrate the successful completion of the First Five-Year Plan. Another reason given for the destruction of this church is that there are 1440 pounds of goldleaf on the domes.

The Russian Government discriminates as carefully against a religiously minded school teacher as local communities in the United States would discriminate against an avowed atheist.

"The believing teacher in the Soviet school," said Lunacharsky when Commissar of Education, "is an awkward contradiction, and departments of popular education are bound to use every opportunity to replace such teachers with new ones of antireligious sentiments."

Communists are prepared for American criticism of their discriminations against religiously-minded teachers. The Soviet press carried long accounts of the Dayton, Tenn., antievolution trial and when an American boasts about religious freedom in the United States he is confronted with questions about Tennessee, which are extremely hard to answer. The writer, knowing the Russians would not understand, did not try to explain.

TO ADVOCATE JOB ROTATION

Hoover Committee Man Will Tour in Behalf of Plan.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—W. A. Starrett, chairman of the Construction Committee of the President's Organization for Employment, will tour the country for 30 days advocating the rotating of employment. Job rotation, he said at a meeting here yesterday is the only way by which the winter's unemployment problem can be solved.

The meeting here was arranged by Edward J. Harding, managing director of the Associated General Contractors of America, and later Starrett said that both he and the association president, A. P. Greensfelder, St. Louis, approved the rotation idea. Starrett presented three plans. The contractors said they would study them and notify him which they individually would put into effect. The suggestions include: Injection of a certain percentage of new personnel each day, a three-day week for each workman and two daily shifts of six hours each.

SENTENCED FOR KILLING GIRL

Youth Gets 20 Years to Life for Bayonet Murder.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. — Michael Basso, 18 years old, was sentenced yesterday to serve from 20 years to life for the murder of a 15-year-old girl with a bayonet, following a quarrel in February, 1930.

Basso confessed he killed the girl when she told him she would not see him again because her parents objected.

Now... a NEW way to clean silks
by the makers of the most successful cleaning fluid

We have been making Carbona Cleaning Fluid for over 25 years. Women tell us it is the most successful cleaning fluid made.

But the different way that most silks are manufactured now-a-days makes it impossible for any cleaning fluid to remove grease spots from silks without leaving a ring. This has made necessary a different kind of cleaner for silks—one that absorbs grease instead of dissolving it.

And so we have developed a new-type cleaner made especially for silks... Carbona Grease-Absorbent Powder. It works wonders on silks... makes grease spots disappear . . . and positively can not leave a ring. Use Carbona Powder on all silks. Use Carbona Cleaning Fluid on all other fabrics.

Great Uncle of Lindbergh Dies.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 5.—Dr. Albert Lodge, 79 years old, a great uncle of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, died at his home here last night after a brief illness. He had practiced medicine here for 52 years. He was a brother of former Mayor John C. Lodge, who was elected to the City Council Tuesday.

ROBBERS HERD SIX BACK OF COUNTER IN SHOP, GET $500

Morris A. Honigberg, manager of the Parkview Pharmacy, 6231 Delmar boulevard; his daughter, Miss Evelyn Honigberg; two employes of the store and two customers were forced behind the prescription counter yesterday afternoon by two robbers, who took $500.

One of the robbers entered and bought a cigar from Miss Honigberg, who was at the cigar counter. He then turned to a cigar lighter and on turning around again, drew a revolver. His accomplice entered by a side door with a drawn revolver and they marched Honigberg, his daughter, Miss Adeline Hampton, another employe; a Negro porter and a Negro customer behind the counter.

Ray Gardner, 6305 Cates avenue, entered to go to a telephone booth and was forced to hide with the others. The robbers looted the cash register and then compelled Honigberg to open the safe. One jabbed the druggist in the ribs with a revolver, but was admonished by the other robber to cease such tactics. After taking the money, the robbers ran out and escaped in an automobile.

Robber With Broom Handle as Weapon Gets $600.

Miss Loretta Voss, a bookkeeper for the William Schotten Coffee Co., 1043 South Twelfth boulevard, was robbed of $600 of company money which she was taking to Twelfth Street National Bank, a short distance away, yesterday afternoon, by two robbers who held her up in front of the company office.

Miss Voss and Miss Stella Winsby, another employe, had entered a company car driven by Fred Stephan, a chauffeur, when the two men went up to the machine. One brandished a section of broom handle and the other held his hand in his pocket as if he held a pistol. They ordered Miss Voss to surrender the money, took it and fled down an alley. Witnesses reported that they made their escape in an automobile.

Three young men found stripping an automobile at Jennings yesterday were chased to Hall's Ferry and Chambers roads and captured by Deputy Constables of St. Ferdinand Township. According to the officers, the three admitted stealing the automobile, the property of Joseph Quartaraio, 1522A North Leffingwell avenue, from Grand and Washington boulevards yesterday afternoon.

Miss Mary Kanevsky, 3717 Lincoln avenue, reported she was awakened early today by a man who was attempting to put a cloth over her face, but who ran out of the room when she awakened. Police said the cloth contained an odor of ether.

WALTER S. FRANKLIN BEGINS DUTIES AS WABASH PRESIDENT

Comes Here From Philadelphia and Will Be Joined Soon By Family.

Walter S. Franklin has taken charge as president of the Wabash Railway Co. His wife and three children will join him here soon.

Franklin was assistant to the vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Philadelphia. His election to the presidency of the Wabash October 26 to replace William H. Williams, whose death occurred in St. Louis October 14, was taken as signifying that the Pennsylvania management intended to keep in close touch with the Wabash and possible even to exercise direct operating control. The Pennsylvania indirectly holds 48.8 per cent of the Wabash stock.

Franklin, 47 years old, has been in railroad work, except for brief intervals, since he became a freight handler for the Pennsylvania in Philadelphia after he was graduated from Harvard University in 1906.

St. Lawrence Level Low.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 5.—The water level of the St. Lawrence River has fallen so much that ocean going vessels are leaving with less than capacity cargoes. The harbor level here yesterday was 28 feet 5 inches—seven inches below the official low water level. Lack of precipitation during last winter and sprnig was blamed for the falling of water level throughout the St. Lawrence lakes and river.

LLOYD GEORGE "WAR CHEST" NOW HAS ONLY $200,000 IN IT

Former Liberal Leader's Supposed Huge Campaign Fund Hard Hit by Market.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—It is understood that the famous Liberal party "war chest," supposed to contain a huge campaign fund, was hard hit by the market collapse and now totals less than $200,000. Presumably Lloyd George, who has resigned the party chairmanship, will remain as sole custodian of the fund.

Lloyd George, outstanding member of the Liberals for more than 25 years, now leads this group—his son, Maj. Gwilym Lloyd George; his daughter, Miss Megan Lloyd George, and Maj. Goronwy Owen. It is assumed they will continue to call themselves Liberals and take their seats in the opposition in the House of Commons. As head of the war-time coalition Government, Lloyd George was then almost supreme arbiter of Britain's destinies.

Sir Herbert Samuel succeeds him as leader of the Liberal parliamentary party. The historic Liberal party now is separated into three factions, two of which are reckoned among supporters of the Ramsay MacDonald National Government. These are the Samuel Liberals and the Sir John Simon, or "National Liberals."

NEGRO CHURCH IS BURNED

Alabama Pastor Had Been Active Against Communists.

By the Associated Press.

ALEXANDER CITY, Ala., Nov. 5.—Tallapoosa County officers, assisted by a Deputy State Fire Marshal, today sought to fix the responsibility for fires that destroyed a Negro church and five Negro residences here Tuesday night.

The pastor of the church, M. Dunn, reported to Mayor Russell he had received anonymous threats his church would be burned if he did not cease his "crusade against Communism." The pastor had been urging his congregation not to join radical groups.

WHEN YOU OVER-INDULGE

THERE are times when we all are tempted to take a holiday from the usual prudence.
Where is the person who wants to be discreet in diet every day in the year? It isn't human!
And it isn't necessary!
Your stomach won't be poisoned by every little indiscretion if you will just remember to give it the friendly aid of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It will sweeten the acid system and put things to rights.
Suppose you do overload your stomach with those things that bring on acidity? Phillips' Milk of Magnesia will neutralize many times its volume in acid. Just take two spoonfuls before and after such over-indulgence. It's a very simple way to prevent those miserable mornings which follow too much to eat and drink.
When you over-indulge—eating, drinking, smoking—don't suffer for hours! Nature will restore a proper alkaline balance in time, but Phillips' Milk of Magnesia acts immediately. A creamy, pleasant-tasting emulsion that sweetens the stomach, aids in relieving gas, and relieves the nausea and headache, and feeling of biliousness due to overdoing. (Phillips' mild laxative properties always help the bowels at such times.)
Make sure it's genuine. The signature of Chas. H. Phillips on the wrapper and bottle will tell you it's the real product endorsed by the medical profession. Less perfect preparations do not act the same.
For a Healthy Mouth
Use Phillips' Milk of Magnesia as a mouthwash every evening before retiring. Use Phillips' Dental Magnesia, a superior tooth-paste, to keep the teeth clean and white.

MILITARY GUARD FOR DREISER IN KENTUCKY MINE INQUIRY

Gov. Sampson Calls Out State Troops to Guarantee Safety of Committee.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 5.—A detachment of State troops was ordered to Harlan County today while writers, led by Theodore Dreiser, novelist, assembled at Pineville to organize before going into the coal fields to investigate what Dreiser calls a "reign of terror." Pineville is in Bell County, adjoining Harlan.

Gov. Sampson ordered out the National Guardsmen last night, saying he was doing so "in order that there may be no doubt as to the safety of these visitors." Dreiser had telegraphed the Governor saying he would hold the Chief Executive responsible for any harm that might come to members of his committee.

The troops, the Governor said, would maintain the "status quo" while the writers are investigating reports of terrorism and suppression of free speech. Dreiser's committee plans to enter Harlan County tomorrow and conduct a meeting of the National Miners' Union to test the right of free speech.

NEGRO DIES OF STAB WOUNDS

Joseph Nash, 39 years old, a Negro policy writer, died of stab wounds of the chest when en route to City Hospital yesterday afternoon after applying for aid at the Deer Street Police Station.

Police questioned Mrs. Gladys Wright, a Negro, 4438 Cook avenue, and were told, they report, that Nash was stabbed by Mrs. Wright's estranged husband, Harry, who accused Nash of associating with Mrs. Wright. Harry Wright, who lives at 2922 Gamble street, is being sought. Nash lived at 2818 Lawton boulevard.

By W. J. McGoogan.

Joe Ghnouly reigns as king of the local featherweights today having passed the test demanded of him by the St. Louis boxing fans when he met and defeated Johnny Kaiser in a 10-round bout at the Coliseum last night.

Ghnouly piled up a decisive point total in winning the unanimous verdict of the judges, while this writer's tally showed six rounds for Joe, two for Kaiser and two even.

More impressive, however, than Ghnouly's victory was the fact that he took several of Kaiser's right-hand smashes flush on the chin, stood up and came back fighting. He showed that he is a fine boxer and in splendid physical condition.

There were no knockdowns scored by either, although Kaiser slipped to the floor once, and there was no particular damage done to either. Kaiser left the ring unmarked except for a blush about his ribs where he caught many of Ghnouly's hooks while Joe had a slight cut on his chin and his nose bled a little.

Ghnouly Avoids Kaiser's Right.

Joe showed great respect for Kaiser's right hand from the start. He didn't rush in as he did in his bouts with Davey Abad and Lou Terry, but circled cleverly to Kaiser's left to give Johnny's right as wide a berth as possible. In the early part of the fight Ghnouly also retreated, making Kaiser do considerable footwork and in addition forced numerous clinches in which he skillfully blocked Kaiser's right so that Johnny could do as little damage as possible with it.

There was little action in the first round, but in the second Johnny caught up with Ghnouly and staggered him with a right to the chin. Joe's legs sagged and the Kaiser followers had a momentary thrill, but Joe shook off the shock of Kaiser's punch and came back for more. Kaiser landed another hard right before the round ended, but Ghnouly's hard fighting kept Kaiser's margin down in the session and the following round was about even.

Kaiser Again Lands His Right.

In the fourth Kaiser landed another hard right to Ghnouly's chin after he had used a right uppercut effectively in the clinches. But Joe kept right on fighting and finished the round strong.

That was about the end of Kaiser's attack and for the remaining six rounds Ghnouly rolled up points. After the sixth Kaiser had to be content with laying back waiting for a chance to score a knockout—a chance which never came. Once or twice he started one on its way, but the blows, if they landed at all, found Ghnouly going away.

Ghnouly's body attack improved with each succeeding round and he did effective work in close. At the finish he had Kaiser's ribs punched red. But as always Joe lacked a killing punch and it was this lack which veteran followers of the sport decried, declaring that there would be no telling how high Joe could go if he only had some heavy artillery.

He has the youth and the stamina which goes with it, the speed and a fighting heart. If he should develop a knockout punch to go with his other natural assets he would be championship timber, in the opinion of those at the ringside last night.

The bout finished off a good card of five bouts promoted by Kid Bandy of the Stockham Post which attracted 5756 customers who paid a gross of $6764.20.

Perhaps the most surprising result of the evening was the draw decision which the judges handed down in the semi-windup between Lou Terry and Harold Scott. It appeared that Terry had won, having put his foe down three times. The fans were pulling hard for Scott to win or stay the limit and he did the latter. The judges rewarded his game showing with a draw. But it is to be hoped that there will be no rematch as it was an uninteresting contest.

Dave Barry and Woodrow Williams supplied the thrills of the preliminaries with Barry winning the decision after a real battle. The boys had fought twice previously with each having a victory to his credit; but there was no doubt about the winner last night.

Williams made a close fight of it to the eighth round, but he became slightly careless and Barry made good on an opening for his right hand punch. He put Williams on the floor for a nine count with a fine blow to the chin. Woodrow got up but was down for another nine just before the bell rang.

He recuperated quickly and come back to finish fighting, but Barry was clearly the victor.

Ghnouly to Box Here Again.

Gus Wilson, Ghnouly's manager and trainer has not decided definitely as to his charge's immediate future. Wilson plans to go to the Pacific Coast with Eugene Huat, his other top-notch fighter, and may take Joe with him for a contest. Gus expects Joe to fight in St. Louis once more before Christmas then lay off for about three weeks.

Kaiser proved that he has plenty of good fighting left in him and his recently-won prestige with the fans was not hurt in last night's defeat.

Johnny said after the battle that he had not been hurt at all, but that Ghnouly was an improved boxer over the raw kid who left here less than two years ago. He said that he noticed particularly that Ghnouly was plenty strong and hard to handle in close.

"And," sighed John, "he has that youth. That's everything. I guess I was looking at what Pal Moore saw when he fought me nine years ago. A youngster is able to absorb a punch which would put an old timer out. But I would like nothing better than to fight Joe again."

Jack Tippet announced that he had obtained Nov. 18 for a boxing card to be held at The Arena.

He May Add Strength to Cards' Hurling Staff

RAY STARR.

By Herman Wecke.

Although he pitched a no-hit, no-run game in his first start in professional baseball, Raymond Francis Starr, right-hander, who will be given a tryout by the Cardinals next spring, has had a tough time of it. And all because "Punch" Knoll, manager of the Danville club in 1926, tried to make him change his style of hurling even after he had set Bloomington down without a safety.

Since then Starr has had his ups and downs. Taking orders from Knoll, he tried to change his delivery, but he was unable to finish another game all season. The following campaign he went to Marshalltown, while he was with Danville and Topeka in 1928, with only fair success.

Then the right-hander decided to take matters into his own hands. He went back to his natural delivery and won 24 and lost 13 with Marshalltown in 1929, while with Danville in 1930 he won 17 and lost 11. These two fine seasons gave him a chance to go higher in the Cardinal organization.

Made Good at Rochester.

So the past spring he was at Houston. But after three games in which he served as relief, Joe Schultz decided he could not use him. A trade sent him to Rochester. Under Billy Southworth and in a league of higher classification, he immediately made good, finishing with 20 victories and seven defeats. He worked 219 innings and in that time permitted 81 runs and 192 hits. He walked 100 batters and fanned 85.

Starr did not make his debut with the Redwings until June 12, when he beat Jersey City, 3 to 2 in 15 innings.

Ever since he started, Starr has been more or less an "iron man." He has pitched nine double-headers, winning 19 of the contests and losing only one game, and that by a 2-1 decision, while performing for Rochester. For the Redwings he twirled three twin bills and gained victory in five of the battles.

Starr was born April 23, 1907, at Nowata, Ok. He stands 6 feet and weighs 160 pounds. It was while he was pitching for the Centralia (Ill.) club in 1925 that he came to the attention of the Cardinals. He was invited to Sportsman's Park for a trial and then sent to Danville in 1926. He has been in the Cardinal organization ever since.

Starr is one of the three young hurlers from whom Gabby Street expects help in the 1932 championship race.

M. U. TAKES UP PLAN FOR TWO BENEFIT GAMES

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 5. — The University of Missouri committee on intercollegiate athletics late this afternoon or tonight will consider Gov. Caulfield's suggestion that the Tiger football team play two post-season charity games, one in St. Louis and the other in Kansas City.

C. L. Brewer, director of athletics, was back in Columbia today after conferring with the Governor in Jefferson City, and Tom K. Smith, general chairman of the Citizens' Committee on Relief and Unemployment in St. Louis, and will present their suggestions to the athletic committee.

Earlier Brewer had discussed the probability of holding a game in Kansas City with members of the Mayor's committee of that city.

"The situation in both St. Louis and Kansas City is critical, and if the university is to render its services, there w the opportunity" Brewer quoted the Governor as saying.

The Missouri athletic director said the request of the Governor, together with the wishes of the St. Louis and Kansas City committees, would be presented to the committee. He added that the whole matter was outside the realm of intercollegiate athletics, and that the Governor wou' have jurisdiction over any decision the Big Six Conference might make.

PERFECTION ELEVEN CAN CLINCH DE MOLAY HONORS SUNDAY

Perfection can clinch the championship of the De Molay football league Sunday afternoon at Cleveland High School, provided it wins or ties with St. Louis, in the opening game of the doubleheader, starting at 1:30 o'clock. Carondelet opposes Harmony in the second game.

The champion of the league will represent St. Louis in the annual inter-city De Molay championships, to be held in Kansas City, the latter part of this month.

Football Briefs

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — Yale seems to have almost a new team as the "second half" of the football schedule gets under way. Five men, Flygare, Heim, Taylor, Levering and Mac Williamson, returned from the hospital squad to the active list yesterday.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—If Syracuse had no other reason for expecting a victory over Western Reserve Saturday, the mere fact that it is an intersectional game ought to be enough. The Orange already has beaten Ohio Wesleyan, Florida and Michigan State.

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—Navy has a couple of "up-and-coming" players to go in against Ohio State Saturday. J. B. Davis was promoted from the third team to quarterback on the first yesterday and P. F. McCrealy from the second team to the varsity left guard.

WORCESTER, Mass.—Although Holy Cross plays Duquesne Saturday the Crusaders' real objective is the Harvard game another week away. The reserves are expected to take care of the Dukes.

PRINCETON, N. J.—Every back on the Princeton squad seems to be getting a trial as a regular. Yesterday's lineup included only one man who started against Michigan Saturday. The others were Hugh Seyfarth, Watson Armour and John Van Dyke.

PHILADELPHIA. — Adding to the handicap Penn will be under when it faces Notre Dame Saturday, three players are nursing minor injuries. Captain Paul Riblett and George Munger have damaged legs and Carl Perina, star fullback, is recovering from an infected hand.

Wray's Column

Ageing Successfully.

OLD TEMPUS is fugiting furiously by, but it doesn't prevent our Mr. Peewee Kaiser from growing old gracefully. Fans who have followed Johnny's career felt that he carried off his 14 years of ring experience very nicely, in his fight against that little terrier, Joe Ghnouly.

Nevertheless, although Peewee is only 29 years old and still in the very prime of life, the peppering Ghnouly gave him must have made Johnny feel that something about him was slipping. To see the little tyke that he formerly had mauled around the gymnasium at will, take his deadliest blows and come swarming back at him like a six-cylinder hornet, must have pained and mortified him. Peewee still is a first-class fighting machine, however, and has no reason to feel that he has passed his peak irrevocably.

Good, Not Great?

AS FOR Joe Ghnouly, that little power plant has plenty to recommend him. He is a tireless worker, fast, cool, can "take it" and knows how to score at short or long range. At his weight he is a tough nut to crack.

But he lacks dynamite in either hand and for this reason it is unlikely that his will ever be among the great names of ring history.

It is a severe handicap and also a great test of fighting skill and generalship when a fighter knows that he can't hit hard and also knows that his opponent knows it.

That's the cross Joe will have to bear, in climbing to the top.

* * *

An Expert's View.

AMONG those present at ringside to see the Ghnouly-Kaiser fight was Harry Sharpe, veteran referee.

"After seeing Joe Ghnouly fight," Sharpe commented, "I believe him to be much improved since he first went under Gus Wilson's care. He evidently has been given a lot of instruction. He hits better, his judgment of distance and timing are excellent and he is much faster than he used to be. Joe was inclined to be slow, a year or more ago.

"He has been taught to come in close and smother his opponent's right hand and he did this nicely against Kaiser last night. He also has a number of infighting tricks.

"Joe's lack of a convincing punch handicaps him. He will probably learn to hit harder than he does now, but I doubt if at any time he will ever become a dangerous hitter. I refereed for both of these boys when they were amateurs and I keenly enjoyed seeing them match skill and wits.

One Way to Limit Hunting.

A FEW more clauses artfully qualifying our hunting privileges and even the "open" seasons will be closed. For example: During three days of deer hunting in Missouri there were only 50 or so deer slain, according to reports received at the State Game and Fish Commissioner's office. Considering all the rifles that were mustered for the slaughter of eight-pronged buck the result was puny.

That was because the hunter must stop to count the points on each deer before firing, as required by the State law.

The law also provides for the legal shooting of hawks, on some of which bounties are paid. But here, too, the hunter must watch his step. For, although there are four unprotected varieties of the falconiformes, there are 33 other species which may NOT be killed, legally.

Therefore, before letting fly with your automatic, be sure that you can distinguish Cooper's, Sharp-shinned and Goshawk types, as well as the Great Horned Owl, from all other falconiformes. Otherwise, explain to the game warden or the Judge.

* * *

Know Your Ornithology.

ON THIS basis only naturalists are eligible to shoot at the Hawk family, with any reasonable hope of obeying the law.

When it comes to separating and classifying four out of 37 types at long range (and probably in motion) nature forgot to equip us with eyes able to do the job.

For your own safety, however, if you are thinking of going a-hawking commit the following "protected" types to memory and then go to the library and study up on ornithology:

Bat Battalino Retains Feather Title, Beating Mastro in Close Fight

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Earl Mastro today was another one of the boys who have tried to knock the featherweight championship crown from Bat Battalino's head without being able to do more than leave it slightly askew.

The hardly youngster from Hartford, Conn., who can be depended upon to fight like a champion when his title is at stake, did exactly that last night in the Chicago stadium, winning the decision after 10 blistering rounds to thwart Mastro's challenge. The Chicago Italian, a master boxer, fought a game fight, but the champion's ruggedness and never ceasing attack, won him the favor of Referee Dave Barry and one judge. The other judge cast his vote for a draw.

Mastro came so close, however, that Barry's score card showed 51 points for the champion to 49 for the handsome Chicago youngster. The crowd of 14,022 spectators who left $40,353 at the gates, apparently approved the decision, although Mastro was a big sentimental favorite.

Champion Sets the Pace.

Battalino, as usual, set his own pace and maintained it almost without variation every second of the way. Mastro outboxed him in spots and made him miss badly on occasions, but the end of every round found Battalino gaining the advantage. He scored two knockdowns, and his purposeful body attack slowed Mastro down almost every time the latter got nicely started.

A left hook to the body and a right to the jaw sent Mastro down in the second round, but the challenger bounced to his feet before a count could be started. He was in real danger and Battalino's next rush sent him reeling into the ropes. He recovered quickly and the crowd was in an uproar as he traded punches with the champion until the bell sounded.

In the last two rounds Battalino's greater strength became plainly evident and he battered the tired Mastro almost at will. Ringside observers credited the champion with five rounds, with Mastro having a definite edge only in the first. Battalino weighed 125¾ and Mastro scaled 124½.

Scheib, Former Bears' Star, to Join Pro Eleven

Another Big Ten star, Leeka of Iowa, a halfback, is soon to join the Battery A Gunners, professional football team, according to an announcement by Capt. Robert Sampson of the National Guard body.

Leeka, who has been playing around Kansas City, wired for a berth with the local eleven and arrangements were completed for Leeka to come here. Because of business pressure, Leeka wanted to delay his arrival in St. Louis until next Tuesday, but the Battery is trying to get him here for Sunday's game with the Chicago Panthers.

End of the Battery eleven's worry over the center position is in sight. Lee. Scheib, former Washington University ace and all-Missouri Valley Conference pick, has wired from his home in Saginaw, Mich., asking about his chances of playing with the Gunners, and as a center is one thing the St. Louis team needs, it is likely that Scheib will be here soon. Bob Miller, a guard, has been playing center, but wants to get back to his regular berth.

Five players have been cut from the Gunner squad this week.

Coach Jimmy Conzelman has been using the blackboard in the practice drills of the Gunners. One night it's blackboard work and signal drill, the next general practice, with scrimmage.

Negotiations are under way for an appearance here of the Hominy Indians, veteran Oklahoma professional team.

COL. CHINN, HORSEMAN, FILES A VOLUNTARY BANKRUPTCY PETITION

By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 5.—Col. Phil T. Chinn, a leading breeder of thoroughbred race horses, yesterday filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition with Federal Judge Amm. J. Cochrane.

Col. Chinn's Himyar Stud was placed in the hands of a receiver last December, and the receivership is now being brought to a close. Because of nonliquid assets, the receivership has not been able to care for all creditors.

In filing the personal bankruptcy proceedings, Col. Chinn said it was his purpose to start all over again and to pay his creditors dollar for dollar, when possible.

BROWNS' APPEAL IN BENNETT CASE TAKEN UNDER ADVISEMENT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—The United States Court of Appeals yesterday took under advisement an appeal by the owners of the St. Louis club of the American League, and the Milwaukee club of the American Association, from Federal Judge Walter Lindley's decision upholding Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, in the Fred Bennett case.

Bennett, an outfielder, had been transferred back and forth between several clubs operated by St. Louis as "farms," Milwaukee being one. Commissioner Landis ruled that the Browns either must use Bennett or give him an outright release. Judge Lindley ruled Landis was within his authority in making the decision.

St. Louis U. to Open Basketball Season, Dec. 8

With four new opponents and 18 games scheduled, the St. Louis University Billikens will open the basketball season, Dec. 8, against McKendree at the Billiken gymnasium. From that date on, Coach Mike Nyikos' team will be fairly busy until late in February. The Bears are scheduled for the final game, Feb. 23.

For the first time, a California team will play in St. Louis, the University of Southern California showing here Dec. 17. Missouri also so engages the Billikens for the first time in basketball, playing Dec. 14. The other new teams are Illinois University and Illinois College.

Nebraska, after an absence of a year, returns and the Kansas Aggies, Grinnell and Oklahoma Aggies are among other strong quintets to be met.

Perhaps the most difficult stage of the season comes at the very start for during the first 11 days after the opening, the Billikens will be asked to meet Illinois, Southern California, Missouri and the Kansas Aggies. However, the St. Louisans should be ready as Coach Nyikos has been working with his squad since Oct. 19. He has been hampered somewhat by the absence from practice of Frank Kennedy and other veteran members of the squad.

Dec. 8—McKendree College here.
Dec. 12—Illinois U. at Champaign.
Dec. 14—Missouri here.
Dec. 17—Southern California here.

EAST ST. LOUIS HIGH BASKETBALL SQUAD IN FIRST PRATICE

The East St. Louis High School basketball squad held its first practice of the year in the high school gymnasium yesterday afternoon. Thirty-five candidates answered Assistant Coach Jack Sullivan's call. The East St. Louis team bids fair to be the best in the Southwestern Illinois High School Conference, as four of last year's lettermen are back in addition to a host of stars from the reserves.

The team, under Sullivan, will hold light workouts until football is completed, when Coach Nolen will take over the duties. The four lettermen returning are Herb Fash, captain; Edwin "Dutch" Lottman, Francis Haider and Charlie Vaughn. Outstanding second stringers are Coy Douglas, forward; Alvin Majesky, guard and forward; Jack Sanders, center; Sammy Wrenn, forward; Albert Hood, guard; Grekowich, guard; Jack Browning, forward; Leonard Hinson, center; Frank Kavalier, guard, and Cliff Mulqueeney, a forward.

Fash, Jack Browning, Dutch Lottman, Frank Kavalier, Cliff Mulquenney and Leonard Hinson are on the football eleven.

in real danger and Battalino's next rush sent him reeling into the ropes. He recovered quickly and the crowd was in an uproar as he traded punches with the champion until the bell sounded.

In the last two rounds Battalino's greater strength became plainly evident and he battered the tired Mastro almost at will. Ringside observers credited the champion with five rounds, with Mastro having a definite edge only in the first. Battalino weighed 125½ and Mastro scaled 124½.

St. Louis U. to Open Basketball Season, Dec. 8

With four new opponents and 18 games scheduled, the St. Louis University Billikens will open the basketball season, Dec. 8, against McKendree at the Billiken gymnasium. From that date on, Coach Mike Nyikos' team will be fairly busy until late in February. The Bears are scheduled for the final game, Feb. 23.

For the first time, a California team will play in St. Louis, the University of Southern California showing here Dec. 17. Missouri also engages the Billikens for the first time in basketball, playing Dec. 14. The other new teams are Illinois University and Illinois College.

Nebraska, after an absence of a year, returns and the Kansas Aggies, Grinnell and Oklahoma Aggies are among other strong quintets to be met.

Perhaps the most difficult stage of the season comes at the very start for during the first 11 days after the opening, the Billikens will be asked to meet Illinois, Southern California, Missouri and the Kansas Aggies. However, the St. Louisans should be ready as Coach Nyikos has been working with his squad since Oct. 19. He has been hampered somewhat by the absence from practice of Frank Kennedy and other veteran members of the squad.

Dec. 8—McKendree College here.
Dec. 12—Illinois U. at Champaign.
Dec. 14—Missouri here.
Dec. 17—Southern California here.
Dec. 19—Kansas Aggies here.
Jan. 2—Arkansas U. here.
Jan. 9—Grinnell College here.
Jan. 19—Washington U. at Washington.
Jan. 23—Concordia Seminary at St. Louis.
Jan. 30—Drake University here.
Feb. 6—Illinois College here.
Feb. 9—Kansas Aggies at Manhattan.
Feb. 10—Nebraska at Lincoln.
Feb. 13—Concordia at Concordia.
Feb. 15—Oklahoma Aggies at Stillwater.
Feb. 16—Arkansas U. here.
Feb. 20—Oklahoma Aggies here.
Feb. 23—Washington U. at St. Louis.

EAST ST. LOUIS HIGH BASKETBALL SQUAD IN FIRST PRATICE

The East St. Louis High School basketball squad held its first practice of the year in the high school gymnasium yesterday afternoon. Thirty-five candidates answered Assistant Coach Jack Sullivan's call. The East St. Louis team bids fair to be best in the Southwestern Illinois High School Conference, as four of last year's lettermen are back in addition to a host of stars from the reserves.

The team, under Sullivan, will hold light workouts until football is completed, when Coach Nolen will take over the duties. The four lettermen returning are Herb Fash, captain; Edwin "Dutch" Lottman, Francis Haider and Charlie Vaughn. Outstanding second stringers are Roy Douglas, forward; Alvin Masky, guard and forward; Jack Sanders, center; Sammy Wrenn, forward; Albert Hood, guard; Jurekowich, guard; Jack Browning, forward; Leonard Hinson, center; Frank Kavalier, guard, and Cliff Mulqueeney, a forward.

Fash, Jack Browning, Dutch Lottman, Frank Kavalier, Cliff Mulqueenney and Leonard Hinson are on the football eleven.

FREDERICKSON, BEAR FULLBACK, MAY BE OUT FOR THE SEASON

By J. Roy Stockton.

Trials, tribulations and problems have beset Coach Al Sharpe and his assistant, Gale Bullman, all season, but despite all their toughening experiences they registered shocked surprise and gloom last night when examiners at Barnes Hospital sent word that Fullback Ed Frederickson probably would be lost to the squad for the rest of the season.

"Brace yourself for this one," Dr. Sharpe warned Bullman when he broke the news to the line coach. "And when you ask me who's going to take Frederickson's place, I'll ask you the same question."

Frederickson, it was learned, has a thigh injury. He will go to the hospital today for a final examination, and if the verdict is that he will have to quit football, the outlook for the Bears will be even gloomier than it has ever been before—and the boys have had their backs to the wall so long that calluses have formed.

Tyrell to Be Shifted.

Max Tyrell probably will have to play fullback if Frederickson is lost. He is a midget, as college backfield men go, but he is a game little scrapper and knows what it is all about.

The Bears practiced again last night against the Grinnell College plays. The Pioneer formations were explained to the Washington athletes in the Monday evening meeting, Bullman illustrating with blackboard drawings. Then the boys were given the plays to study. In the practice sessions the second team, with Bullman playing to keep them on the jump, worked the Grinnell plays and tried to fool the Varsity.

"That is valuable practice," Bullman explained. "The one thing that a football player must learn, if he is to excel, is to diagnose plays. There are little things that tip off an attacking team's plans to the smart defensive players and we are trying to develop that ability to diagnose."

Freshmen Play Today.

The Bear Varsity will have only a short workout this evening, as most of the afternoon will be devoted to the Freshmen's game with the McKendree College "B" team. There are several promising athletes on Coach Johnny Davis' first-year squad, and the coaches are hoping that the Freshmen will show something to cheer them up and make them look forward to 1932 with some degree of optimism.

Two other games remain on the freshman schedule, Shurtleff at Alton, Nov. 13, and the annual contest with the Billiken yearlings at Francis Field, Nov. 20.

GRINNELL PIONEERS SHOW SPEED IN DRILL FOR GAME WITH BEARS

GRINNELL, Ia., Nov. 5.—Grinnell College went through a long dummy scrimmage yesterday, opposed the Grinnell High School eleven for a half hour, then took a session of scrimmage against the yearling team, and at dusk was looking for more competition.

Coach L. L. Watt's huskies passed and ran circles around every form of opposition given them, Thomas doing the tossing while Duncan made some excellent catches.

DeWitt McCreary, veteran halfback, went to the bench with a bad knee, bringing the Pioneer casualty list of regulars to five. His place was taken alternately by Alexander, Spangler, and Waite, all of whom got away for some good runs.

DEPAUW HALFBACK INDIVIDUAL STAR OF MID-WEST GRIDIRONS

GREENCASTLE, Ind., Nov. 5.—Donald Wheaton, Depauw halfback, has done the flashiest work of the season on Mid-Western gridirons.

Wheaton ran 70 yards through Manchester College, 97 through Cincinnati, 63 through Boston University, and last Saturday made runs of 82 and 70 yards against Franklin College.

The "Depauw Dynamiter" hails from Wheaton, Ill., home town of Red Grange, and while in high school was the running mate of Olsen, Northwestern star.

By Dan McGugin.
(Head Football Coach, Vanderbilt University.)

By the Associated Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 5.—It is customary for defensive lines to shift somewhat to meet an unbalanced backfield.

As an example, when the offensive backfield has its greatest strength on the right side, there is a tendency for the defensive lines to shift somewhat to their left.

Vanderbilt has a play designed to take advantage of this situation. It is worked in this manner:

Fortune, Vanderbilt fullback, made repeated gains last year with this play, getting three gains of 12 yards or more in the game between Georgia Tech and Vanderbilt.

And in the Meantime.

WHILE guessing about Dempsey continues to be the big indoor sport of the season, there is a battle of dreadnaughts brewing in New York, which will develop fully on Nov. 27. That will be the first of the eliminations in the "super-dreadnaught" class, an offspring of the octogenarian mind of Commissioner Muldoon of New York. Just after Carnera proved that he was quite capable of taking care of himself by giving Sharkey a good fight for 15 rounds, the State Athletic Commission of New York decreed that Carnera must fight members of his own weight class. This, the commission thought, should include men like Vittorio Campolo, Jose Santa and other men of altitude and weight exceeding an eighth of a ton.

* * *

Hence Campolo and Carnera have been matched. In a way it will be quite a spectacle. Carnera will be shooting at a bigger target and the missing right hand punch is likely to be more in evidence. Campolo is slower than Carnera but he too can hit. However, he has no such concrete and steel superstructure as Carnera.

If the fight lasts the limit, it will be surprising. Carnera will probably knock out Campolo but he is quite capable of winning a decision with his now highly educated left hand.

* * *

One of the strange features of the fistic education of Carnera has been that his teachers have concentrated on his left hand and really have improved it. In the meantime the right seems to have atrophied and lost its power.

This writer's theory is that most of the fights in which Carnera failed to show hitting power were against smaller men and rapidly-moving targets. Against big, slow men Carnera may look entirely different.

All-Stars Defeat Lamberts.

The University City All-Stars defeated the Wooster Lamberts, 3171 to 2997, in a special three-game bowling match between the two teams yesterday afternoon at Peterson's. Hank Summers had the high individual score with 657, while Rudy Meyer led the Lamberts with 648.

BILLIKENS MUST STOP LOPEZ TO DEFEAT LOYOLA

By James M Gould.

Scheduled to meet the Loyola of the South eleven tomorrow night, the St. Louis University Billikens will arrive in New Orleans early this afternoon and practice on Loyola's field. When the St. Louis squad left here last night, the members were in fine physical condition and ready for the expected hard struggle.

There were no prospective changes in the lineup of the Billikens which was announced before the team departed. On the line will be McGowan and Kennedy at the ends, O'Brien and Philpot at the tackles, Tierney and Montgomery at the guards and Captain Muellerleide at center.

The starting backfield will consists of Bassett, Stephan and Schumacher at the halves and Arenz at full. It is expected that the backfield will see more replacements inasmuch as Bob McCoole and Lee Savage are in condition, after missing two games and Benny LaPresta and Manuel Rapp always get in action at some stage of the game. Pike, as is the St. Louis custom, will be kept on the sidelines as an observer for the first few minutes of the contest.

Head Coach Chile Walsh has centered much of the short practice-week to a defense against Loyola's chief gainer, Fullback Lopez. It was this player who carried the most of Loyola's offense in the 14—7 victory over the Billikens a year ago and it is he who has done most of the rushing in the games on this season's schedule.

Lopez likes to pound the opposing guards in his rushes and may find the St. Louis defenders at these positions tougher to pierce than were the 1930 occupants.

As nearly as can be gathered from comparative scores, the teams should be rated equal and the old condition—that the team getting "the breaks" should win—would seem to obtain.

The game will be played under the lights which should not work to the Billikens' disadvantage inasmuch as they have played five of their six 1931 games at night.

St. Marks Girls Win.

The St. Mark's High School girls defeated St. Liborius, 26 to 12, in a basketball game last night on the St. Mark's floor. Rita Federstiel led the St. Mark's scorers with 11, while Jane Gruener accounted for nine of the 12 points scored by St. Liborius.

MURPHY PICKED TO REFEREE IN GILLESPIE GAME

Robert "Ribby" Murphy, former referee for the St. Louis Soccer League, has been selected to officiate in the first round National challenge cup match between the Stix, Baer & Fullers and Gillespie at Gillespie, Ill., next Sunday. This announcement was made today by Winton E. Barker, western commissioner.

The match will be the first in the national competition for a local club since last April, when the Ben Millers fell before the Bricklayers of Chicago, in the Western final. Gillespie has already won a preliminary round game, defeating West Frankfort, 4 goals to 2.

Bill Lehman's aggregation will be crippled for the contest, since Charley LaBarge, the veteran "goalie" is ineligible. Either Dave Bartnett, who suffered a fractured jaw in a game three weeks ago, or Joe Tuvill, a halfback, will be between the uprights, according to Owner Jack Dwyer. All the other regulars will play as the Stix want to take no chances on a defeat and elimination from the title competition.

Gillespie this season is without the services of Joe Hendren, the "goalie" who proved one of the stars in the team's losing battle against the Hellrungs here last season. Hendren is now a member of the Andersons, one of the clubs in the St. Louis League.

New Players With Brickies.

Several new faces will be seen in action when an All-Star club from the local professional circuit, plays the Bricklayers of Chicago in an exhibition match at Sportsman's Park. Bobby Walker has replaced Willie McLean, now with the Stix eleven, as the outside left forward, while Jimmy Lillie or A. Walker will be on the other wing. Jimmy Martin is playing center halfback for the Chicagoans this season, Tom Scott, former local star, having been sent back to the fullback position to replace Bob Gregg, who is sought by Jack Dwyer.

However, the other Bricklayer players are well known here. Vic Neate has played here many times as has Hugh Davidson, goalie and fullback, respectively. Cuthbert, Greenlees, Coutts and Munro are still stars on the forward line, while Ogilvie and Tommy Hill have shown here before as halfbacks.

Against this eleven, the St. Louis League will send a well balanced team. It is not the strongest in the circuit, since Stix players were not selected, but it should force the visitors to a real fight. The last time, a St. Louis All-Star club faced the Chicagoans, the locals won, 3 goals to 2.

As a result of the indefinite suspension of Bud Grennon, the league officials have revised the forward line of the All-Stars. Under the new arrangement, Reidy will be at outside left; Moore or Nash at inside left; Flavin at center; Hennessy, inside right, and Kickham, outside right. There's plenty of speed and punch on this front wall.

Mossman Returns to City.

Oscar Mossman, who at one time refereed in the pro circuit, has returned to St. Louis from a visit to relatives in Oklahoma. He has taken a position at the Missouri A. A. and if these duties do not conflict, he will likely be seen in action again as a soccer official. If not employed as a referee, Mossman would make an excellent coach, especially for one of the younger clubs in the Municipal League.

Despite his trouble in last Sunday's match when he ejected three players and another walked off the field, Tom Thomas is anxious for more work in the local league. He indicated as much when he came here for a conference with President Barker.

Entry List to Close.

The entry list for the seventh annual Knights of Columbus city bowling tournament to be held on the Mid-City alleys starting Nov. 21, will be closed Saturday. A. B. Berne, 3939 Minnesota, is handling the event.

NOTRE DAME MEN OPEN DRIVE FOR MEMORIAL FOR KNUTE ROCKNE

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. — Notre Dame men in many parts of America, gathered last night to pay tribute to Knute Rockne, famous football coach who was killed in an airplane accident last spring and to open a campaign for $1,000,000 to build a permanent memorial to him in a field house on the Notre Dame campus.

A nation-wide radio hookup linked the meetings together as outstanding speakers from various gatherings went on the air.

SCHWAKE FINED $100, SUSPENDED FOR NINETY DAYS BY COMMISSION

Three boxers, two managers and the timekeeper who took part in the boxing show at The Arena, Sept. 28, which was held under an injunction after the State Athletic Commission had ordered it stopped, were fined and suspended following a meeting between Seneca C. Taylor, commissioner for the St. Louis district, and Chester L. Brewer, chairman of the commission.

John Schwake, Webster Groves heavyweight; Tiny de Bolt, Cleveland heavyweight, and Joe Stanton, local featherweight, were set down for 90 days and fined, Schwake and De Bolt $100 each, and Stanton $50. Eddie Meade, Cleveland, manager of De Bolt, and Joe Herbst, Schwake's manager, were also fined $100 each and suspended for 90 days.

Moe Willer, who acted as timekeeper, was suspended indefinitely.

The reason for the action against the boxers and their managers was the fact that the fighters fought without licenses. Schwake's license had expired June 30 and he had neglected to renew it. So did Stanton, while De Bolt never had a Missouri license.

Abad Escapes Punishment.

Davey Abad, who struck the referee, Albert Graff, after that official had given the decision to Joe Ghnouly over Abad, escaped punishment because the commission took the stand that as the bout was held without its sanction, it could not recognize anything which took place except where the parties were without a license.

Graff was not an official referee and therefore immune from action by the commission. Eddie Meier, who also acted as a referee, was exonerated when he explained that he officiated only in the interest of the public. He is a licensed second.

The suspensions are binding in other states besides Missouri affiliated with the National Boxing Association, but Schwake's suspension will not take effect until Saturday, in order not to interfere with his bout at Indianapolis Friday night with K. O. Christner.

Other Disputes Decided.

The commission also acted on two other disputes. It awarded $29.72 to Bob Reilly for his fee in obtaining a bout for Clyde Chastain here. Chastain had refused to pay, but upon Reilly's showing the the effect that he had acted under agreement with Chastain, he was given the money.

Jerry Duggan, a boxer whose purse was held up after a bout at Battery A in July, which was unsatisfactory, was fined half his purse of $40.

Miss Madison Established 37 of 144 World's Records Set During 1931 Campaign

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Helene Madison, 17-year-old Seattle (Wash.) girl, is due for official recognition as the outstanding swimmer of the United States if not of the world, when the 1931 crop of athletic records is presented to the Amateur Athletic Union meeting at Kansas City, Nov. 15, 16 and 17.

Of the 144 world's records and American marks to be considered, Miss Madison has made 37. During the year, her first of competition, the Seattle girl smashed 10 world records and 17 American records, and if the new times are recognized, as they undoubtedly will be, she will hold every woman's swimming record from 100 yards to one mile, and there are 16 different marks listed between those limits.

In track and field sports, feminine athletes also outshone their male rivals when it came to breaking records. Mildred "Babe" Diedrickson of Dallas, Tex., smashed eight track and field records. Stella Walsh, the Cleveland flyer, shattered seven sprint marks. Betty Robinson of Chicago, whose track career was shattered by an injury received in an airplane accident, annexed four new records, while the leading record breaker among the men, Leonard Spence, New York Athletic Club swimmer, set three marks to tie with three women athletes for the next place on the list of record breakers. Eleanor Holm, New York swimmer; Mary Carew, Medford (Mass.) sprinter, and Jean Shiley, Philadelphia high jumper, also made three records apiece.

Altogether, the women accounted for 75 of the records which will come up for consideration and the men for 69.

Outstanding among the masculine performances were a 10 2-5 second 100-yard dash by Hubert Meier of Iowa State College, who also tied a second record of 6 1-10 for the 60-yard indoor sprint. Percy Beard's two hurdle marks, 8 5-10 for 70 yards over the sticks indoors and 14 2-10 for the outdoor 120-yard high hurdles and a decathlon record of 8166.663 points made by Jess Mortensen of the Los Angeles A. C. Mortensen's record was over 100 points better than that made by Paavo Yrjola, Finland's Olympic champion.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 5.—Mate, A. C. Bostwick's star three-year-old, twice conqueror of Twenty Grand, won the 23rd running of the Bowie Handicap at the Pimlico track yesterday to add $8750 to his winnings and pass Twenty Grand in total earnings.

Mate now has won $263,150, which is $3225 more than the total for Twenty Grand. Bostwick's star won but $58,650 as a two-year-old, but during his three-year-old career has accounted for $204,500.

As a three-year-old, Mate has started 13 times and has been out of the money only twice. He has won six races, finished second once and on four occasions he was third.

Mate's victory in the Bowie, a mile and a half race, under the impost of 127 pounds, was something of a surprise, as he had been defeated by lesser lights in his previous two starts at Laurel. On Oct. 24, he ran third to Clock Tower and Pilate in a one and one-quarter mile race at Laurel, while a week later, he finished out of the money behind Clock Tower, Dr. Freeland and Blenheim in another Laurel feature.

The Bostwick crack defeated St. Brideaux, a stablemate of Twenty Grand's by half a length in the Bowie Handicap. Mate took the lead at the mi' and held it for the remainder of the distance. St. Brideaux was "pocketed" and was unable to overtake the leader. Blenheim finished third.

Mate's time was 2:32, more than a second behind the record. He was the favorite in the wagering, paying $4.90 for $2.

AMERICAN HORSE WINS STEEPLECHASE EVENT

HAWTHORNE HILL, England, Nov. 5.—M. D. Blair's Candover, at odds of 7 to 1 against, today won a mile hurdle race for three-year-olds from J. Whiteman's Merry Bill and 12 others. The victory was worth $500 to the American sportsman.

Benefit Racing Card at Belmont Draws Only 4000

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. A RATHER poorly attended charity program at Belmont Park yesterday rang down the curtain on the 1931 metropolitan racing season. Only about 4000 spectators were on hand, but a hurried check of the receipts showed that the extra day of racing netted about $20,000 for the needy.

Mrs. Victor Emanuel's The Beasel, an odds-on favorite, won the feature race on the card, the Belmont Park Purse, nosing out Flying Heels and Waterway in a close finish. The three were only heads apart at the wire. Despite a strong head wind, The Beasel ran the six furlongs in 1:11.

BRENNANS WIN AND TAKE FIRST PLACE IN MAJOR CITY LEAGUE

Clarence Kaley's Brennan team went into first place in the Major City Scratch League at the Mid City alleys Monday night by winning three games from the Q. M. Recreations, while the Silver Seals were losing two games to the Mid City Five.

The Schaper team set a new team single game record by rolling 1117 in the second game of their match with the Lindburgs, who dropped three games. The individual scores of this game were: Heibel 224, Frederic 199, Wolf 219, Weber 233 and Groneck 242.

The Wooster Lamberts won three games from the Haucks, the Witters took three from the Alexanders, the Jule Schmitts won three from the Cornwals, the Kassings won the odd game from the General Tires and the Henry Schaefers won two from the Cabannes in the other matches.

The high scorers in Monday night's bowling were: Wolf 676, Meyer 672, Stein Jr. 653, Sottrell 650, Kaley 653, Zipf 644, Kennedy 642, H. A. Exler 642, Schmitt 639, Bender 633 and Garafolo 630.

The Brennans now have won 18 games and 16st 6 and hold a lead of one game over the Silver Seals. The Schapers have high team average of 996, while Roy Nelson holds both individual records, with scores of 717 and 280.

REGULAR TIGER BACKS IN SHAPE FOR DRAKE GAME

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 5.—Mingled with praise for the Kansas State eleven this season is the oft repeated question: "What will Coach 'Bo' McMillin do next?"

He has a habit of keeping the other coaches guessing and his bag of tricks is always full. Just now speculation hinges on what he will spring against Iowa State Saturday in a game involving two of the three undefeated leaders in the Big Six conference.

Capt. Henry Cronkite, end, blossomed out as a first rate place kicker against West Virginia last week and there is a possibility he may be the key man in another outburst of McMillinism. Ralph Graham was injured in that same game and Coach McMillin has been grooming Zeeker, a regular guard, for a niche in the Aggies' "five-man backfield."

The Iowa State Cyclones will be at full strength, providing Schafroth, a sophomore backfield ace, recovers from a slight attack of influenza. Offensive tactics were stressed in the camp yesterday.

Coach H. W. Hargiss of Kansas, with Phil Borello and Elmer Schaake, two backfield men, off the roster for the Oklahoma tilt, is testing the mettle of Plumley, Gridley and Madison as replacements. The Jayhawkers showed strength again line rushes but did not fare so well against Oklahoma passing plays as used by the freshmen.

At Oklahoma, Ellstrom, Dunlap, Lewis and Walker worked overtime in an effort to improve their kicking. Deficiency in this department cost the Sooners the Iowa State game last week.

Coach Gwinn Henry, who has seen several injured Missourians left behind on every football trip this season, may himself be forced to remain at home when his eleven meets Drake tomorrow night. Suffering from sciatica, he left a sick bed yesterday to direct his Tigers. Stuber, Captain Bittner and Gill, all regular backs, took part in the workout.

May Play In Cleveland.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5. — Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago and Tiff Denton of Kansas City, both former champions, have been placed in the world's championship three-cushion tournament without going through a qualifying round, it has been decided by the National Billiard Association. Kieckhefer demonstrated last week in a match against Arthur Thurnblad, the world's champion, that he is back in form, while Denton, who finished fifth in the 1931 world's tourney, has been advanced from the sectionals.

Denton originally had been scheduled to compete in the Southern sectional final, which will open at Peterson's Billiard Academy in St. Louis, Nov. 10. Kieckhefer, who won the Northern title in 1929, was forced to withdraw from competition last season because of ill health.

The field for the world's tournament now is certain to have 10 players. In addition to Kieckhefer and Denton there will be the four seeded players—Arthur Thurnblad, present champion; Allen Hall, Johnny Layton and Otto Reiselt, who finished in that order in the championship, and the four sectional winners.

Kieckhefer showed remarkable form in his exhibitions in Chicago last week. First he met five all-stars in individual matches and scored 250 points in 194 innings. Then he followed with a match against Thurnblad, winning by 200 to 144 in 166 innings. For the week Kieckhefer scored 450 points in 360 innings, for an average of 1.25.

C. A. Storer, president of the National Billiard Association, said there was a possibility of 12 players appearing in the world's championship tournament. There is a chance that Gus Copulos, veteran star, may be placed in the tournament, and if Jake Schaefer, world's 18.2 balkline champion, accepts the invitation extended to him some time ago he will be enrolled. The last two world's championships were limited to eight players.

Hoskins Returns to Bucknell.

CLINKSTOCK MATCHED WITH EARL McCREADY

Jim Clinkstock, 230-pound Oklahoma Indian, will meet Earl McCready, giant Canadian matman and former national collegiate wrestling champion, in a match announced today by Promoter Tom Packs as the semiwindup to the one-fall finish bout between Hans Kampfer of Germany and Pat O'Shocker of this city, featuring a program of four heavyweight events at The Arena next Wednesday night. The McCready-Clinkstock bout will be limited to 45 minutes.

McCready defeated John Maxos, Milo Steinborn and George Tragos in previous engagements here and earned a draw against George Zaharias, wild Colorado Greek, in a 45-minute bout. The big Canadian matman also numbers Serge Kalmikoff, Mike Romano, Jack Taylor and Tom Draak among his professional mat triumphs, while he has drawn with Ray Steele and Shikat.

Clinkstock has shown [illegible] local fans about 20 times [illegible] the last three years, winning [illegible] majority of his bouts. Jimmy Lados defeated him three [illegible] Kampfer and Zaharias also [illegible] victories over the Indian grappler.

With Milo Steinborn, the German strong man, and Gino Garibaldi, local Italian headlock artist, paired in the second preliminary of next week's program, but one more match is needed by Promoter Packs to complete his card.

HANS KAMPFER PINS VACTUROFF IN MATCH ON CLEVELAND CARD

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 5.—Hans Kampfer, young German wrestler, may be the leading title contender in St. Louis, but for the time being, at least, he is just another preliminary boy here.

Last night in the second preliminary of a mat show here, featuring George Zaharias and Jack Washburn, Kampfer pinned Ivan Vacturoff of Russia in six minutes 17 seconds. Vacturoff is suffering from an eye disease and many thought he should not have been allowed to enter the ring.

Wins Westwood Golf Title.

Dr. Sylvester Fendler won the golf championship of the Westwood Country Club in a tournament just concluded, defeating Phil Mayer, 4 and 3, in the 36-hole final match. Dick Levis captured the Class A title, defeating Milton Freund in the final, 4 and 2.

53 COLLEGES HAVE ARRANGED CHARITY GAMES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—America's college football players have heard the call to come to the aid of the unemployed and needy and they have responded with offers of 128 college teams to help in one way or another.

Already 53 teams have arranged special games, the proceeds of which are to go to charity, it is revealed by the first report of F. K. Hall, chairman of the Football Rules Committee, who took over the task of handling the program after Owen D. Young issued a call for aid on behalf of the President's organization on unemployment relief.

Fifty-seven more are planning special charity games; seven have agred to give the net proceeds of one regular game to relief funds and eleven will contribute a percentage of the receipts of a regular game. In addition to the college games, three professional teams, the Chicago Bears, Chicago Cardinals and Cleveland Indians have arranged charity games.

In making his report, Hall praised highly the efforts of the colleges to lend a hand and added that "further reports make me confident that literally hundreds of other colleges and schools throughout the country will have their part in this project."

Hall praised the players fully as much as the schools. "The response of the schools and colleges has been magnificent," he said. "The response of the members of the football teams, most of which will have already played through long, hard schedules, has been 100 per cent."

PENN EXPECTED TO GIVE IRISH A REAL FIGHT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—If there is anything in reports from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania's undefeated football team will give Notre Dame its toughest argument of the season when they meet in the new brick stadium at South Bend Saturday.

According to a clipping posted in the dressing room of the fighting Irish, Penn will come West, not with the idea of holding Notre Dame to a close score, but confident of winning. Coach Harvey Harmon thinks he has the best line in the East, according to the reports, as well as a great fullback in Perina, and he believes his eleven has the best chance any team has had of beating Notre Dame.

Coach Hunk Anderson is more worried over over-confidence than about Penn, and yesterday delivered a lecture on "balloon heads," which had the effect of stirring the Irish regulars enough to wallop the freshmen, 49 to 0 in a practice game.

Wildcat Squad at Peak.

Northwestern and Minnesota have finished the hard part of their preparation for Saturday's battle at Evanston. The Wildcats have their most powerful lineup ready for the contest, and the Gophers expect to have all hands in condition by Saturday with the possible exception of Wells, a star lineman. Ken MacDougall, the 145-pound sparkplug of the Minnesota attack, has been suffering with an injured ankle, but is expected to be ready to help in his team's most important test.

Illinois will be without Herman Walser, its regular quarterback, against Wisconsin Saturday, but the Badgers also will be lacking a star back. Bobby Schiller was so seriously injured in the Minnesota game that he is not expected to finish the campaign. Only routine drills remain for the rest of the week in other Big Ten camps. Michigan and Indiana, which tangle at Ann Arbor, have tied up all loose ends, and the Wolverines are confident of squaring up for that one touchdown defeat administered in 1923.

Purdue and Chicago which meet non-conference opponents will use Saturday for experimental purposes but Iowa and Ohio State, which also go out of the league, have such serious assignments in Nebraska and Navy, respectively, that they plan to let go with all the power they possess. Purdue does not expect much trouble from Centenary, and Chicago is looking forward to a victory over Arkansas' Razorbacks.

KEN STRONG'S ELEVEN BEATS BROOKLYN 13-0

By the Associated Press.

STAPLETON, N. Y., Nov. 5.—The Stapleton "Stapes," led by Ken Strong, defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers, 13 to 0, last night in the third and deciding National League game between two of New York City's three pro teams.

Rejuvenated by the coaching of Marty Brill, Stapleton marched 65 yards with Strong and Parkinson carrying the ball for the first touchdown in the opening period. Strong also scored the second touchdown in the third quarter after Tiny Feather had intercepted a Dodger pass and run 65 yards before being pulled down.

Strong also place kicked the extra point.

Texas League Team Finds Mexicans Playing Better and Baseball Interest Growing

By Dent McSkimming.
(By Mail to the Post-Dispatch.)

MEXICO CITY—"If Mexico City can continue to progress in the next ten years as she has in the past ten in the matter of baseball development, I can easily see where she will be entertaining major league clubs from the United States at the conclusion of every season."

So summarized Art Phelan, manager of the Fort Worth (Texas League) team, his impressions of baseball in Mexico, as he prepared to depart for home at the conclusion of a nine-game series here.

Fort Worth won six of the nine games and the Fabriles, Mexico's strongest club, took three. Not a bad showing for a team which does not have the advantage of daily league competition. Fort Worth finished fourth in the Texas League race and the lineup for the series here was precisely the same as that used in the regular season. Only reserve pitchers were missing.

Ban Johnson Trophy.

This visit of Fort Worth brings to mind the fact that the first league team from the United States to visit Mexico's capital was the Chicago White Sox, in 1907. American residents of Mexico City picked up a team to oppose the major leaguers on that occasion and the series of three games was merely an exhibition affair. There was not another caller of league class until 1921, when the Dallas and San Antonio clubs came for a series of games. It seems that because of the revolution of 1910 there was a complete cessation of sports here for a period of six years so that when Dallas and San Antonio arrived there was no local opposition worthy of the name. They played nine games between themselves and the exhibition aroused a new interest in the game.

The next stimulus was provided by the late Byron Bancroft Johnson, who came here in 1927 with his friend Walter Fritsch, part owner of the St. Louis Browns. Ban was so delighted with the evidence of interest and progress in his chosen game that he left here a handsome silver trophy to be offered annually to the winner of a championship series. Unfortunately, a breach occurred among the directors of the pastime in 1929 and since that time there has been no recognized championship series to the winner of which the trophy might be presented. The Ban Johnson trophy is now held by the Comintra Club, which won it the first two seasons. Fabriles, however, are the present champions.

The baseball park here accommodates about 10,000 persons with recently constructed bleacher or "sol" seats. It has been packed on several occasions, notably during the visit of the Missouri Pacific team of Kingville, Tex., a club which rates about on a par with class C. Fabriles were victors in the series.

It was their success in this series which convinced the local management that the Fabriles were ready to tackle bigger game. There was a plan afoot to bring a major league club here. It was felt that class A teams weren't strong enough. Then came Fort Worth and now Mexico City fans are very much dissatisfied with their favorites. They can't understand why the Fabriles played so poorly against Fort Worth. Their baseball education is not sufficiently complete for them to appreciate the superiority of a team which has had the benefit of daily play in an organized league. All they know is that Fabriles should win all their games. The fans, volatile as all Latins, heaped abuse on the local players when they failed to make base hits and when they failed to stop a double steal.

Tendency to "Grandstand."

"These fellows are going to make good ball players," said Phelan on the eve of departure. "They have fine spirit. If there is one fault I should say it is the over-developed desire to star. An outfielder would much rather take a chance on a one-handed catch of a line drive than he would a two-handed catch. They seem to love the applause of the fans and in our series, this desire to do something spectacular cost the Fabriles team many a run.

"If some organization can be developed here for the stablishment of baseball leagues on the playgrounds and if the professional promoters will form an evenly-balanced four-team league for a regular championship schedule, we will see Mexico City coming along at an astonishing rate because the youngsters are natural athletes. They seem to love to play baseball."

Close Scores in Series.

Fort Worth dampened the enthusiasm of the local fans on the very first day by beating Fabriles, 5 to 2. However, the scores throughout the series were fairly close. Fort Worth won by scores of 5-2, 4-3, 4-3, 9-4, 5-3, 5-4. Fabriles won their three games by scores of 4-3, 8-7, 6-3.

"Does it hurt to shave, daddy?"

"YOU'RE like a great big bear, daddy. I like to kiss you, but your face isn't nice and smooth like mama's. It feels so rough. Does it hurt you to shave? You're much nicer without those prickly whiskers. Can't you have them all pulled out? Then I'd give you all the nice big hugs you wanted."

INQUIRY INTO REVENUE SYSTEM IN MISSOURI

Legislative Group Named by Farmers' Association Will Undertake Reform Program.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 5.—A committee composed of 10 members of the Legislature, sponsored and named by the Missouri Farmers' Association, met here Tuesday to formulate plans for an investigation of waste in State government and taxation problems with a view to making recommendations to the next General Assembly from its findings.

Senator D. L. Bales, Shannon County, was elected chairman, with Representative Jones H. Parker, St. Louis, vice chairman; Representative Rush H. Limbaugh, Cape Girardeau, secretary, and Representative Jerome M. Joffee, assistant secretary.

A statement issued by the committee said that the "activities of the Missouri Farmers' Association ceased with the naming of the committee so far as participation in the deliberations or recommendations of the body are concerned. The committee members are to be free lances in this respect.

"The members of this committee serve without compensation and are pledged to pursue a diligent and impartial line of investigation," the statement continued. "The objective is a reform of the governmental agencies of the State, including county and municipal, with a view to eliminate all waste in expenditures that can be done with due regard to efficiency in government; and, the kindred objective to further inquire into the tax problems of the State, the existing machinery relative thereto, and make recommendations to reduce the tax burdens, including county and municipal, where such can be done consistent with good government."

The necessary actual expenses incurred by the committee are to be borne by the Missouri Farmers' Association. The committee began its work by dividing the investigation into three general separate parts, and naming of subcommittees for these divisions.

Representative Langdon Jones, Dunklin County; Representative Whitaker, Hickory County, and Senator J. G. Morgan, Putnam County, were appointed to head the subcommittee to investigate State government; Senator Albert T. M. Clark, Richmond; Representative James W. Armstrong, Pulaski County, and Representative W. E. Freeland, Taney County, county government; Representative Jones H. Parker, St. Louis; Representative Jerome Joffee, Kansas City, and Rush Limbaugh, Cape Girardeau, city government.

The subcommittees will be required to make reports to the full committee for adoption of the findings. Senator Bales announced another meeting of the committee would be held here Nov. 27 to hear suggestions from Gov. Caulfield and heads of State departments.

UNIVERSITY CITY STUDYING RIVER DES PERES PROBLEM

The Engineering Department of University City has begun a preliminary study of the River des Peres problem with a view to an ultimate connection with the enclosed channel in St. Louis. About 3000 acres—nearly four-fifths of the area of the suburb—are drained by the stream, which follows a six-mile course from western to eastern city limits.

A foul-water system now runs along the channel east of North and South road, but City Engineer Heimbuecher thinks that future development on the west may make this inadequate and that an entirely enclosed storm and foul-water sewer may be necessary. W. W. Horner, chief sewer engineer for St. Louis, has been engaged as consultant.

Plans begun two years ago for beautification of a 10-block stretch of Jackson avenue, from Delmar boulevard to Shaftesbury avenue, where the new University City High School is located, are continuing under the direction of Dean Gabriel Ferrand of the Washington University School of Architecture. A roadway on each side of a six-acre park is planned.

MUSTEROLE

BAD SKIN INDICATES TROUBLE HERE! ✣ NOTED SPECIALISTS ADVISE EATING FRESH YEAST

Don't expect salves and ointments to correct blemishes caused by an unclean condition INSIDE YOU

THOSE hateful-looking blotches . . . exasperating blackheads . . . eruptions!

You'd give worlds to be rid of them, wouldn't you? . . . to have a smooth, velvety skin . . . radiant, fresh and clear.

Then here's good news. You can have that kind of a complexion . . . if you will only follow the advice of men who have spent their lifetime studying diseases of the skin!

• • •

Your skin, they explain, is not just a covering. It is an actual bodily organ, full of tiny glands that help you throw off the poisons that form in your system every day.

Now it frequently happens—especially when the intestines are not functioning properly—that poisons accumulate in your body faster than your skin, kidneys, etc., can throw them off.

And that's when the trouble starts! These poisons circulate through your system. Headaches occur . . . bad breath . . . indigestion. And telltale skin blemishes are one of the very commonest results!

Now can't you see from this how useless it is to try to cure such skin disorders with lotions and salves? Don't you see that you must get rid of Intestinal Fatigue?

So take the first step now. Three times a day—before each meal or between meals and at bedtime—eat a cake of Fleischmann's fresh Yeast!

A food Fleischmann's Yeast attacks and modifies the accumulated wastes in your intestines and at the same time stimulates the action that helps clear them away regularly.

Thus your whole intestinal tract is "toned up"—purified. Poison-forming matter no longer remains to contaminate your blood.

And when this occurs, digestion improves. "Pep" returns. You tire less easily. And best of all—those horrid pimples disappear!

Why not start eating Fleischmann's Yeast today? Just eat 3 cakes a day, regularly—before meals, or between meals and at bedtime—plain or dissolved in water (a third of a glass).

And keep it up. The reward will be yours!

Important Fleischmann's Yeast for health is sold only in the foil-wrapped cake with the yellow label. It is yeast in its fresh, effective form—the kind famous doctors recommend. At grocers, restaurants, soda fountains. Rich in health-giving vitamins B, G and D.

STOCK TREND IS UNCERTAIN WITH FINAL PRICES MIXED

Market Has Alternate Intervals of Mild Strength and Heaviness and Closes With Slightly Heavy Tone.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The stock market floundered about without getting anywhere today. The market had alternate intervals of mild strength and heaviness, and closed with mixed changes, and a slightly heavy tone. Some shares were off a point or two, and a few were higher. The turn over was only about a million and a half shares.

The bond market worked almost steadily higher, and closed with some sharp gains in the foreign division. Shares, however, were unable to follow further upturns in grains and a notable advance in bar silver. Fresh hostilities in Manchuria brought a new element of uncertainty, and Wall street was anxious to see the weekly Federal Reserve statements.

Rails held back throughout most of the day, and Union Pacific and Santa Fe closed about 2 points lower. American Telephone, American Can and New York Central lost about a point. Steels were sluggish, and U. S. Steel closed off a fraction. There was considerable bullish activity at times in some of the oil, metal and automotive issues, but it failed to accomplish much. Coppers turned somewhat heavy. International Silver gained 3 points, Home-Stake Mining 2, and Liggett and Myers "B," Borden and Allied Chemical about 1.

Market Back to Late High.

The stock market is now back to around the top levels of the mid-October rally, and is regarded in brokerage quarters as in an important testing area. Speculative quarters look for efforts to boost the market into new high ground for the recovery, but cautious traders were naturally inclined to take profits.

The action of the New York Clearing House banks in deciding that they would no longer handle call loans for "others" that is, individuals and corporations, had been expected, and some bankers explained that it should have a distinctly stabilizing effect in the long run. For the moment, they pointed out, it should have no effect whatever, in view of the extremely low level of "other loans."

The weekly statement of the Bank of England primarily reflected the shipment of $75,000,000 in gold to the Bank of France, in part settlement for the Franco-American loan. The Bank of France showed another moderate gain in gold, boosting its total holdings to a new high.

The remarks of Dr. Edwin W. Kemmerer, internationally prominent money expert, in an address today pointing out that the position of premier world money market is now being offered to New York, attracted considerable attention in banking quarters.

Foreign Exchange Mixed.

Wheat ran into profit-taking after pushing up more than 2 points, and net gains were cut to about a cent a bushel. Bulls turned their attention to corn, which gained about 2 cents. The cotton market closed about steady, up 20 to 35 cents a bale.

Foreign exchanges were mixed. Mexico and Shanghai rose sharply in sympathy with silver. The French franc eased, and sterling cables at $3.74¾ were off 1¼ cents. German, Dutch, Belgian, Japanese and Argentine currencies were higher.

Rediscount Rate Unchanged.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The Federal Reserve Bank of New York today announced no change in its rediscount rate of 3½ per cent.

St. Louis Market Trade Broadens Considerably and Volume Increases on Advance of Over 20 Cents.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Nov. 5.—December wheat sold up to 65⅛c for a net gain of 2⅜ today, continuing the advance in wheat prices that has characterized all markets recently. There was reaction from higher ... close and final price was up ... net. May corn closed 1c higher after being 2¼c up. The volume of business set a new record for ... today. Top prices for day were now 1931 highs.

Cash wheat prices responded to the turn in futures, with gains of 3c to 3½c in red wheat and 4½c in hard wheat. New cash corn was 3c to 4½c higher and old 4½c ... Oats were 1c higher.

The new upturn brought prices well over 20 cents above the low level of season recorded on Oct. 5. Attention was given today to the comment on Russian and Argentine wheat prospects.

The local market's active trading has been caused partly by the lowering of the unit of trade in the ... Orders have come from wide ... sources.

It was pointed out that the new ... was about the equivalent of ... volume of one car of wheat.

The Liverpool market was 2⅞d higher at one period, but reacted to 2⅜d to 2¾d up later. The close was 2⅜ to 2⅞d net higher. Winnipeg wheat closed ½@⅝c higher.

The crowded pit at the opening day as on the closing yesterday reminded traders of pre-war periods of activity in wheat trade. A month of rising wheat prices has brought the Southwest a gain in value of $75,000,000 on its total harvest and $30,000,000 on estimated portion still held in storage by producers, according to Associated Press.

Of the 367,641,000 bushels grown this season in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, reliable figures place the amount withheld from market at 144,750,000, about 100,000,000 bushels of which is in Kansas' record-breaking 223,-641,000 bushel crop, the report ...

State.	Estimate Total Harvest.	Estimate Amount Stored.
Missouri	27,280,000	10,000,000
Texas	58,720,000	13,000,000

Liverpool Wheat Higher.

By the Associated Press.

LIVERPOOL, England, Nov. 5.—The wheat market was strong today under the influence of yesterday's rise in the United States. The opening range was up 3d with the advance of another penny following. Then the market reacted about 3d per bushel, and toward the close became quietly steady about 3d up.

Influencing factors were the strength of the North American markets last night, coupled with the difficulty of working merchand offers on the rate of exchange. Russian shipments are smaller this week, totaled 329,000 quarters as compared with 547,000 quarters in the corresponding period last week.

St. Louis Market Trade Broadens Considerably and Volume Increases on Advance of Over 20 Cents.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Nov. 5.—December wheat sold up to 65⅛c for a net gain of 2⅜ today, continuing the advance in wheat prices that has characterized all markets recently. There was reaction from higher near close and final price was up ¾ net. May corn closed 1c higher after being 2¼c up. The volume of business set a new record for the year today. Top prices for day were new 1931 highs.

Cash wheat prices responded to the upturn in futures, with gains of 3c to 3½c in red wheat and 4½c in hard wheat. New cash corn was 1½c to 4½c higher and old 4½c higher. Oats were 1c higher.

The new upturn brought prices well over 20 cents above the low level of season recorded on Oct. 5. Attention was given today to trade comment on Russian and Argentine wheat prospects.

The local market's active trading has been caused partly by the lowering of the unit of trade in the pit. Orders have come from wide sources.

It was pointed out that the new unit was about the equivalent of the volume of one car of wheat.

The Liverpool market was 2⅞d higher at one period, but receded to 2⅜d to 2¾d up later. The close was 2⅜ to 2⅞d net higher. Winnipeg wheat closed ½@⅝c higher.

A month of rising wheat prices has brought the Southwest a gain in value of $75,000,000 on its total harvest and $30,000,000 on the estimated portion still held in storage by producers, according to Associated Press.

Of the 367,641,000 bushels grown this season in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, reliable figures place the amount withheld from market at 144,750,000, about 100,000,000 bushels of which is from Kansas' record-breaking 223,641,000 bushel crop, the report says.

State.	Estimate Total Harvest.	Estimate Amount Stored.
Missouri	27,280,000	10,000,000

BIG WHEAT TRADE AS CHICAGO WHEAT ADVANCES

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—In a wild runaway market, prices took the bit in their teeth today and raced beyond record gains for every one of the country's cereals. Temporary breaks of almost 2 cents a bushel were witnessed at times, but the market continued helterskelter upgrade, wheat jumping to more than 23 cents above the ruling quotations a month ago. Trade reports of drouth damage to crops in Russia were a major incentive to buyers, with comment of drouth menace in the domestic winter wheat region southwest and authoritative news concerning the moisture situation in the Canadian prairie provinces as compared with recent years.

Wheat closed strained, 1¼@1⅜ cents below the day's top and ⅞@1⅜c higher than yesterday's finish, corn 1⅝@2¼c advanced, oats ⅝@1c up, and provisions showing a rise of 5 to 22 cents.

Spurred by private report drouth had cost Russia a loss of 150,000,000 bushels of grain this season, wheat prices vaulted at opening to new record heights.

There was also trade prediction of smaller shipments of wheat from Argentina to Europe. Trade was on a big scale. Opening at ⅜@1⅛ cents gain, wheat continued to climb. Corn started unchanged to ⅞c up and afterward rose further.

Open interest in grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade: Wheat—Tuesday, 120,894,000 bushels; Monday, 121,704,000; week ago, 114,197,000. Corn—Tuesday, 36,884,000 bushels; Monday, 36,035,000; week ago, 33,650,000.

Not only wheat, but corn, oats and rye outdid the season's previous top quotations. In the face of immense profit-taking sales on the part of recent buyers, new purchase orders kept surging into the wheat pit, with brokers so crowded there that footholds on the upper steps were precarious.

More than 2 cents a bushel rise was quickly scored by wheat, with December contracts the strongest, as being likely soonest to reflect augmented demand looked for to supply from North America Europe's breadstuff needs. Adding to the impetus of the speculative buying was announcement that Black Sea shipments of wheat in the last week had been practically cut in half as compared with the week previous a year ago.

Word of entire absence of new offerings of wheat export from Russia had a further bullish influence. Emphasizing the reported position of trans-Atlantic consumers was also a trade estimate that shortage of the world rye crop amounted to 164,000,000 bushels.

Latest official estimates of Argentina's new wheat export surplus showed a reduction of 25,000,000 bushels from last year. Corn, oats and rye advanced with wheat, commission house demand for all grains showed a notable increase.

Official figures for yesterday showed that a total of 95,608,000 bushels of grain changed hands in the futures pit. It was the largest day's business since Aug. 12, 1930, when the aggregate was 108,526,000 bushels. The average during the month of September was slightly less than 17,000,000 bushels. But the total turnover yesterday was far short of the all-time record, 190,177,000 bushels on Oct. 24, 1929.

Winnipeg Down From High.

By the Associated Press.
WINNIPEG, Canada, Nov. 5.—Influenced by a wave of profit-taking in the final hour, wheat prices eased from high levels established early in the session, on the local grain exchange today. Prices at the close were ½ cent higher than Wednesday's finish.

November closed at 70⅛c, December at 71⅛c and May at 64⅞c. The July future, which appeared on the board for the first time, closed at 75⅝@75⅝c.

GENERALLY HIGHER MARKET ON BONDS

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The bond market was generally higher today as activity increased.

German loans were the most active of the foreign group. The 5½s of 1965 of the National Government were one of the most active issues of the whole list and at one time were 3½ points higher than yesterday's close. The 7s of 1949 scored a wider advance although the volume in them was not so large. Bremen 7s of 1935 jumped some 13 points on moderate sales.

These advances and those of other German loans were somewhat larger than the gains in foreign loans as a whole but the upward trend in this group became clear early in the session and spread as the day advanced.

Domestic corporate obligations were generally higher also but the majority of their gains were fractional. A few issues such as Canadian Pacific debenture 4s, Illinois Central 4¾s of 1966, Pennsylvania series D 4½s, Columbia Gas 5s of May 1952, Kansas Gas & Electric 4½s, North American 5s, International Match 5s, Goodyear 5s, Chile Copper 5s, Dodge Brothers 6s, Sinclair Oil 6½s and Shell Union Oil 5s showed exceptional strength and closed from 1 to 3 points higher. The turnover in some of these bonds was small.

United States Government loans gained gradually as the day advanced and closed at or near the day's peak levels.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—A slight opening advance in cotton on further covering and trade buying was checked today by some Southern selling and liquidation, but offerings were absorbed on moderate reactions. January contracts, after selling up to 6.62c at the start, reacted to 6.56c, with the midafternoon market quiet and steady, at about yesterday's closing quotations.

Futures closed steady, 4 to 7 points higher. Dec. 6.52@6.53c; Jan. 6.62c; March 6.78@6.79c; May 6.96c; July 7.13c; Oct. 7.36c. Spot quiet; middling 6.60c.

Liverpool cables reported— general buying and covering on easier sterling and said there was a sustained demand for cotton cloth.

SILVER PRICE REACHES NEW HIGH FOR 1931

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Bar silver shot up 1½ cents an ounce today to a new high for 1931 at 32⅜ cents.

There was at the same time feverish speculation in silver futures on the National Metal Exchange.

The surge carried the price across the high of year reached last March, and to the best level since the final weeks of last year.

This is one of the largest advances in silver in a single day in recent years. Bulls in the silver market have been encouraged by the sweeping gains in the wheat market, and better prices for commodities generally.

The extremely low levels of silver prices during the past year have had a depressing effect upon Mexico and Far Eastern countries where that metal still has important monetary uses. Some economists have regarded it as one of the serious factors in the world wide depression.

The previous high this year was 31⅜c, reached March 16 last, and compares with last year's high of 46⅞c an ounce on Jan. 2, 1930. From that time there was an almost continuous decline in the value of the metal until it reached the year's low at 30⅜c an ounce Dec. 30 last.

The highest price reached by silver since 1905 was $1.37½ an ounce on Nov. 25, 1929. During that year the metal declined steadily and in December reached the low for the year at 64.8 cents an ounce, due in part to debasement of foreign coinage after the World War.

NARROW CHANGES ON CURB AT THE CLOSE

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Although unable to extend its gain more than nominally, the Curb market maintained a generally steady tone today and closed with narrow changes. Improvement was most noticeable among the specialties, utilities being sluggish and oils somewhat susceptible to profit taking.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The stock market floundered about without getting anywhere today. The market had alternate intervals of mild strength and heaviness, and closed with mixed changes, and a slightly heavy tone. Some shares were off a point or two, and a few were higher. The turn over was only about a million and a half shares.

The bond market worked almost steadily higher, and closed with some sharp gains in the foreign division. Shares, however, were unable to follow further upturns in grains and a notable advance in bar silver. Fresh hostilities in Manchuria brought a new element of uncertainty, and Wall street was anxious to see the weekly Federal Reserve statements.

Rails held back throughout most of the day, and Union Pacific and Santa Fe closed about 2 points lower. American Telephone, American Can and New York Central lost about a point. Steels were sluggish, and U. S. Steel closed off a fraction. There was considerable bullish activity at times in some of the oil, metal and automotive issues, but it failed to accomplish much. Coppers turned somewhat heavy. International Silver gained 3 points, Home-Stake Mining 2, and Liggett and Myers "B," Borden and Allied Chemical about 1.

Market Back to Late High.

The stock market is now back to around the top levels of the mid-October rally, and is regarded in brokerage quarters as in an important testing area. Speculative quarters look for efforts to boost the market into new high ground for the recovery, but cautious traders were naturally inclined to take profits.

The action of the New York Clearing House banks in deciding that they would no longer handle call loans for "others" that is, individuals and corporations, had been expected, and some bankers explained that it should have a distinctly stabilizing effect in the long run. For the moment, they pointed out, it should have no effect whatever, in view of the extremely low level of "other loans."

The weekly statement of the Bank of England primarily reflected the shipment of $75,000,000 in gold to the Bank of France, in part settlement for the Franco-American loan. The Bank of France showed another moderate gain in gold, boosting its total holdings to a new high.

The remarks of Dr. Edwin W. Kemmerer, internationally prominent money expert, in an address today pointing out that the position of premier world money market is now being offered to New York, attracted considerable attention in banking quarters.

Foreign Exchange Mixed.

Wheat ran into profit-taking after pushing up more than 2 points, and net gains were cut to about a cent a bushel. Bulls turned their attention to corn, which gained about 2 cents. The cotton market closed about steady, up 20 to 35 cents a bale.

Foreign exchanges were mixed. Mexico and Shanghai rose sharply in sympathy with silver. The French franc eased, and sterling cables at $3.74¾ were off 1¼ cents. German, Dutch, Belgian, Japanese and Argentine currencies were higher.

Rediscount Rate Unchanged.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The Federal Reserve Bank of New York today announced no change in its rediscount rate of 3½ per cent.

St. Louis Market Trade Broadens Considerably and Volume Increases on Advance of Over 20 Cents.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Nov. 5.—December wheat sold up to 65⅛c for a net gain of 2⅜ today, continuing the advance in wheat prices that has characterized all markets recently. There was reaction from higher near close and final price was up 1¼ net. May corn closed 1c higher after being 2¼c up. The volume of business set a new record for year today. Top prices for day were now 1931 highs.

Cash wheat prices responded to upturn in futures, with gains of 3c to 3½c in red wheat and 4½c in hard wheat. New cash corn was 3½c to 4½c higher and old 4½c to 5c. Oats were 1c higher.

The local market's active trading has been caused partly by the lowering of the unit of trade in the pit. Orders have come from wide sources.

The Liverpool market was 2⅞d to 4d higher at one period, but reacted to 2⅜d to 2¾d up later. The close was 2⅜ to 2⅞d net higher.

A month of rising wheat prices has brought the Southwest a gain in value of $75,000,000 on its total 1931 harvest and $30,000,000 on the estimated portion still held in storage by producers, according to Associated Press.

Of the 367,641,000 bushels grown this season in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, reliable figures place the amount withheld from market at 144,750,000, about 100,000,000 bushels of which is from Kansas' record-breaking 223,641,000 bushel crop, the report says.

State.	Estimate Total Harvest.	Estimate Amount Stored.
Missouri	27,280,000	10,000,000
Texas	58,720,000	13,000,000
Oklahoma	58,000,000	21,750,000
Total	367,641,000	144,750,000

Local wheat receipts which were 109,000 bu. compared with 57,400 a week ago and 58,800 a year ago, included 69 cars local and 9 through. Corn receipts, which were 32,200 bu. compared with 65,800 a week ago and 60,200 a year ago, included ... cars local and 1 through. Oats receipts, which were 15,400 bu. compared with 15,400 a week ago and 41,800 a year ago, included 7 cars local. Hay receipts were 4 cars local.

Argentine Wheat Acreage.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 5.—Argentina's wheat acreage is 17,294,000 acres, which is 18.7 per cent under last year's acreage, the Ministry of Agriculture announced in the third official estimate of 1931-32 sowings.

Linseed acreage was estimated at 8,629,000, an increase of 1,028,000 acres, and the acreage in oats was placed at 3,469,000, a decrease of 647,000. No estimate was made of this year's record planting of corn.

Liverpool Wheat Higher.

By the Associated Press.

LIVERPOOL, England, Nov. 5.—The wheat market was strong today under the influence of yesterday's rise in the United States. The opening range was up 3d with an advance of another penny following. Then the market reacted about 3d per cental, and toward the close became quietly steady about 3d up.

Influencing factors were the strength of the North American markets last night, coupled with the difficulty of working first-hand offers on the rate of exchange. Russian shipments are smaller this week. They totaled 329,000 quarters as compared with 547,000 quarters in the corresponding period last week.

MILL FEED FUTURES MARKET

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Nov. 5.—Today's mill feed futures market was strong and higher due to sharp upturn in grain futures and strong position in the cash market. Gray shorts were traded in very actively. Outside interests have come into the market and commission house trades featured the market. Volume continued to be quite large with sales totaling 4650 tons. Bran closed 70@80c higher; gray shorts, 75c@$1.10 higher; standard middlings, 50@70c higher.

The traveled pit at the opening today as in the closing yesterday reminded traders of pre-war periods of activity in wheat trade.

A month of rising wheat prices has brought the Southwest a gain in value of 27,000,000 on its total harvest and $31,000,000 on the estimated portion still held in storage by producers, according to Associated Press.

Of the 147,842,000 bushels grown this season in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, reliable figures place the amount withheld from market at 144,750,000, about [illegible] bushels of which is from Kansas' record-breaking 223,[illegible] bushel crop, the report says.

	Estimate Total Harvest.	Estimate Amount Stored.
Missouri	27,280,000	10,000,000

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—In a wild runaway market, prices took the bit in their teeth today and raced beyond record gains for every one of the country's cereals. Temporary breaks of almost 2 cents a bushel were witnessed at times, but the market continued helterskelter upgrade, wheat jumping to more than 22 cents above the ruling quotations a month ago. Trade reports of drouth damage to crops in Russia were a major incentive to buyers, with comment of drouth menace in the domestic winter wheat region southwest and authoritative news concerning the moisture situation in the Canadian prairie provinces as compared with recent years.

Wheat closed strained, 1⅝@1¾ cents below the day's top and ⅞@1⅛c higher than yesterday's finish, corn 1⅝@2⅛c advanced, oats ⅝@⅞c up, and provisions showing a rise of 5 to 22 cents.

Spurred by private report drouth had cost Russia a loss of 150,000,000 bushels of grain this season, wheat prices vaulted at opening to new record heights.

There was also trade prediction of smaller shipments of wheat from Argentina to Europe. Trade was on a big scale. Opening at ⅝@1⅛ cents gain, wheat continued to climb. Corn started unchanged to ⅞c up and afterward rose further.

Open interest in grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade: Wheat—Tuesday, 120,834,000 bushels; Monday, 121,704,000; week ago, 114,197,000. Corn—Tuesday, 24,884,000 bushels; Monday, 34,135,000; week ago, 33,650,000.

Not only wheat, but corn, oats and rye outdid the season's previous top quotations. In the face of immense profit-taking sales on the part of recent buyers, new purchase orders kept surging into the wheat pit, with brokers so crowded there that footholds on the upper steps were precarious.

More than 2 cents a bushel rise was quickly scored by wheat, with December contracts the strongest, as being likely soonest to reflect augmented demand looked for to supply from North America Europe's breadstuff needs. Adding to the impetus of the speculative buying was announcement that Black Sea shipments of wheat in the last week had been practically cut in half as compared with the week previous a year ago.

Word of entire absence of new offerings of wheat export from Russia had a further bullish influence. Emphasizing the reported position of trans-Atlantic consumers was also a trade estimate that shortage of the world rye crop amounted to 144,000,000 bushels.

Latest official estimates of Argentina's new wheat export surplus showed a reduction of 25,000,000 bushels from last year. Corn, oats and rye advanced with wheat, commission house demand for all grains showed a notable increase.

Official figures for yesterday showed that a total of 95,608,000 bushels of grain changed hands in the futures pit. It was the largest day's business since Aug. 12, 1930, when the aggregate was 103,526,000 bushels. The average during the month of September was slightly less than 17,000,000 bushels. But the total turnover yesterday was far short of the all-time record, 190,177,000 bushels on Oct. 24, 1929.

GENERALLY HIGHER MARKET ON BONDS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The bond market was generally higher today as activity increased.

German loans were the most active of the foreign group. The 5½s of 1965 of the National Government were one of the most active issues of the whole list and at one time were 3½ points higher than yesterday's close. The 7s of 1949 scored a wider advance although the volume in them was not so large. Bremen 7s of 1935 gained some 13 points on moderate sales.

These advances and those of other German loans were somewhat larger than the gains in foreign loans as a whole but the upward trend in this group became clear early in the session and spread as the day advanced.

Domestic corporate obligations were generally higher also but the majority of their gains were fractional. A few issues such as Canadian Pacific debenture 4s, Illinois Central 4¾s of 1966, Pennsylvania series D 4½s, Columbia Gas 5s of May 1952, Kansas Gas & Electric 4½s, North American 5s, International Match 5s, Goodyear 5s, Chile Copper 5s, Dodge Brothers 6s, Sinclair Oil 6½s and Shell Union Oil 5s showed exceptional strength and closed from 1 to 3 points higher. The turnover in some of these bonds was small.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—A slight opening advance in cotton on further covering and trade buying was checked today by some Southern selling and liquidation, but offerings were absorbed on moderate reactions. January contracts, after selling up to 6.62c at the start, reacted to 6.56c, with the midafternoon market quiet and steady at about yesterday's closing quotations.

Futures closed steady, 4 to 7 points higher. Dec. 6.32@6.33c; Jan. 6.62c; March 6.73@6.79c; May 6.90c; July 7.13c; Oct. 7.38c. Spot quiet; middling 6.60c.

Liverpool cables reported general buying and covering on easier sterling and said there was a sustained demand for cotton cloth.

SILVER PRICE REACHES NEW HIGH FOR 1931

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Bar silver shot up 1⅛ cents an ounce today to a new high for 1931 at 32⅝ cents.

There was at the same time feverish speculation in silver futures on the National Metal Exchange.

This is one of the largest advances in silver in a single day in recent years. Bulls in the silver market have been encouraged by the sweeping gains in the wheat market, and better prices for commodities generally.

The extremely low levels of silver prices during the past year have had a depressing effect upon Mexico and Far Eastern countries where that metal still has important monetary uses. Some economists have regarded it as one of the serious factors in the world wide depression.

The previous high this year was 32⅜c reached March 16 last, and compares with last year's high of 46⅝c an ounce on Jan. 2, 1930. From that time there was an almost continuous decline in the value of the metal until it reached the year's low at 26⅜c an ounce Dec. 30 last.

The highest price reached by silver since 1905 was $1.37⅝ an ounce on Nov. 25, 1919. During that year the metal declined steadily and in December reached the low for the year at 64.8 cents an ounce, due in part to debasement of foreign coinage after the World War.

WILBUR MAKES RULING ON UNION PACIFIC GRANT

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Secretary of the Interior Wilbur today made a move that he hopes will end an incipient land fight in Colorado growing out of the re-adjustment of an old Union Pacific railroad grant. He ordered the rejection of a homestead application filed on land thrown open to homestead after the adjustment showed about 20,000 acres had been opened to settlement by the railroad although it held no title to the acreage.

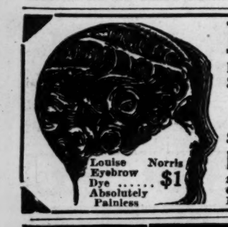

He furthermore ordered that no further applications be accepted and that the occupants of the land, some of whom had lived on it for 50 years, receive every possible assistance in establishing title.

In readjusting land grants to railroads made from 1860 onward, the Land Office has found much territory to which no formal title has been granted. Where the land is settled, under the policy laid down by Wilbur today, those living on it have full opportunity to establish their title before it is opened to homesteading.

CHAPTER SIX.

HAVING the facts in hand, Edison placed a large sheet of paper on a drafting table and started to draw out a plan of the proposed works. After 24 hours of continuous work, he had the full lay-out of the entire plant as it was subsequently installed, and as it has substantially remained until now. He had never made cement, but if that plant were to be rebuilt today, no vital change would be necessary. He considered and provided in his plans for every part from the crusher to the packing house, and that for a plant about half a mile long, which handles automatically enough raw material to produce two and a quarter million pounds of finished cement every day in the week.

Contrast work on such a scale with this:

"Toward the latter part of 1875, in the Newark shop, I invented a device for multiplying copies of letters, which I sold to Mr. A. B. Dick of Chicago, and in the years since it has been universally introduced throughout the world. It is called the 'mimeograph.' I also invented devices for making and introduced paraffin paper, now used for wrapping up candy, etc."

Or take this account which he gave of his work on lighting, and notice his capacity for infinite detailed attention equally to things small as to things great.

"Just at that time (1878) I wanted to take up something new, and Prof. Barker suggested that I go to work and see if I could subdivide the electric light so it could be got in small units like gas. This was not a new suggestion, because I had made a number of experiments on electric lighting a year before this. They had been laid aside for the phonograph. I determined to take up the search again and continue it.

"On my return home I started my usual course of collecting every kind of data. This time it was about gas: I bought all the transactions of the gas engineering societies, etc., all the back volumes of gas journals, etc. Having obtained all the data, and investigated gas-jet distribution in New York by actual observations, I made up my mind that the problem of subdivision of the electric current could be solved and made commercial.

"I realized that an electric lamp to be commercially practical must of necessity bear a general comparison with a gas jet in at least two points: first, that it must give a moderate illumination, and second, that such a lamp must be so devised that each one could be lighted and extinguished separately and independently of any others. With this basic idea in mind, we resumed our experiments at once.

"THE experience gained through my extensive experiments led me to conclude that the only possible solution of the problem of subdividing the electric light was that the lamps must have a high resistance and small radiating surface; also that they must be operated in a multiple-act system, that is to say, independently of each other.

"I was well acquainted with the properties of carbon and knew that if it could be produced in the form of a hair-like filament, that such a filament would have relatively high resistance, and, of course, small radiating surface. But could such a fragile filament be capable of withstanding mechanical shock and be susceptible of being maintained at a temperature of over 2000 degrees for 1000 hours or more before breaking?

"Again, could this filamentary conductor be supported in a vacuum chamber so perfectly formed and constructed that during all these hours in which it would be subjected to various temperatures, not a particle of air could enter to disintegrate the filament? And not only so, but the lamp, after its design, must not be a mere laboratory possibility, but a practical commercial article capable of being manufactured at low cost and large quantity, and capable of long distance shipment without injury. These and a multitude of minor considerations—minor, but none the less important—combined to form a problem of great magnitude.

"As already stated, I found that I could not use carbon successfully in my earlier experiments, because the rods or strips of carbon I then employed, although much larger than filaments, would not stand, but were consumed in a few minutes under the best conditions I then had at my command. Now, however, that I had found means of obtaining and maintaining high vacua, I immediately went back to carbon, which from the first I had conceived of as the ideal substance for a burner. My next step proved conclusively the correctness of my former deductions.

"I DECIDED to test out my theory by the use of a filamentary burner and my old laboratory notebooks show that of Oct. 21, 1879, after many heart-breaking trials, we succeeded in carbonizing a piece of cotton sewing thread, bent into horseshoe shape, and I had it sealed into a glass globe from which I exhausted the air until a vacuum up to one-millionth of an atmosphere was produced. The lamp was hermetically sealed and then taken off the vacuum pump and put on the electric current.

"It lighted up and in the first few breathless minutes we measured its resistance quickly and found that it was 275 ohms—all we wanted. Then we sat down and looked at that lamp. We wanted to see how long it would burn. The problem was solved—if the filament would last. We sat and looked, and the lamp continued to burn. The longer it burned, the more fascinated we were.

"None of us could go to bed, and there was no sleep for any of us for 40 hours. We sat and watched it with anxiety growing into elation. The lamp lasted about 45 hours, and I realized that the practical incandescent lamp had been born. I was sure that if this rather crude experimental lamp would burn 45 hours, I could make a lamp that would burn hundreds of hours, and even up to a thousand.

"Up to this time I had spent upwards of $40,000 in my electric-light experiments, but the result far more than justified the expenditure, for with this lamp I made the discovery that a filament of carbon, under the condition of high vacuum, was commercially stable and would stand high temperature without the disintegration and oxidation that took place in all previous attempts that I knew of for making an incandescent burner from carbon. Besides, this lamp possessed the characteristics of high resistance and small radiating surface, permitting economy in the outlay for conductors, and requiring only a small current for each unit of light—conditions that were absolutely necessary of fulfilment in order to accomplish the subdivision of the electric-light current.

"WITH the invention of a practical incandescent lamp I had merely stepped over the threshold of a complete system. While we kept up a constant series of experiments for the greater perfection of the lamp, I busied myself in devising the other essential parts of the system I had conceived. There was no precedent for such a thing, and nowhere in the world could we purchase these parts.

"It was necessary to invent everything: dynamos, regulators, meters, switches, fuses, fixtures, underground conductors with their necessary connecting boxes, and a host of other detail parts, even down to insulating tape. Everything was new and unique. The only relevant item in the world at that time was copper wire, and even that was not properly insulated.

My laboratory was a scene of feverish activity, and we worked incessantly, regardless of day, night, Sunday or holiday. I had quite a large force and they were a loyal lot of men as a whole, and worked with vim and enthusiasm. We accomplished a great deal in a short space of time, and before Christmas of 1879 I had already lighted up my laboratory and office, my house and several other houses about one-fifth of a mile from the dynamo plant, and some 20 street lights. The current for these was fed through underground conductors made and insulated for the purpose."

Any man bringing to any subject only a fraction of the persistence and intelligence of Edison cannot fail to leave it better than he found it. That is the great lesson of Edison the investigator—or inventor.

One day while Edison and I were calling on Luther Burbank in California he asked us to register in his guest book. The book had a column for signature, another for home address, another for occupation and a final one entitled "Interested in." Edison signed in a few quick but unhurried motions—he put down that clear signature, with each letter plainly separated and a flourish over the top, with far more speed than most men could make a scrawl. In the final column he wrote without an instant's hesitation:

"Everything."

That explains Mr. Edison. He was literally interested in everything. His habit of trying out applicants for positions by means of long questionnaires into which entered nearly everything under the sun was only a method of investigating the character of the curiosity of the candidate. He disliked men with single-track minds or single-track interests.

In his own work he would not have specialists or single-subject men around. He simply could not tolerate a man of narrow interests. His own interests in things were to the last just as lively as they were more than half a century ago, when as a boy he decided to read the Detroit Public Library through—shelf by shelf and regardless of subject.

Facts on the Average American Mother

How She Looks, How She Works and What She Does With Her Spare Time Revealed in a Comprehensive Survey by Two Authorities—Prefers Movies to Social Work.

THE American mother has come in for a lot of discussion in recent years.

Writers, psychologists and feminists have said that she is this, that and the other kind of person; that she does such and such things in her spare time and that her ideas are so and so—

Now, however, two authorities in this field have submitted the results of careful surveys that have just been completed, and it is possible for the first time to get a fair idea of the truth about the lady.

One of these authorities is Willie Melmoth Bomar, doctor of philosophy of Columbia University and authority on home economics, who has just finished a nationwide study based on an extensive questionnaire.

The other is Gladys Fisher, chairman of the National Committee for Public Aid to Mothers, and a former lecturer at Columbia. For many years she has been gathering material on mothers, and she has been able to draw certain deductions about the "average American mother."

And what conclusions have these two authorities reached?

She is from 25 to 35 years old.

She is the mother of three children, and she probably is going to have one or two more eventually.

She likes to play bridge, and she devotes just a little less than three hours a week to this pursuit.

She likes the movies, and goes anywhere from once a year to five times a week. When she goes she prefers something romantic, with a "good moral" in second place, and an educational film third.

Twenty-five per cent of mothers belong to some woman's club.

• • •

SO says Dr. Bomar, leafing through her questionnaire. The questions she asked some hundreds of mothers in all parts of the country—the answers to which provided the details for this little picture—included these:

Do you belong to a woman's club? If so, what is its purpose?

How much time do you give to bridge playing a week?

How many times do you attend movies during the week? What type of film interests you most?

Do you attend concerts given in your town? If so, how often?

Do you attend lectures given in your town? If so, how often?

Do you have "family parties," when only members of the family congregate for a good time? If so, how often? What is the chief form of entertainment at these parties?

Any woman who wants to see how she compares with this "average mother" can answer those questions herself and compare the results with Dr. Bomar's averages, compiled above.

Miss Fisher, meanwhile, has gone through her list of material to find out just how mother puts in her day. Here is the typical schedule, as she found it, for an average American mother:

Eleven, cook children's lunch, set table, etc.

Twelve to one, give children lunch, see that they are tidy for the afternoon school session.

One to two, wash up after luncheon.

Two to five, sew, darn, take the baby out in his carriage for an airing, go shopping, visit school, go to movies or a party, receive callers—and so on.

Nine to 11, set bread, lock up house, retire.

• • •

She discovered that mother plays bridge nearly three hours a week . . . Dr. Willie Melmoth Bomar, who asked a lot of questions.

Monday or Tuesday, family washing.

Tuesday or Wednesday, family ironing.

Wednesday or Thursday, window washing, odd jobs and sometimes "my day for taking it easy."

Friday or Saturday, regular weekly cleaning.

Saturday, extra cooking.

Sunday, preparing the most elaborate dinner of the week.

Now Dr. Bomar discovered that "community activities" do not take up a great deal of the average mother's attention. When mother plays bridge and goes to the movies, she says, she doesn't bother with community activities at all. Incidentally, Dr. Bomar has tabulated the figures about bridge-playing and movie-going in an interesting manner.

Selecting various widely-separated cities at random, Dr Bomar found that the average number of hours mother devotes to bridge each week is about as follows:

In San Francisco, three hours; in Lincoln, Neb., two hours and 54 minutes; in Atlanta, three hours and 36 minutes; in Spokane, one hour and 30 minutes; in Cranston, R. I., three hours and 10 minutes.

In San Francisco, 87 per cent of the mothers go to the movies. In Lincoln, the percentage is 77; in Atlanta, 65; in Spokane, 87, and in Cranston, 89.

And so it goes. Dr. Bomar found that few of these mothers cared greatly about community activities, or about lectures and concerts. Most of them, she adds, explained that housework took up so much time that they had little left for community work.

Now, Miss Fisher, scanning these figures, doesn't believe that there is anything in the least dismaying about them.

• • •

"I CANNOT feel," she says, "that the fact that 50 per cent of American mothers seem to prefer the movies to committee work is particularly alarming. In fact, I believe that the movies or bridge may be better recreation for mother, in her 10 important child-bearing years, than the best-run club or community activity.

"I once knew a young mother whose story is apropos. She belonged to all the clubs she could. There was no good deed done in her town but what her busy hands helped it on.

"But when they inaugurated medical inspection of school children, the report went home to this young mother that all three of her own children were suffering from malnutrition. And if they had been children from the tenements, so it was said, the report might have called it plain starvation.

"Because this is a true story, I have always regarded the mother too active outside of her home, in the most important years of motherhood, as somebody who might well be watched.

"The average mother, in her most important child-bearing years, is intensely busy and often very tired. Her great danger, mentally, is the danger of dullness. Often her entire outside interest is represented in the news father brings home from his great world outside.

"And so, I believe, when mother so very often prefers a movie thriller to a lecture on the milk supply, she is exercising rare good sense. Mother has plenty of problems at home.

"Which leads me to ask two questions: Isn't it more reasonable for the average American mother to spend most of her energies at home? And should it not be the job of the social engineers to draft childless or older women for club and community work? Let the grandmothers step forward and lend a hand. Let the suddenly lonely woman volunteer, the woman whose children have married and who feels the emptiness of changing houses.

Judge Anderson of Georgia, in a comment on the Wickersham report, remarked that in large measure the problem of youthful crime was the problem of the bad boy; and that the bad boy was directly caused, in many instances, by some essential failing of the family. Often this was a mother at work all day long outside of her home.

"And for these reasons, I am prompted to believe that we should all encourage our average mothers to save their zest for their primary tasks, and, if it amuses them, to find their recreation at the movies on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. For thus the average mother may be renewing her forces for budget building and menu planning all the rest of the week."

• • •

IN TRYING to find out just what community interests the average mother has, Dr. Bomar submitted a long list of civic activities and asked each mother to rate them according to her opinion of their importance—and in addition, to state which ones she herself was actively engaged in. Her list includes the following activities:

Establishments or upkeep of community libraries or reading clubs.

Boy and girl scout movements, and Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. activities.

By checking the order of importance in which mothers rated these activities, Dr. Bomar was able to get a good picture of the average woman's attitude toward the currents of community life in her neighborhood.

Very Much Colder

The housewife who has a new electric refrigerator will find that an uncooked roast left in the box for any length of time will require about 10 or 15 minutes extra time in the cooking. It is so cold when it is put into the oven that the extra time is required to get that coldness out before the cooking actually starts.

Epaulets Appear On Evening-Wear Paris Showings

PARIS,

THE Colonel's lady, like the Colonel himself, may be wearing epaulets this winter. Two of Paris' well-known designers, Lelong and Schiaparelli, are making it possible with a military touch to new models which have been placed on exhibition.

Epaulet details appear on the shoulders of many dresses and jackets for daytime wear, and several of the Schiaparelli jackets carry the effect farther with double-breasted fronts fastened with gold dollar marks.

Loose wools figure prominently in the displays, Lelong employing many monotone diagonals with other day dresses of fine wool. Schiaparelli's models use the loose wools in honeycomb patterns and in meshes. Lustrous crepe satin, georgette, chiffon and marocain and the favored fabrics for evening.

Both designers offer a wide scale of colors. Schiaparelli models are shown in crush strawberry pink, coral, tomato, beige, white, emerald and deep wine. Lelong emphasizes greens in every shade, dark brown, navy, rust, black, pomegranate, and black and white combinations. Elbow-length sleeves reappear frequently, both for daytime and evening wear.

Will Stay Straight

If you live on a street where trolleys pass your door, it is hard to keep the pictures hanging straight on your walls. Try this method: Put the cord over the hook so that the picture faces the wall, but is quite straight. Then turn it over to the right side. The loop formed will prevent the cord from slipping.

Harry Lauder Wrote a Song About It . . .

Remember when the Scotch comedian sang of the joys of "Breakfast in bed on Sunday morning?"

A lot of St. Louisans agree with Sir Harry's idea of Sunday morning comfort. And they add to their enjoyment by having the Sunday Post-Dispatch delivered by carrier for reading during breakfast. It's more convenient to go to the door and pick up your paper than to make a trip to the newsstand, or wait for the boy from the corner store to deliver a copy.

You may arrange by telephone for carrier delivery of the Sunday Post-Dispatch at the regular price of 10 cents a copy. (Wouldn't Harry Lauder like that feature of this convenient service!)

If you ask my Opinion
by Martha Carr

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for a personal reply.

DEAR MRS. CARR: I am 21 years old, single, and my education has been three years in high school, business course in a business school and a domestic science course. My father was a school teacher for a number of years and I have always associated with select, intelligent people. I love all sports. I feel sure I would make a success in whatever I undertake if given a chance. I am not lazy, but I find employers take the experienced girl in preference. I have wasted some years and now it is necessary for me to have a position. I want your advice very much.
DISCOURAGED.

Perhaps you are too "scattering" in your interests. You must decide, definitely, what you can do best and then you can use everything else as merely supplementary. It is hard, even for experienced people, to get work now. For the sake of experience, offer to work a little while without pay. Your business college ought to be able to vouch for the kind of work you do if you do it well.

• • •

DEAR MRS. CARR: My mother is a widow, quite young, pretty and with a wonderful personality. She had a miserable life with my daddy. She judges all men alike and won't go out much. But a man, good, wealthy, good position, who loves the ground she walks on, wants to marry her. He is everything that is right for her, but because he doesn't care for us, is jealous and disagreeable to us. Mother says with all he brings and does for her, she can't feel right toward him. He doesn't want her to go anywhere or to mix with other people either. But we feel that she should take him and quit work. When daddy died she weighed only 102 pounds and looked terrible. Now she weighs 137 and looks young, all because, we think, this man has been good to her and looked after her.

Do you think it would be right for her to give him up and go out and meet other people? I am married but there are two more of us.
WORRIED.

I do not wonder that your mother hesitates. Perhaps the man is very helpful and a comfort to her in a sense, but I am sure she is wondering if a man so ungenerous toward her children and so selfish about her associates, will not prove petty and overbearing—hence make a life with him rather trying. I would not urge her too much. She is young and should meet others. Perhaps he will stand the test; if not, well, he will not be a great loss in the long run.

• • •

DEAR MRS. CARR: I am just one more asking your opinion. I have had a good many so-called "boy friends." I am 17 years old, but I do not care to play around with these "neckers." I know I am just a "kid," but I should like to know if there is a real man in the world. Shall I just wait until he comes along?

For a month I have been going out with one who is different, though he enjoys telling me of all the girls he has gone out with. He says he will not now go out with others, but wants me to because I haven't been around much.
LITTLE ME.

The young man is sensible, but like many others is just a little vain of his success with the ladies. Perhaps that is forgiveable. You should by all means go with others, not necessarily "neckers."

• • •

DEAR MRS. CARR: I am just 20 years old and always have been interested in almost anything that has been put before me to do. I made good grades in school and have made good grades because I stuck it out and did not indulge in some of the pleasures others did while they should have been studying. For that reason they called me "stuck up." I am interested in many vocations and do not know which I would like best. I should like to go in moving pictures and I like good music. I am publicity agent for a church and in that connection do more or less social work.

Please tell me how to correct some of my shortcomings. You can see from my letter I do not want to be a "high hat." R. E. C.

You have a versatile taste, no doubt, but you will have to concentrate more, probably, on one line before you can do effective work. As a matter of fact, at your age, a job of some kind will do more for you than anything else. Your letter shows a rather deplorable disregard for neatness. Never think that letting yourself down in your standards is necessary in order to prove your democratic ideas. The ambition to do things well is no indication that you are "stuck up" except in the minds of a low-brow or a ne'er-do-well and that is of no consequence.

A Block Apa[rt]

CHAPTER SIXT[EEN]

Across the room were Dolly Wan that Dolly had taken Jimmy for her the intense annoyance that possessed pleasantly to Jimmy, and was surpris swept over his cheeks. Then she rem to him had been a wish never to see Jimmy, sunk by her wrath, was embar

But it was more than a bow she gave him. It was a nod of invitation, and she understood why she had so abruptly risen from the supper table. Her angry impulse had not been clear even to herself a moment ago, but it was clear enough now.

Almost instantly Jimmy detached himself from Dolly. A callow youth had been obviously pleading for her favor—which enabled Farrell to leave gracefully. Light in his eyes, purpose in his step, he crossed the floor. And before Julie could interrupt, before, indeed, she quite understood Curzon's intention, that young man had left her side and had accosted Farrell in the middle of the floor.

She knew instantly that a scene impended and a natural horror of such a situation kept her from joining the two men. She stood there, unable to move.

"Just a minute, Farrell," said Curzon quietly.

"You're about to ask Miss Treherne to dance?" asked Curzon.

"Well?" Too amazed to say more, Farrell stared at him.

"Miss Treherne is engaged to me," said Curzon. "It is my duty, as well as my privilege, to protect her from annoyances. Because people are kind to you, Farrell, you mustn't misunderstand."

The color drained from the dancer's cheeks.

"Only roughnecks, Broadway lads, start rough-houses at parties," he said bitterly. "But I'll be seeing you later, Mr. Curzon."

• • •

HE wheeled, and walked rapidly from the floor. Curzon looked after him a moment; then he, too, turned and rejoined Julie. She was waiting where he had left her, and the ring that had so thrilled her this morning was almost off her finger when his hand closed over hers.

"Julie—you can't do that," he protested.

"Why not?" she demanded. "What did you say to Jimmy?"

"I told him that his attentions were unwelcome."

"To whom?" she blazed.

"To me—and to you," he replied.

"How dare you be rude to him? How dare you say that I"——

"Look here, Julie," he said, "we've been engaged 24 hours, and we quarrel"——

"Is it my fault?" she interrupted.

"Our differences — have been about things you have done, not things that I have done," he somewhat justly charged.

"I'm sorry I had to do that, Julie," he said. "But—Julie, we can't go on this way. You love me. You kissed me last night. That proves it to me. We aren't to quarrel any more. Give up Farrell"——

"Give him up? I've met him three times in my life."

"The number of times doesn't matter, Julie. Will you give him up? Will you promise me not to dance with him again? Not have him in for tea? Call me unreasonable, jealous, what you will. But give in to me because I love you."

The agony in his voice, the abject misery in his eyes, which so violently contrasted with his harshness of a moment before, stirred her to pity, and to a logical anger at herself that she could hurt someone she loved. • • • Too, she was femininely thrilled that two men had come almost to blows over her. Oh, this was a cheap and unworthy thought, but—she held it.

"Ralph," she said, "don't order me; don't ask me. Trust me. I can't be ordered and I won't be begged. But, my dear, I love you very much, and if you'll realize that"——

"Julie, my love, I'll order nothing, ask nothing"——

As Julie danced off with Ralph, she saw that Jimmy and Dolly had taken the floor. They danced remarkably well together, too. Candidly, she admitted to herself that Dolly was a better dancer than herself. She wondered if Dolly would have for Jimmy one of those quick but transient crushes to which she was so prone. And would Jimmy flirt with the pretty blonde?

• • •

AND then she became conscious of the fact that Ralph was holding her perhaps a shade more closely than the dance required, and that his eyes were burning, and Jimmy vanished from her thoughts for 10 minutes. Dear Ralph. He was, despite his quick jealousies, so kind, so thoughtful, so dependable. Further, she had discovered last night that he could stir her as no man had ever stirred her before.

Flushed, happy, oblivious to the quarrels that had so nearly sundered their engagement a quarter of an hour before, they paused before their hostess to say good night. Ralph had a business engagement in the morning, confessed himself

CHAPTER SIXTEEN.

THE music struck up again, and as though it were a signal that released her from some bondage, Julie leaped to her feet. The laggard Curzon, taken by surprise, was a yard behind her as she emerged from the supper room.

Across the room were Dolly Wanders and Jimmy. Julie saw that Dolly had taken Jimmy for her own, and she fought against the intense annoyance that possessed her. She managed to nod pleasantly to Jimmy, and was surprised at the wave of color that swept over his cheeks. Then she remembered that her last words to him had been a wish never to see him again. No wonder that Jimmy, sunk by her wrath, was embarrassed now that she bowed.

But it was more than a bow she gave him. It was a nod of invitation, and she understood why she had so abruptly risen from the supper table. Her angry impulse had not been clear even to herself a moment ago, but it was clear enough now.

Dear Ralph. He was, despite his quick jealousies, so kind, so thoughtful, so dependable. Further, she had discovered last night that he could stir her as no man had ever stirred her before.

Flushed, happy, oblivious to the quarrels that had so nearly sundered their engagement a quarter of an hour before, they paused before their hostess to say good night. Ralph had a business engagement in the morning, confessed himself tired, and Julie was well pleased to end the evening now.

"I've never known of a more popular engagement," said Mrs. Maybury. "Even though you haven't announced it, everyone knows about it, and everyone is delighted. And, Julie, you were a good sport to dance with that Farrell man. And what a delightful, unspoiled happy youth he is. He's made a tremendous hit with everyone."

"He is nice," said Julie. And to her delight Ralph's expression bore no trace of disapproval.

"We're ducking this party and going to the Trebizond with Jimmy," said Dolly. Julie noted the "Jimmy." Dolly was no laggard in her intimacies. "Won't you come with us?" asked the gay blonde.

Julie shook her head.

"Too tired. Thanks, just the same, but Ralph has to work tomorrow"——

Dolly made a face.

"Aren't you just too dee-vinely domestic?" she cried. "Taking your man home early so that he can have a successful business day tomorrow"——

"Aw, come on, Julie," said Livingston.

"Like to, Julie?" asked Ralph, carelessly.

His acquiescence turned the scales of indecision in Julie's mind. She would like to. Why, she couldn't tell, but now that Ralph was so surprisingly amenable to the suggestion, she rejected it.

"No, thanks," she said. "I'm really tired."

"Ralph," she pleaded, "always be kind to me."

"Kind?" he laughed. "Will you always be kind to me? Julie, I don't deserve you, and I know it. But if you'll be patient with me"——

"You were sweet to want to go on to the Trebizond," she said. "After everything"——

"You told me to demand nothing, but to trust you," he smiled.

"I think," she said, "that is the safest way to hold me."

• • •

HER father was still up when she got home. Ralph's farewell kiss was fresh upon her lips when, seeing the light in Treherne's study, she knocked upon the door and was bidden to enter.

"Your young man came to see me, my dear," he smiled.

"So he informed me," she said. "Well?"

"It's well with me. But is it well with you?" he asked.

"Why not?" she asked.

"I am venturing upon that impertinent intimacy which fatherhood is supposed to justify," he rejoined. "As to your question, I don't know why it shouldn't be all right with you. I merely asked if it were."

"It is," she assured him.

"The young gentleman exposed his condition of mind, heart and the source of his supplies. His income exceeds $300,000 a year. His principal is well invested. I heartily approve of him."

"You say you do—but tonight—and this morning, too—I feel something that isn't in your speech, daddy, dear, but—well, I can't explain it."

"Love is a fine stimulus to the imagination," he smiled. "The greatest novels, plays and poems are written by people in love. Your imagination is working overtime, my dear. When is the wedding to be?"

"Why, we hadn't got to that yet," she confessed.

He shrugged.

"I was more ardent than that at Ralph's age," he said.

"You boast, daddy," she laughed.

"Middle age can do little else," he chuckled. "And what is the latest from your Farrell man?"

"Latest? Why should there be any latest?" she parried.

"Why? Because youth is youth and love is love."

"I admit his youth, but his love—why should you be so absurd?"

"Ten thousand dollars, to a man with nothing, is a fortune," he said. "Farrell refused that amount from me. Only pride would make him refuse it. He would have pride only because he had fallen in love with you."

"He might have been born with pride," she reminded him.

"I prefer to believe that meeting you caused it to be born in him," he said.

"Your logic is oddly deficient for a mighty intellect like yours," she charged.

"Logic, when confronted by young love, is often confounded," he said.

"I don't know what you're talking about, and if I did, I'd probably consider it stupid," she told him.

"The judgment of youth," he said solemnly. "Old Maybury rang me up this afternoon and said young Farrell was going to be at the party.

"Now, how did he happen to mention that?" asked Julie.

"Perhaps because I suggested that he engage the young man," said Treherne.

Julie stared at him. "And why on earth did you do that, daddy?"

"I don't believe I know myself," he replied. "Only, Maybury and I have some business together, he was urging me to come to the party, told me of the entertainment he planned, and it popped into my head that young Farrell would be a great attraction——"

"I danced with him," said Julie. "Yes?"

"At the end of the dance he kissed me," said Julie.

"Our young hoofer is coming on," said Treherne. "Did Ralph enjoy that?"

"He did not," said Julie.

"I would hardly think so," said Treherne. "And then?"

"Nothing," said Julie. "Good night, daddy," she added softly.

"What?" No more to tell me?"

Julie hesitated. "No, daddy, nothing."

Chiffon Hose Has Open-Work Ribs

Inspired by the new ribbed silks and woolens, sheer chiffon hosiery seen in Paris has openwork ribs. The effect is all that is to be desired by those who wish hosiery to aid in slenderizing the appearance of their ankles. There is also a "polka chenille," as gossamer as mesh with little dots of plain fabric scattered through the texture.

Elevate the wood box on rollers; it will be a relief from constant stooping.

DAILY STORY FOR CHILDREN
By Mary Graham Bonner

Jack's Age

"YOU don't look a day older," John repeated for the second time, as Jack Frost stood before him.

"But I am—a great deal older," Jack Frost answered.

"To be sure he is," agreed the Little Black Clock. "When you started out with him last night I turned the time back a long, long distance, and you thought he looked young.

"I could have turned it back still further and he would have looked the same. In fact, I'll do something else now."

But the children could not see that anything had happened. Jack Frost looked just the same as ever, and the trees had been touched by his wonderful paint brushes, and there were some of the flowers who had been put to sleep by him.

"I've turned the time way ahead," the Little Black Clock chuckled, and Jack Frost laughed.

"I don't look any older, do I?"

"Not a bit," said John.

"You see, I do not change," Jack Frost said. "I still paint the trees. I still put the flowers to sleep, I still come around on the sill, quiet evenings when the wind doesn't blow.

"And I so thoroughly enjoy myself and what I do that I do not get a bit older."

John and Peggy thought this was quite wonderful, and yet they could imagine years and years ahead of them with the leaves being painted every autumn by Jack Frost.

"Sorry, but I must leave you now," Jack Frost said, as he waved a paint brush in the air, and off he went, taking such long steps as he walked, stopping here, stopping there, stopping wherever he felt like stopping!

It's possible with new KLEENEX
Disposable Tissues

HANDKERCHIEFS are repulsive enough when used during colds, as every sensitive person knows. But that is not the worst about them.

Germs by millions are concentrated in a single handkerchief! Germs that do not die, but live and grow; for damp handkerchiefs, kept in pockets at body temperature, are ideal for breeding dangerous organisms.

Use Kleenex and destroy

How much more cleanly is Kleenex, a handkerchief to use and destroy! A handkerchief that costs less than laundering alone . . . that is infinitely softer than cotton or linen. Made of rayon-cellulose, Kleenex is so velvet-soft, so marvelously absorbent, that it never irritates.

Many uses for Kleenex!

Try Kleenex for removing face creams, for polishing spectacles, wiping razor blades, applying medicines and ointments. Mothers find it invaluable in keeping babies fresh and clean. Ask for Kleenex at any drug, dry goods or department store.

Smart, attractive package

KLEENEX Disposable TISSUES

Disorderly Withdrawal Reported After Three-Day Fight Near Tahsing—Airplane Bombs Rained on Retreating Troops.

NEW U. S. NOTE SENT TO TOKIO

Declared to Be "Friendly Representation" but Contents Are Carefully Guarded — Neutrality Said to Be Emphasized.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Nov. 6.—Japanese troops rushed a Chinese army in a three-day battle near Tahsing, Manchuria, and sent them flying northward in disorderly retreat, say dispatches from Mukden to the Rengo News Agency.

The Japanese lost 130 killed in the Nonni River bridgehead area in North-Central Manchuria. The battle ended at 10:30 a. m. today, when reinforced Japanese began an offensive which dislodged the Heilungkiang Province army.

Japanese scouts reported the Chinese rear guard passed a town three miles north of the Nonni River bridge an hour later. Japanese airplanes rained bombs on the fleeing Chinese, throwing them into panic and increasing the disorder of the retreat.

Chinese Force Superior.

The dispatch to the Rengo News Agency says only three Japanese companies bore the brunt of the severe fighting north of the Nonni River, which began Wednesday. They opposed the Chinese tenfold more numerous and possessing cavalry and artillery. Considerable losses appeared to have been suffered by the Chinese.

The War Office here asserted the Japanese force in the Nonni River area, including today's reinforcements, was about 900 men, including three batteries of artillery.

It was near Tahsing that the Japanese advance guard of 800 men took up positions after the severe fighting with Chinese Wednesday night and yesterday at the Nonni River railroad bridge which resulted in the withdrawal of the Chinese from the span. Tahsing is near the Nonni bridge.

Commander for Japanese.

Lieutenant-General Jiro Tamon, commander of the Second Japanese Division at Changchun, Manchuria, started for the Nonni River, accompanied by his staff. Gen. Tamon will command all troops in that section.

The Japanese War Office said that during the two days of fighting in that vicinity Japan had suffered more than 100 casualties.

In Tokio the Government was considering a carefully-guarded American note regarding the new hostilities. Official circles would not disclose the contents of the new note, but referred to it as a "friendly representation." United States Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes delivered the note to Baron Kijuro Shidehara, Japanese Foreign Minister, today.

The Tokio Government announced its troops would not advance on Anganchi or the more important neighboring city of Tsitsihar unless Chinese soldiers continued to molest the Japanese bridge guards.

Japan cleared Gen. Mah Chan-shan of China of all blame in connection with the fierce fight Wednesday. Reports indicate the Chinese who started the shooting were formerly under the command of Gen. Wan Fu-lin, supporter of Chang Hsueh-liang, young War Lord and Governor of Manchuria and r the Chinese Nationalist regime. Gen. Mah had promised he would not interfere with the Japanese repairs on the damaged bridge.

Revenge Is Suggested.

The Japanese explained that the troops loyal to Chang Hsueh-liang, who had been incorporated into Gen. Mah's army but recently probably were seeking revenge for the Japanese occupation of Southern Manchuria.

With the Japanese in the hills commanding an excellent view of the bridge, the Japanese, Chinese and Russian interests are at close quarters. A few miles to the north runs the Chinese Eastern Railway, jointly managed by China and Rus-
